Rickenbacker Mentioned. At the Wailing Wall. How to Create 8 Billions. Harnessing the Ocean.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN WELCOMING the French fliers enthusiastically yesterday, President Hoover mentioned "Byrd, Rickenbacker and the rest."

It is refreshing to hear Rickenbacker mentioned, proving that men who flew in the war are not entirely forgotten.

Their flying was unlike modern peace flying, as different as the performance of a hawk from that of a carrier pigeon.

WHEN RICKENBACKER went up, his plane, or another, had to crash.

Time after time he went up, and time after time he brought down the other plane. This he did more often than any other American flier.

He has remained in the background, amid all the praise of peace flying. The public should not let him stay there.

THE NATIONS with few exceptions stand with their foreheads pressed against the wailing wall of diminished prosperity. Side by side they bemoan the downfall of a great boom, asking each other: "When do you think things will improve"?

They ought to know that real business is not done by those that gather at the other wailing wall, of great antiquity. It is done by those that remain at home and attend to business.

MR. CROMIE of the Vancouver Sun, thinks the main trouble is "refusal of European bankers to recognize the necessity of restoring silver as a 1 to 12 world money token with gold." There are in the world 6,000,000,000 ounces of silver, now worth only $2,000,000,000. If bankers would do their duty Mr. Cromie thinks the 6,000,000,000 ounces would be worth $10,000,000,000 and the purchasing power of China, India, Mexico and other countries now on a silver basis would be increased by $8,000,000,000, almost as much as we lent to our dear allies.

THERE IS NO doubt that cutting down by more than 50 per cent the value of money used by more than half the people on earth is one cause of trouble.

If Mr. Rockefeller himself suddenly found that half his money was counterfeit he would have to economize.

WE LIVE IN a world that needs better management in many directions, and Mr. Cromie proves it. The public debt of China is only about one dollar per inhabitant. The public debt of Australia is $1,000 per individual. If China and Australia were both in danger of bankrupicy, Australia probably would go overboard, without the help of Great Britain, which, by the way, has been acting more like a stepmother than a real mother.

BANKERS, EUROPEAN and American, will say:

"We shall be much obliged if Mr. Cromie will show us how to restore the value of silver. W. J. Bryan tried it on a 16 to 1 basis and failed. Uncle Sam tried it with wheat, putting in nearly $100,000,000 and wheat dropped 25 cents. 'Supply and demand' is an obstinate reality."

AN EXPERIMENT made in Cuba yesterday, may, 100 or 1,000 years hence, be far more important 10 times over than the great war and all the wars before it.

Georges Claude, a French scientist, with the indorsement of the French Academy of Science and the Cuban government, is undertaking by a costly process to develop the heat of surface and Gulf Stream waters in the tropics, recondensing the steam thus created by sending it to the colder depths of the ocean. A vacuum will be used to create steam at low temperature.

MAN, WITH HIS little coal mines, steam engines, hydraulic turbines and other sources of power, is like a fly building a windmill on the rim of a driving wheel.

The earth itself will be our dynamo in time, which will mean power unlimited, to last while the world lasts.

THE ARGENTINE revolution rolls on successfully.

You will learn, without surprise, that Europe blames the revolution on the United States. In Rome, the Fascist newspaper Il Tevere says South America's trouble is imitating the United States, its constituion and its centralizations of power. Also "the famous Monre Doctrine" is a disturbing factor.

IF IT WERE not for that doctrine, Japan might have half of South America today, and Germany the other half.

But we can afford to let that go, provided we do not let the Monroe Doctrine go.

IVAR KREUGER, of Sweden, seems to be a sort of Charles the Twelfth in finance, and able to last. Still in the thirties, and "match king" of Sweden, he has lent $250,000,000 to the various governments in return for semi-monopolies in their territory.

He is said, now, to be acquiring control of the Diamond Match Company here in the United States, and stockholders in the International Telephone and Telegraph Company are interested, or should be, in the fact that Kreuger is reaching out for control of telephones in a dozen different countries.

SCORES FIGHT TO FREE TRAPPED DIVER

'Amen' Raid Showed Fair Dealing, Says Wilson

IRIGOYEN JAILED AFTER BATTLE

PRESS FIGHT TO RESCUE DIVER

100 Men Rushing Dam to Free Victim From Swift Current Which Pinions Him

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—A hundred men labored frantically today to free Capt. Nick Danese, 62-year-old marine diver, trapped under a city pumping station on Lake Pontchartrain since 11 a. m. yesterday by water pressure from a sudden break in a lock.

He was still alive today and gave signals by jerking his air hose. A large barge was sunk near him and the men were driving down sheet pilink today in the hope of forming a pen from which the water could be pumped out. It was estimated at 9 a. m. that three or four hours more would be required for the work.

LOSES LIFE ROPE

Capt. Danese went down yesterday to repair a leak in the pump locks. While he was working under the water with a diver's helmet on but without a customary diving suit the lock collapsed and the pressure of the water swept him under a bulkhead against the piling. He had a rope in his hand but when he was swept aside by the current it slipped out of his grasp.

He was hurled against the piling with only his air hose line connecting with the surface.

IN CURRENT'S GRIP

Working in relays throughout the night, men pumped a steady supply of air through the hose, but each time the trapped diver moved away from the bulkhead the current swept him back.

Other divers believe the bulkhead is protecting Danese from pressure and they expressed the hope that he would be rescued if his strength held out. They pointed out that another diver was under the water near that place for 34 hours a few years ago and came out alive.

The pumping station is in an isolated section, with no telephone or road connection, communication being by boat.

'AMEN' RAID FAIR, SAYS WILSON

Dry Agent in Farewell Tells Exchange Club Stand On Dry Enforcement

So great was the consternation caused by the Amen Corner raid, that many organizations since have besought him not to invade their gatherings, Deputy Prohibition Administrator Harold D. (Three Gun) Wilson, ordered transferred to Delaware, revealed today in a farewell address before the Exchange Club in the William Penn Hotel.

The dry chief asserted the only promise he ever made was:

"If there is no liquor there will be no raid."

In one instance, he sent his agents to offer protection to an assembly at which he was given assurance no liquor would be dispensed.

EXPLAINS AMEN RAID

Regarding the Amen Corner raid, in which some of his supporters saw the motive behind his transfer, notwithstanding denial by his superiors, Wilson said:

"Even a prohibition agent must establish a reputation for hitting the higher-ups if he is to maintain impartial enforcement."

His aim, he said, has been to stop the flood or liquor at its source rather than to arrest those handling it after its release.

SUCCESSOR UNKNOWN

Wilson made no reference to his probable successor here. Washington dispatches indicated today that no appointment is likely until Commissioner of Prohibition Amos

Lila Lee Recovers, Back in Films Soon

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 9.—(INS.)—Having won her fight back to good health, Lila Lee, motion picture star, will soon resume her film career, it was said today. She will return from an Arizona sanitarium in October.

CURTAIL ALIENS TO AID JOBLESS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—President Hoover announced today that the State Department had moved to alleviate the unemployment situation by tightening the immigration restrictions upon aliens who might become public charges.

Consul generals who issued visas for immigration to the United States have been instructed to inquire more carefully into the financial status of the applicant.

The extent to which this will affect the volume of immigration to this country or its effect upon unemployment has not been estimated. The President said officials expect a sharp decrease in the number of those types who formerly have come to America and have been unable to support themselves.

Employment conditions in the bituminous mines of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia were discussed today at a conference between Secretary of Labor Davis and Percy Tetlow and Van A. Bittner, representatives of the United Mine Workers of America.

Secretary Davis said the mine union officials "were presenting a picture of working conditions," which, he added, "have not been bright," but should improve "within the near future."

DOGS RUN AGAIN AT BRIDGEVILLE

Greyhound racing was resumed at the Bridgeville Speedway last night with the mutuel windows closed.

Three thousand smiling-faced men and women paraded through the gates for the gala opening. Filing out again, the smiling was not so apparent, because of District Attorney Andrew Park's order halting the contribution system.

Owing to Park's edict, the official opening of the track was postponed until Wednesday night. The 10 events last night and tonight's program will be classified as schooling races.

Questioned concerning the operation of the track, J. J. Egan, manager of the club, said:

"We got a call at 5 o'clock that we couldn't operate the windows, and we will not operate them unless we can do it in the right way. There will be no bookmaking, no touts here. I would rather close the gates and keep them closed if anyone thinks we are not operating a high-class kennel club. We have the support of the Bridgeville business people and residents, and know of no legitimate complaint against us."

There was no admission charge last night.

Pope Receives Two Pittsburgh Priests

Pope Pius today granted a private audience at the Vatican to the Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Coakley and the Rev. Dr. R. L. Hayes, of Pittsburgh. Father Coakley is pastor of Sacred Heart Church and Father Hayes of St. Catherine's Church, Beechview.

Sailing from New York August 16, the priests visited Spain and parts of Italy and France. They expect to return about October 1.

Princess Eudoxie's Betrothal Reported

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—It is reported in political circles that Princess Eudoxie, sister of King Boris and third daughter of King Ferdinand, has been betrothed to a member of the family of the Duke of Wuerttemberg.

5 Die, 12 Hurt In Engine Blast

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—At least five men were killed and a dozen injured today in the explosion of a pusher locomotive in the Reading Railroad roundhouse yard at Third street and Erie avenue.

The front of the locomotive boiler was blown off. The arched top of the firebox was blown down and out of the side. This is metal half an inch thick, but it bent like paper. There is a hole in the locomotive beneath the cab. The fire grate was broken in pieces about six inches long and scattered all over the scene.

Gold Star Mother Stricken in France

PARIS, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Grace W. Kingsbury, Gold Star mother, from Smith Center, Kan., today was reported by army officials as seriously ill at Verdun.

Mrs. Kingsbury was seized yesterday with an attack of uremic poisoning. Her condition is causing anxiety. She is attended in a hotel by an army medical officer and two army nurses.

KLINE 'ON JOB' TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—Returning from a vacation in Europe of more than two months, Mayor Charles H. Kline of Pittsburgh, accompanied by Mrs. Kline, left New York at 10 a. m. today for home. They are due in Pittsburgh tonight.

Interviewed on the train, as it pulled out of the Pennsylvania station, Mayor Kline refused to discuss politics or the business at City Hall in his home city. He declared:

"I have been away from Pittsburgh for two and a half months. During that time, I didn't know what was going on, and I did not want to know. I held myself aloof from business because I was on vacation.

"My secretary cabled me every 10 days, so he could take

Chinese Bandits Fire On Andrews' Caravan

PEIPING, China, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Roy Chapman Andrews today received word from J. McKenzie Young, chief of motor transport for Andrews' expedition into the Gobi Desert, that Young and his Chinese assistants had been fired upon by bandits near Tangkiang, 175 miles northwest of Kalgan. They were returning to China from Mongolia. Young telegraphed:

"We were not hit and reached camp tired but happy."

SCHOOL STRIKE SPREADS

The school strike epidemic today spread to Ross Township, making three schools in city and county which children, backed by parents, are refusing to attend.

A group of pupils residing in Laurel Gardens joined the ranks of the holdouts which already numbered pupils of the Obey school, Crafton Heights, and of the Braun school, Shaler Township.

CHARGE OVERCROWDING

The Laurel Gardens children refused to walk a mile to the Ross Township school in Perrysville, because, according to J. W. Johnston, leader of the protest committee, the route is infested with dogs and the school rooms overcrowded.

A meeting has been called for tomorrow night in the Laurel Gardens community building to formulate a protest, Johnston said. School authorities said truant officers had notified the striking pupils to report to classes. They denied overcrowding, and asserted all dogs have been cr-

ZAGREB, Croatia, Jugoslavia, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Students, demonstrating as a protest against the execution of four Slovenes by the Italian government at Triest Saturday, today dragged an Italian flag through the mud and burned it in the hospital square. The populace applauded in the streets and from the windows.

Coolidge Sees Depression Remedy in Buying By All

SOUTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 9.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, is in a sound position when he opposes saddling the wage earners with a dole system. His suggestion of part time employment for all rather than full time for a part is fair, and is the usual practice of employers. But the employer is only an agent. He cannot employ unless he can sell his output. To do so would pile up inventories and only prolong the misery of depression. What Mr. Green seems to mean is that at times the employer should operate to give work with little or no profit. The reports of too many industries show they are now operating despite a loss.

Calvin Coolidge.

The entire progress of our wage earners is toward full co-operation and partnership. They have been raised to new dignity and must themselves assume new responsibilities. The employer cannot produce unless they buy. If they will live up to that end of the partnership, they will start a movement that will eliminate the 10 per cent reduction in business that causes our trouble. The buying power of everybody if used is amply sufficient to support everybody. When business is declining the people cannot expect to increase savings.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

FOLLOWERS ARRESTED, ISOLATED

Reprisals Follow Swiftly Upon Clash Which Kills Seven and Wounds 56

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Hipolito Irigoyen, fallen president of Argentina, his cabinet and the Irigoyenista members of Congress today were arrested and are being held incommunicado.

Gen. Augustine Justo, of former President Alvear's cabinet, was named commander-in-chief of the garrison here after a night of wild confusion among the troops loyal to the Uriburu regime.

DUE TO TRAGIC ERROR

The shooting arose from a tragic error among soldiers defending the central postoffice and the Government House.

Seven persons were killed and 56 wounded during the firing that lasted intermittently until this morning.

During the confusion, reports spread that the Argentine navy squadron of 13 vessels, lying in Buenos Aires harbor, had begun to bombard the capital.

Five shrapnel shell were fired in the direction of the harbor by the light artillery defending the Government House, all falling close to the ships of Admiral Storni.

A 75-mm. shell exploded on the

'Doubles' Cheer Numbers Ring; Payoffs Light

Looking back on three "doubles" in as many days the "numbers" racketmen were in a high good humor today.

By the new reduced payoff scale the operators are paying only 300 to 1 on "doubles" and "triples"—number combinations in which the same digit appears more than once. Saturday's clearing house "number" was 199, Monday's 535 and 262 came through today.

The payoff was reported extremely light, since the customers have practically boycotted numbers which bring them only 300 to 1. The bookies are not sharing the elation of their employers. They don't collect 10 per cent of their customers' winnings, since the customers don't play at the reduced payoff.

CITY TO SPEED COMPLETION OF GRANT STREET WIDENING

LANG WAITS ACTION BY COUNCIL

Subway Project Dropped, Delay to Improvement Of Thoroughfare at End

The City of Pittsburgh will soon get under way the completion of the widening of Grant street from the Boulevard of the Allies to Water street.

City Engineer Charles M. Reppert explained the Transit Commission has been holding up the work pending its consideration of plans to raise the grade of Water street for the proposed subway.

The commission some months ago, Reppert said, indicated it had given up consideration of the grade-raising plan and nothing now stands in the way of completion of the work except passage of the contract ordinance.

Edward G. Lang, director of public works, today said the ordinance was prepared and awaits action by Council at its next meeting. He said the work would be completed this fall, barring unforseen delays.

DAMAGES PAID

Legally, Grant street was widened two years ago. Damages of $220,460 were awarded in May, 1928, to property owners on the west side of Grant street and $15,000 benefit assessments were levied against property owners on the east side of the street.

Damages were paid, according to records in City Controller J. P. Kerr's office, to John Drew, father of Judge James B. Drew, $35,570; the Lang estate, $100,000, and the Commonwealth Investment Company and J. H. Aronson, $84,890.

NOT YET VACATED

These awards are for the 20-foot strip of land required for the widening of the street. The owners of the properties involved have not yet been required to vacate, and, according to City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, are paying rent for the city property.

The original bond issue for the widening of Grant street provided for widening it 20 feet from Water street to Seventh avenue.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN SHAFT

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The murdered body of Mrs. Delphine Ryan, 72-year-old widow, was found in the dumb waiter shaft of her apartment on East One Hundred Twenty-fourth street, and in the flat was a note saying she had been slain in "hatred and revenge."

Police immediately began a search for one of three persons who roomed and boarded at the widow's home.

The note left by the slayer said:

"This murder is one of hatred and revenge. She is an old witch who has seen the world for the past 80 years. She has lived in the reign of the 13 states. She should have been burnt at the stake."

The body was found doubled over with the head resting on the knees, on top of the dumb waiter. It had been forced down the shaft. The head was crushed in by a brick wrapped in cloth.

Pittsburgher Shot in Ohio Bank Robbery

VAN WERT, O., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Bullet wounds suffered by one of two alleged robbers during a holdup of the Farmers' Bank at Ohio City, near here, resulted in the capture of both last night.

Charles Anderson, 27, North Side, Pittsburgh, shot by M. M. Agler, cashier, was found exhausted in a stolen automobile near a farmhouse. His companion, Charles Blair, 50, Morgantown, W. Va., was captured when he returned to the machine. He is reported to have surrendered $1,000 taken from the bank.

Passenger Service On Branch to Cease

CONNELLSVILLE, Sept. 9.—Passenger service on the Indian Creek Valley Branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will be discontinued Thursday. Two trains daily have been operated on the line.

Dog Rides With Servants, Woman Won't Pay Rent

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The Sheridan-Brompton apartment hotel is very bearish on dogs, particularly on Buster, Mrs. Beatrice Smythe's high-class airedale.

Mrs. Smythe is being sued for $645 back rent. She takes the stand that she won't pay the rent until the hotel management ceases making the high-class airedale ride in the servants' elevator.

When she moved into the Sheridan-Brompton, Mrs. Smythe said, it was distinctly understood Buster was to ride in the regular passenger elevators. Of late, however, the hostelry has altered its rules, barring Buster from going up and down in the lift with the paying guests.

Fear has been expressed that continued association with the hired help in the servants' elevator might develop in Buster an inferiority complex.

Settlement of the dispute is one of the things Judge Brothers has to worry about Thursday. In the interim, so far as the hotel is concerned, Buster can ride with the servants, walk up, or stay out.

dered tied up. Buses are not feasible because of steep hills, they declared.

Pupils of the Obey school continued to remain away from classes at the Schaeffer school, a mile away, to which they were ordered transferred by the Board of Public Education. Classes are being conducted in the open for the striking pupils at the Obey building. A hearing is scheduled by the school board, September 23.

FIRE TRAP CHARGE

Three hundred residents of Shaler Township, many of them members of the Shaler Township Civic Association, last night heard Fire Chief Park E. Eilch, of the township, brand the Glenshaw and Undercliff public schools as fire traps and unsafe for use.

The charge came during a protest meeting of the association against the transfer of children of the district from the Undercliff to the Glenshaw schools. H. L. Gerdes, chairman of a committee which last Friday was appointed to call on the township school board to protest the transfer, said no answer had been received to the complaint. The meeting voted to send a message to the State Board of Education opposing the change on the grounds that the Glenshaw school is overcrowded, unsafe and unsanitary.

CHARGES OVERCROWDING

Roy Beet, president of the civic association, declared A. P. Speight, secretary of the Shaler Township School Board, had admitted the Glenshaw school would be overcrowded if 90 pupils were sent there from the Undercliff school.

A suggestion that high school students, rather than the grade pupils, be transferred was frowned upon by the school board, it was said.

Let Politics Alone, Civil Service Warns

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Federal employes working under Civil Service rules have been warned that undue participation in election campaigning may cost their jobs.

The commission said today that the warnings against political activity were being posted in all federal buildings.

The activities of unclassified employes and postmasters, the warnings say, are clearly limited and must not be extended unduly.

Weather Conditions

An anticyclone, central over Northern Michigan, overlies the Northern States from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Coast, with generally fair weather throughout most of this area, while pressure is relatively low over the Southern States, the Plateau and the Canadian Northwest, with centers of disturbance over Central Florida, Texas, Nevada and British Columbia. Showers have occurred in Florida, Texas, the Southern and Western Plains, the middle Mississippi Valley, and portions of the Northern Rocky Mountains. Further slight falls in temperature occurred in New England, the Middle Atlantic and Ohio Valley States, while it is slightly warmer in the Northern Plains.

River Conditions

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is minus 0.1 foot; Locks No. 7, 11; Pittsburgh, 9.3; Dam No. 4, 9.0; Dam No. 5, 7.1; Dam No. 6, 7.9; and Dam No. 12, 5.9. The dams are up.

Flying Weather

Fair weather prevailed over the airways between Chicago and Newark this morning, with ceilings unlimited and no visibility less than 2 miles, except Chicago, 1½ miles, and Cleveland, 2 miles. Winds were light northeast or east, generally less than 10 miles; temperatures were in the fifties or lower sixties.

Weather will continue fair this afternoon and tonight over the airways, with ceilings mostly unlimited, and visibilities generally good, but with some prospect of fog in the mountains; winds, light northeast or east; and temperatures changing but little.

Iowa Professor Lands at Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Prof. Enrique Blanco, from the department of Spanish at Iowa University, arrived here today from Boston via the Azores, traveling in the 10-ton yatch Evalu. He was accompanied by his wife and 7-year-old daughter.

The professor will leave soon for Melilla, Morocco, where the Spanish authorities are preparing festivities for his reception.

Balloon Sails, Good Omen for Italians

SAN MARCELLO PISTOLESE, Italy, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Folks hereabouts are convinced that crops will be fine and children obedient. A paper balloon 33 feet high, let loose on the feast of Saint Celestina, soared away into the blue sky. Had it burned, so the legend runs, dire things would have happened.

DEFENSE WINS MERGER POINT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—An exhibit offered by the defense in the injunction suit against the Youngstown Sheet nd BTube-aethlehem Steel merger, purporting to show Bethlehem expenditures which were chargedd irectly against income butw hich might have been distributed through tis depreciation account, was admitted as evidence by Judge David Jenkins today.

The exhibition previously had been offered by the defense as a statement of expenditures, furnished by Bethlehem to Ernst and Ernst, anti-merger auditors, to support the defensec laim that Ernst and Ernst ignored it in writing Bethlehem's depreciation rate up to four per cent.

The reintroduction of the exhibit was objected to by Attorney Clan Crawford, of plaintiff's counsel, on the ground that the Bethlehem cost sheets, from which it was compiled, were not made available to the merger foes.

After lengthy arguments, in which both Crawford and Attorney F. H. Wood, Bethlehem counsel, voiced disapproval of any delay that might result while the plaintiffs examined the original accounts, Judge Jenkins admitted the exhibit.

Sea Currents Balk Treasure Divers

BREST, France, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Italian divers operating off the coast were unable to reach the sunken steamship Egypt today in their quest for treasure. The sea was calm but ocean currents were so strong that divers found the work under seas dangerous. The party returned to Brest on the salvage ship Artiglio.

deck of the destroyer Mendoza, killing a petty officer. The Mendoza is commanded by Commander Lajous, until recently Argentine naval attache at Washington.

OFFICIAL VERSION GIVEN

The official version of the shooting's origin admittedly is confused. Rumors before 9 p. m. stated that troops had opened a counter revolution, directed against Gen. Jose Uriburu, who only Saturday overthrew the Irigoyen regime.

The rumors, disseminated by certain so far unnamed persons, added that the counter revolutionaries had captured the military college. This caused the greatest confusion and alarm throughout the city. Sporadic shooting then began.

Shortly afterward, it was reported that a strong body of counter revolutionary troops was moving against Buenos Aires.

This report reach the guard at the central postoffice building, already tense and nervous from the previous reports and from the shots.

DESCEND TO STREETS

The guard, heavily armed with machine guns and light artillery on the roof, prepared to descend to the streets.

Before doing so, they began shooting out the street lamps, the better to defend their position. The postoffice is only two blocks from the Government House, which also was heavily defended by troops with light artillery and machine guns.

Hearing the sound of firing, the soldiers at the Government House also took it for granted that another counter revolutionary attack had broken out around the postoffice.

Both machine guns and artillery opened up against the postoffice.

CONFUSION EVERYWHERE

The confusion was terrific. Traffic disappeared like magic from the streets, citizens taking cover precipitately wherever there was opportunity.

In this confusion, certain elements of the people looted arms and ammunition stores and ran out into the streets, to take part in the fighting. Meanwhile other citizens, known to be partisans of Uriburu, went to the military arsenals and police stations asking for arms.

They were speedily armed and stationed as vigilantes at various important street intersections and strategic points, to maintain order. They co-operated with soldiers and police in preventing any hostile movements around the national treasury and other government buildings.

SHOP LOOTING SPREADS

Through a night punctuated with the sharp reports of rifles and the rattle of machine guns, the confusion kept up and the looting spread. The firing lasted all night and sometimes drummed out violently, especially when people began looting the shops.

At 9:15 this morning, Buenos Aires was still half-stunned by the shock and tragedy of the misunderstanding.

The citizens, at first appearing cautiously on the streets, began to take stock of things and realize for the first time that revolution had not broken out.

Provisional President Uriburu issued a statement ordering the surrender of all arms in the possession of private persons within 12 hours. Martial law was threatened.

FIGHT OFF LOYALISTS

Among the citizens storming the arms stores last night were elements identified with Irigoyen's "Klan Radical." They fought off a government force sent against them, barricaded themselves in the store and were driven out only when the government soldiers set fire to the building.

Incorrect Circulation Figures

The Press, yesterday, in a full-page advertisement, said the Sun-Telegraph printed 49 per cent of its Sunday circulation before 6 p. m, Saturday and 51 per cent "between 6 p. m, and 12 midnight Saturday." It said the Sun-Telegraph printed 40 per cent of its daily circulation before 1 p. m., 50 per cent between 1 p. m, and 3 p. m., and only 10 per cent after 3 p. m.

These ludicrous misstatements (undoubtedly made in good faith but without considering mechanical possibilities) were based on a report made to the Audit Bureau of Circulations for editions of March 6 and March 9, 1930. This report showed only starting times of editions, but no "make-overs" or "replates" and no record of when papers of each edition actually were printed. The facts are that on these two dates the Sun-Telegraph printed only 10 per cent of its Sunday circulation before 6 p. m, Saturday, 39 per cent between 6 and 11:35 p. m., and 51 per cent between 11:36 p. m, Saturday and 4 a. m, Sunday morning—this one late edition being within 50,000 of the entire Sunday Press circulation in all its editions—and the week-day editions were divided as follows: 39.6 per cent before 1 p. m., 29.1 per cent between 1 and 3 p. m., and 31.3 per cent after 3 p. m.

The Sun-Telegraph, since this report was made, has substituted even later editions for the earlier editions formerly delivered, in many sections of the city and suburbs. Complete figures are available today for Thursday of last week, when only 27 per cent of the circulation was sent to press before 1 p. m., 42 per cent between 1 and 3 p. m. and 31 per cent after 3 p. m. Recent Sunday percentages also show that later papers are being substituted for earlier editions whenever possible.

The Sun-Telegraph regrets that its last A. B. C. report did not include a complete record of hourly press production—that would have made impossible such a misunderstanding as prompted the misstatements published yesterday.

Lord Castlerosse

Most Talked of Journalist in England

Now in America

Lord Castlerosse, editorial columnist of the London Daily Express, one of the foremost commentators of the London Press, has been induced to write a series of articles on his observations of life in America for the Sun-Telegraph and several other American newspapers. Lord Castlerosse is the son of the Earl of Kenmare, owner of the Lakes of Killarney. He is a director of three great London newspapers.

By LORD CASTLEROSSE.

It used to be said—See Naples and die. As a matter of actual fact it is possible to see Naples and avoid death, that is, provided the visitor's politics are of the right Fascist brand and if he refrains from bathing in Vesuvius crater.

Nevertheless, why risk it?

I suggest that we see New York and live.

Last night I dined in the cool of a balcony on top of one of your tall buildings. The dinner was excellent, the company high spirited, but I found it difficult to concentrate on aught else but the wonderful view. New York at night is the most beautiful thing that man ever framed.

GET THEE BEHIND ME, SATAN

As I stood leaning over the balustrade the recollection came to me of how a person was shown the whole world from the peak of a high mountain and he was tempted.

All my life I have been able to resist everything except temptation, but there are more temptations in New York than any town in the world.

I say this after having seen "Flying High." The evening was very hot, my forehead was apparently doing its little best to compete against Niagara and my collar was striving to copy the appearance of a piece of string.

Yes boys, it was hot.

MOHAMMEDAN'S HEAVEN

I was dissolving in one of the last rows of the stalls pondering on the next world when the curtain went up. I saw before me Mohammedan's idea of heaven.

I hastily came to the conclusion that Allah was no fool. The women were so pretty that I felt quite embarrassed, for I was brought up to believe that it is bad manners to stare. Stare, gosh, my eyes nearly popped out of my head.

Then Miss Pearl Osgood danced. Byron's words in Childe Harold came to my mind. Do you remember:

"On with the dance; let joy be unconfined;
No sleep till morn, when youth and pleasure meet
To chase the glowing hours with flying feet."

How anybody could dance with such elan, such dash, enthusiasm, and wiggle in that heat, beats me, but not Miss Osgood.

Mr. White should be persuaded to take his show to London. I have a good reason for saying this. I live in London.

From the theater we graduated to the Casino where folks dance, eat, and read labels on the bottles of White Rock imploring them not to mix whisky with this water.

A man at the next table to me was so moved by this appeal that he drank his whisky neat. It was not the only neat thing I saw there.

Then Mr. Walter Winchell arrived on the scene and Mr. Mark Hellinger and his wife. Boys, now there is a wife for you. She is so beautiful that even in New York Mr. Mark Hellinger's mind must never be tempted towards polygamy. Mr. Hellinger writes a short story every day; how he does it I don't know. Life for him must be one long love story.

EXPLAINING WINCHELL

Mr. Winchell is one of the keenest men I have ever met. He has enemies, every good journalist has, but Mr. Winchell is well aware that enemies are even more important than friends to a newspaper man. Obviously he has chosen his enemies with care and discretion.

I found Mr. Winchell's company exhilarating to a great degree.

I can tell you why Mr. Winchell succeeds. It is because he puts his personality into his work and he is a man enthralled with life.

Lord Chesterfield, in a letter to his son, said:

"Courts and camps are the only places to learn the world in."

Times have changed since Lord Chesterfield's days. Broadway has taken the place of camps and has absorbed the courting, too.

As I listened to the band I fell to wondering why it is that American bands are so far the best in the world. The reason is, no doubt, that there are so many men of German and Jewish blood over here.

The Germans and the Jews have almost made a career of music.

There is great liveliness in your restaurants, far more than with us. The people in our night clubs are, to my way of thinking, a gloomy lot. As you see their flaccid tired faces, it is obvious that they are not so much seeking pleasure as trying to avoid boredom.

As I went out I heard a man say:

"It is high time that these columnists were bumped off."

Confound that man. I was so occupied in thinking up a stinging retort that I bumped my head getting into the motor car. I hope it will end there.

LORD-ABOUT-TOWN

From the Casino we went to the Abbey, which is just like every successful night club I know. It is small, stuffy, hot and smoky. This apparently is essential to success. There is a most successful restaurant in London called the Cafe Anglais. It reminded me of the hot room of a Turkish bath. It does an immense trade.

A very freckled man, showing every evidence of being a disused prize fighter, subsequently came on dressed as a woman and tried to sing—he failed.

It was by now past four, so I fancy we had better close the evening.

care of any contingencies that might arise. Fortunately, no such contingencies developed.

"I talked with my secretary over the long-distance telephone yesterday and he said the political situation in Pittsburgh is very quiet.

"I expect to reach home tonight and will go to my office tomorrow, about 9 or 9:30 in the morning as usual. When I get there, I will call in all my department heads and find out from them what happened while I was away."

Questioned concerning the candidacy of Edmund Erk, of Pittsburgh, for congressman to succeed Stephen G. Porter, Mayor Kline merely reiterated his unfamiliarity with the present political situation. He added:

"I have known Erk very well for many years, but am obliged to wait until I reach home, and get in touch with the leaders of the congressional districts, to learn their attitude toward Erk's candidacy."

ARMSTRONG DELAYS MEET

Postponement until next Monday of the convention of committee men and women of the Thirty-second congressional district to name a successor to Stephen G. Porter as Republican candidate for congress, was announced today by County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong. Originally set for Saturday, Armstrong said he moved the meeting date because Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, is to attend the Perry Highway road opening sponsored by the Ross Township Board of Trade Saturday.

The convention will be held in North Side Carnegie Hall.

STATE SENATOR BONBRAKE DIES

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—State Senator Norman L. Bonbrake, 56, of the Franklin-Adams district, died at his home here early today. Death resulted from a paralytic stroke suffered seven weeks ago.

Senator Bonbrake was born in Chambersburg. He was graduated from Mercersburg Academy and Cornell University. Leaving the latter institution in 1896, he was at once admitted to the Franklin County Bar.

He was a Republican and was elected to the state House of Representatives in 1907 from Franklin County. In 1924 he was elected Senator from the Thirty-third District and was re-elected in 1928.

He leaves a widow and two sisters.

Sanitarium Walls Collapse in Flood

HURRICANE, Utah, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Walls of the La Verkin (Utah) sanitarium collapsed under the strain of flood waters which poured from neighboring canyons last night following a severe storm and cloudburst. Inmates were carried to safety.

German Balloonist to Seek Ray Secret 6 Miles in Air

AUGSBURG, Germany, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—The attempt of Prof. Auguste Piccard to reach a height of 50,000 feet in his specially prepared balloon to study cosmic rays and learn the secret of atom destruction was postponed today until Thursday, when weather conditions were expected to be more favorable.

The purpose of the hazardous attempt to penetrate the air region six miles above the earth and study conditions, Prof. Piccard said, was to pave a way for utilization of cosmic energy in some distant day when all earthly fuel is exhausted. He explained:

"I am pursuing a fantastic but at the same time practical aim. The day will come when the exhaustion of the world's coal reserves will require new sources of energy. This source of energy may be found amplified a million times in atomic conversion. We know this process from our studies of aluminum, which is atomically transmuted when subjected to radio-active rays, thus releasing immense energy; the energy of one gram of aluminum being equal to that of 1,000 pounds of coal.

"This energy may some day be used practically. The destructive process is the same as occurs in the stars, which causes cosmic radiation, and that is what I shall observe during the ascent."

Prof. Piccard will be accompanied in the ascent by Charles Kipfer. Both men will be equipped with specially prepared parachutes. A parachute will be attached, also, to the gondola of the balloon in order to prevent its destruction and loss of the valuable scientific data in case of a crash.

The four children of Prof. Piccard presented him with a four-leaf clover and rag doll as good luck tokens for his trip. He has received hundreds of letters urging him to abandon his project because it will be his thirteenth ascent.

8 STATES GO TO POLLS IN PRIMARIES

Hoover Congress Record Chief Issue as Parties Pick November Candidates

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—With the legislative record of the first Hoover Congress a widespread issue, the electorates of eight states go to the polls today to choose local and national party candidates for next November's elections.

Senatorial contests in Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan and South Carolina feature the day's balloting.

The primaries today will be followed by one tomorrow in Georgia, while in Delaware the Republican party meets today in convention to select a senatorial nominee along with a state ticket.

LITTLE REAL EFFECT

The outcome of the primary contests will have little effect on national politics, except where a seated senator may be retired to private life. In the contests today and tomorrow, Senators Joseph E. Ransdell (Dem.), of Louisiana; William J. Harris (Dem.), of Georgia; Cole Blease (Dem.), of South Carolina; Daniel O. Hastings (Rep.), of Delaware; Henry W. Keyes (Rep.), of New Hampshire, and James Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, are seeking another term. All are favored for renomination but Ransdell, Harris and Blease face stiff battles.

REAL FIGHT FOR TOGA

In Colorado, where Senator Phipps (Rep.), announced his retirement, there is a real struggle for his toga. William V. Hodges, former Republican national treasurer, and George H. Shaw, Denver lawyer, seek the Republican nomination, while Edward P. Costigan, one-time Republican and friend of Woodrow Wilson, battles with Morrison Shafroth, son of a former senator, and James S. Marsh, Denver attorney, for the Democratic nomination.

In Louisiana, Gov. Huey P. Long is fighting Senator Ransdell, who seeks another term after 17 years in the Senate.

With the state Anti-Saloon League friendly toward his opponent, Couzens may have a battle with Chase S. Osborn, former governor of Michigan, for the Republican victory but political seers favor the millionaire incumbent.

DETROIT PICKS MAYOR

The triangular mayoralty fight in Detroit surpasses the senatorial fight in bitterness and raging accusations. It has flared relentlessly for a fortnight among Judge Frank Murphy, George Engle and Mayor Charles Bowles, who was recalled by a 21,000 majority vote July 22. A fourth candidate, former Mayor John W. Smith, is in the fight, but has little chance of winning.

Accusations of underworld backing, of gang allegiance, and of being tied by newspaper dictates have been made by opponents to the candidacies of Murphy and Engle. Like Bowles and Smith, they have waged a radio and street campaign breathing fire and fury at each other.

In South Carolina, Blease is meeting former Congressman James F. Byrne in a run-off primary.

In New Hampshire, Keyes will be renominated by the Republicans. Democrats have little hope of defeating him in November.

HARRIS HAS TO FIGHT

The Georgia primary tomorrow will climax another hot campaign. Senator Harris has met real opposition from former Gov. John M. Slaton.

In Delaware, the Republicans will renominate Senator Daniel O. Hastings. In the other states, the capital's interest will center chiefly in the fate of representatives running for re-election.

THE MARKET PLACE IN CITY OF SANTO DOMINGO AFTER TERRIFIC TROPICAL STORM THAT TOOK TOLL OF $30,000,000

NEW HURRICANE DELAYS RELIEF

Charles L. Mitchell, of the weather bureau, said a small hurricane now about 150 miles south of Haiti should miss the island, since the disturbance is moving west-northwestward. He advised caution to vessels.

George C. Smith had been directed to supervise the loading of supplies aboard the destroyer, but after receiving a message from Ernest J. Swift, its director of foreign operations, who is surveying the storm damage, the Red Cross told the Navy it would await further word before dispatching the supplies. The Navy agreed to hold the destroyer in New York for two days to await a decision.

PLANES FORCED BACK

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Two of the three planes which took off from here today with medical supplies for hurricane sufferers at Santo Domingo were forced to return an hour later because of thick weather encountered over North Carolina. The third plane, piloted by Maj. Roy S. Geiger, U. S. M. C., had not been heard from shortly before noon. It was assumed here that he was attempting to reach Fort Bragg, N. C., his first scheduled stop.

HUNGRY IN PANIC

SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—President Trujillo, of the Dominican republic, today was planning stringent precautionary measures against recurrence of disorders at Red Cross canteens when several women and children were trampled as a famished horde attempted to storm food supplies.

In desperation over the overwhelming disaster visited upon the city Wednesday in a furious hurricane, the angry mobs burst the bounds of endurance as meager meals again were dealt out to them by harried relief workers, and made a rush for the stores of food just unloaded at the canteens from rescue ships.

Many sobbing women and little children in tattered clothing, patiently awaiting their turn in the breadline, were bowled over in the mad rush and trampled before the riot was quelled.

STORM-LASHED LINER DOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The liner Coamo, bearing the scars of her terrific struggle against annihilation in the hurricane that swept the Carribean last week and spread disaster over the island of Santo Domingo, arrived here today from San Juan. She brought 253 passengers. Five were aboard during the storm.

Capt. Thomas G. Evans, with the line since 1894, said it was the worst storm he ever experienced. Covers were torn from lifeboats, skylights ripped loose over the public rooms and the ports of the superstructure shattered.

Capt. Evans said the ship was drenched as if submerged. He and his chief engineer, J. J. McGough, agreed that the list was above 40 degrees, sometimes as high as 45 and 47. He added:

"At the height of the hurricane, the wind reached a velocity such as I have never experienced and the barometer fell until it could go no lower on the Aneroid scale."

MOB VICTIM'S PAL KILLED

DARIEN, Ga., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Rubber Bryan, 24, sought as the second Negro who participated in a gun fight yesterday in which a police officer was slain and three others wounded, was shot and seriously wounded in a wood near here today.

Deputy sheriffs who had been searching throughout the night for the Negro, returned to Darien this morning and announced they found Bryan lying dead, with a shotgun charge in his back.

Coroner Crumley went to the wood and his investigations showed the Negro was still alive. He was brought to Darien and given medical attention.

Deputy Sheriff Malone told Coroner Crumley that he and his two companions early this morning approached a house, and that Bryan ran out, fired two pistol shots at them and fled. Malone said he fired once at the fleeing man with his shotgun, and that the man dropped.

Fred Grant, another Negro believed to have participated in the shooting of the police officer, was lynched in a jail cell.

WHAT HIGH WINDS DO TO STEEL SUPERSTRUCTURE: THE TWISTED BASE OF THE WATER TOWER WHICH SUPPLIED CITY

DEATH THREAT LAID TO BELL

By AL GOUGER,
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 9—"There goes the double crosser. He's going to get this."

Anthony (Tony) Bell, former county detective, made the threat and "this," according to the testimony this morning of Ed (Goat) Whitby, meant a .45-caliber automatic which the defendant drew from his pocket when Constable John F. Donohoe passed in front of a night club one evening shortly before his bullet-riddled body was found in an automobile along the Old Frame road near Masontown last summer.

Whitby was the first witness called in the trial today. With his wife, Mrs. Alice Whitby, Edgar Patterson and Miss Lillian Thorne, a school teacher, the witness testified, he drove up to the Earl and Bell night club when the defendant walked up.

Bell opened the front door on the driver's side of the car and motioned Whitby to move over, according to the testimony. His wife also occupied the front seat, Whitby said. Just then Donohoe came into view, Whitby testified, and Bell voiced the death threat.

Under cross examination the witness held to the testimony. Defense Counsel H. S. Dumbauld tried to batter down his story in cross examination of nearly an hour.

Mrs. Whitby followed her husband to the stand, corroborating her husband's testimony.

CHARGE ATTACK TO POLICEMAN

Traffic Patrolman Norman Gilfoyle, 30, of Chester avenue, is held in Central Station after a disturbance in a downtown hotel last night.

Gilfoyle was arrested with G. C. Bliss, 24, and his wife, Edna, 24, after police were called to the Bliss' room at Hotel Henry.

Lieut. Frank Schunk testified in Morals Court today that he found Gilfoyle intoxicated in the Bliss room. He said a woman, whose name was not disclosed, met him in the lobby and charged she had been attacked by Gilfoyle and Bliss. Schunk said he released the woman when she promised to attend the hearing. She did not appear and police are searching for her.

Patrolman Gilfoyle was suspended and held along with Bliss. Mrs. Bliss was discharged after it was testified she entered the room after the officers had arrived.

TRUST CO. SUES HELEN KANE

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Suit against Helen Kane, boop-a-doop girl, to recover $50,000 given to her by Murray Posner from the funds of the bankrupt dress concern in which he was a partner, will be filed in Federal Court, C. Edward Benoit, counsel for the Irving Trust Company, trustee for the creditor, said today.

The trust company, which has been acting as receiver for the firm, was elected trustee today at a creditors' meeting at which Posner and Jack Eisen, his partner, failed to appear, although they had been ordered to do so.

Miss Kane is to testify further in the case Monday. She previously had testified that the money given her by Posner was money she had given him two years ago to invest for her.

ADD 161 ACRES TO MT. LEBANON

Mt. Lebanon Township commissioners last night accepted a proposal that 161 acres of land in Scott Township, carrying an assessed valuation of $120,000, be annexed in compliance with a petition by residents joined by the Scott Township commissioners.

The commissioners, in admitting the proposal, decided that the payment of $10,000 owed by Scott to Mt. Lebanon, would be cleared up with the transfer of the land.

Last night's meeting also marked the appointment of William Kane as superintendent of police; Charles Senn as police chief; A. W. Seifert as captain; James E. Wood as fire chief, and David Halsey as assistant fire chief. The men were granted salary increases which approximate 10 per cent.

Township Solicitor Edwin Goldsmith told the commissioners he had received notification from Justice of the Peace Ira Edmundson that the latter would appeal the decision of the township auditors that he owed the community $508 in fines, collected by him.

G. R. Fisher, one of the auditors, said that the board of auditors would attempt to collect the money from Edmundson's $1,500 bond in the meantime.

ANDREE'S BODY IN CATHEDRAL

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—The bodies of Salomon Auguste Andree and Nils Strindberg, placed in stout oak coffins covered with the blue and yellow Swedish flags, rested in Tromsoe Cathedral today, awaiting arrival of the remains of the third lost explorer.

The sealing vessel Isbjoern, with a party of newspaper correspondents, reported herself on the way back here after finding the body of Knut Fraenkel on the camping site of White Island, where Andree and Strindberg were found.

Informed of the fresh discovery and evidence tending to confirm previous beliefs that Andree lived almost a year in White Island camp after the balloon's descent, the Swedish government instructed the cruiser Svenskund to remain here and bring all three bodies back at the same time.

Solemn honors were bestowed yesterday upon the two explorers who perished in their attempt to cross the North Pole in a balloon in 1827. The coffins were carried reverently up and down the aisle of the little wooden cathedral while memorial services were held.

RUTH UPHOLDS REFERENDUM

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—While disclaiming any part in the movement to place the prohibition referendum before Illinois voters next November, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, in a campaign address today declared that no citizen "has any right to oppose this poll."

The nominee said even the liquor problem was less important than "another issue which has been raised in Illinois the last few days," the right of people to petition the government. She said:

"It seems strange that here in Illinois in the year 1930, we should be called up to debate the question of the right of our citizens to petition.

"Certain leaders of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois have taken the field and their first attack is upon this legal and constitutional proposal.

"I will listen to no counsel which outrages every conviction I have ever held on the subject of majority rule, of popular government and of the sanctity of the Constitution."

Lacking Evidence, Drop Theft Charge

Lack of evidence today in North Side Police Court exploded the charge made by Mrs. Emma Heinrich against William J. Griffith, 40, whom she had accused of stealing $100 and her husband's clothes from her rooming house at 1326 Arch street, a year ago.

Griffith denied taking the clothes and Mrs. Heinrich could not identify the grip he was carrying. The money did not figure in the proceedings.

Buckley Death Case Suspect Loses Plea

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—Theodore Pizzino, gentle-faced ladies' tailor, wanted in Detroit in connection with the murder of Gerald Buckley, radio announcer, will be returned to the Michigan City for trial. Supreme Court Justice McGeehan dismissed habeas corpus proceedings and unless further delay is brought by action of Pizzino's attorneys, the prisoner will be taken at once to Detroit.

Lodger Kills Self In Rooming House

Ignatius Vayda, 70, of 538 Clawson street, killed himself this morning by firing a bullet into his brain, East End police report.

Vayda had been a roomer at the Clawson street address for the past four years, according to Vance D. Smith, proprietor of the boarding house. Smith told police he knew little of the dead man's affairs.

Third of Souceks Goes to Annapolis

MEDFORD, Okla., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The third son of Mr. and Mrs. John Soucek, parents of two widely known Navy fliers, will seek to follow in his brothers' footsteps. Ormus Soucek has left his home here to enter the United States Naval Academy.

His brothers, Lieuts. Apollo Soucek and Zeus Soucek, are well-known pilots, the former holding the world's altitude record.

Morgan Gives Beryl Crystal to Museum

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—One of the largest crystals of beryl has been presented to the American Museum of Natural History by J. P. Morgan. It weighs four tons and measures seven by four feet. Emerald and aquamarine are varieties of beryl.

Broadway Hastens to Fill Frances White's Purse

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—Broadway has a heart, after all.

That street, where yesterday's triumphs are forgotten like the passing seasons, remembered Frances White, and the one-time darling of the stage will not go to jail today for lack of a $3.50 taxicab fare.

Friends who recalled her Broadway successes 15 years ago telephoned and sent messages and money, too, to her hotel when they learned she was so low in funds that she faced a court appearance because she could not pay the cab bill.

The once featured dancer and singer, who earned $3,000 a week many, many weeks in a row, this morning will hand over the $3.50 to the driver and, she indicated, will have enough left to tide her over "the bad days." She said:

"It was good to have so many people call. It shows you are not forgotten. But it is too bad the story had to break as it did, because it leads so many to believe the worst, which is not true. It was just a matter of being temporarily without funds.

"Everything has been so bad this summer, but——"

She did not finish the sentence. Her boyish bob that everyone knew so well a few years ago was gone, and her beauty showed the toll of the years, but she smiled wistfully—as one who hopes for the future.

ZEPPELIN FLIES TO MOSCOW

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin left her home base at 8 a. m. today (2 a. m. Eastern daylight time), on a flight from here to Moscow.

Dr. Hugo Eckener is in command, with 20 passengers aboard. The airship expected to reach Moscow tomorrow morning.

The Soviet government, according to reports received here, made elaborate preparations to receive the airship. Fully 100,000 spectators were expected on the landing field to see the Graf Zeppelin's arrival.

Autos Give Women Flat Feet, Claim

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Dr. H. L. Goldwag fears that automobiles are helping American women to have flat feet. Much riding and improper walking result in atrophy of foot muscles, he told the New York State Pedic Society.

'DUCHESS' GIVEN MORE U. S. TIME

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Mme. Anastasia Tschaikovsky, who has been granted permission to remain in the United States for another year, was brought here in 1928 by the then Mrs. William B. Leeds. She said she was the youngest daughter of the late Czar Nicholas II, of Russia, and had escaped the doom that befell other members of the family.

In America she was entertained and acclaimed by several society leaders as the true Duchess Anastasia Niklovena, heiress to the royal fortunes. In Europe the claim was denied by some surviving members of the Romanoff family.

Mme. Tschaikovsky subsequently engaged Edward H. Fallows, former New York assemblyman, to press her claims to a reputedly fabulous fortune left by the Czar. Her permit to remain in this country expired August 8 and she applied for an extension from the Department of Labor.

Lipton Ill, Friends Admit; Not Serious

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 9.—(INS.)—Reports that Sir Thomas Lipton is seriously ill on board his steam yacht, Erin, were denied today by his friends. They said the 82-year-old yachtsman had not been in the best of health for some time, but that his condition was nothing serious and centered largely in the fact he was easily fatigued.

It was admitted that the yachtsman had spent some time in bed the last few days, but it was said he was "merely resting to store strength" for the coming yacht races.

Child's Stockings Clue in Kidnaping

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—A child's pair of white stockings, found in his trunk, may lead to the holding of Charles Edward Pope, aged apartment caretaker, for the grand jury in connection with the kidnaping of 10-year-old Grace Budd in 1928, detectives said today.

Pope, taken as a suspect on a story told police by his estranged wife, will have a hearing tomorrow.

Britons Fight American Bid For Palace Cobblestones

By T. C. WATSON,
Universal Service.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Move to America the paving stones that British kings have trod? Not on your life!

That was the answer of three famous Englishmen this morning to the report that 100 tons of cobbles from inside Buckingham Palace were to be sent to some American millionaire's estate within two months.

Sir Edwin Luytens and Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, famous architects, and Lord Devonport today entered the field of bidders, in an effort to prevent the sale of the precious stones.

That's why paving stones have risen in the international market—making them more valuable than the crowns of some of Europe's discarded kings.

MARTIN GROUP OPENS PINCHOT CAMPAIGN

Judge Fine Predicts Former Governor Will Carry Fuel Counties by 80,000

About 800 men and women attended the launching of an intensive local campaign to elect Gifford Pinchot governor at a barbecue and corn roast yesterday under auspices of the Richard W. Martin Republican Association on the grounds of the Summer Outing Association near Keown Station.

Attorney John R. Frankel who presided announced Pinchot would be the honor guest of the Martin Association at a dinner October 25 in the William Penn Hotel.

Other speakers were former President of Council James F. Malone, Frank I. Gollmar, chairman of Pinchot's Allegheny County primary campaign, Judge James H. Gray of Common Pleas Court; Attorney Joseph H. Reich and Judge John S. Fine of Luzerne County.

MALONE LAUDS MARTIN

The Martin Association was formed last spring to honor the memory of the late Judge Richard W. Martin who, like Malone was a candidate for mayor against Mayor Kline. Malone is an honorary member of the association.

Malone paid tribute to Martin's conception of public service, and declared that if the judge had lived, he and Malone would have been banded together in the fight to elect Pinchot.

The speaker declared Pinchot was the outstanding figure in public life today because of his intelligence and courage in fighting the battle of common justice for all the people.

WARNS LEADERS

Malone deplored the light registration last Thursday and charged it to the failure of Republican leaders secretly opposed to Pinchot to order [illegible] they controlled to qualify as voters at the general election. He warned that the leaders' present attitude would be a boomerang at the county election next year.

Regardless of the apathy of organization leaders, Pinchot is assured of election by the votes of "decent, self-respecting citizens," Malone said.

Gollmar urged solidarity in support of Pinchot and promised to continue with the association as long as it stood for the principles advocated by the late Judge Martin.

GAVE LIFE IN FIGHT

Judge Gray said Judge Martin had an intense longing to elevate the standard of government to the highest possible ideal and had such passion for duty that he gave his life in the fight for better public service.

If Judge Martin had lived, he would be leading the fight to elect Pinchot governor, Judge Gray declared.

Reich point out that the election of Judges Gray and Martin when they broke the organization slate in 1927 proved that the people could win a fight over the machine with a cause and the proper candidates.

Judge Fine referred to the disputed ballots in Luzerne County and declared the perforations did not destroy the secrecy of the vote. He said the opposition was making claims of carrying the coal field counties but he predicted Pinchot would carry Lackawanna, Luzerne, Carbon, Schuylkill and Lycoming Counties by 80,000 to 100,000 majority.

Judge Fine declared many in the state expect those counties and Allegheny to offset the "traitorous" majority in Philadelphia.

Officers of the Martin Association are: Judge Gray, honorary advisor; Frank I. Gollmar, president; C. M. Oerwig, treasurer; Harry Bastow and Wilbur J. Austin, secretaries; Patrick J. Corr, assistant secretary; John R. Frankel, chairman of the executive committee.

EX-POLICEMAN ASKS DIVORCE

His wife nagged him so much he was compelled to quit the police force, William R. Kessler, 4040 Bowley street, avers in his bill of particulars filed against Florence E. Kessler whom he is suing for divorce.

Kessler avers that his physician told him he must have quiet, because of having been gassed in the World War, and claims he did not receive proper treatment from his wife.

They were married August 26, 1920, and lived together until September 1, 1929.

MAINE'S G. O. P. VOTE SHRINKS

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 9 (INS)—Republicans were being swept into office today as a result of Monday's election but the usual overwhelming Republican landslide was not so apparent and some seats were gained by Democrats in the State Legislature.

Wallace H. White, Republican congressman from the Second Maine district was elected over his Democratic opponent, Frank H. Haskell of Portland for the seat in the United States Senate from which Senator Arthur R. Gould is retiring. Early today with 512 of 632 precincts heard from, White had a lead of almost two to one. White had a total of 61,924 votes against Haskell's 36,749.

The vote was one of the lightest in the history of Maine.

Gov. William Tudor Gardiner, Republican, was re-elected, defeating Edward C. Moran, Jr., Democrat, but his majority was much smaller on the incomplete returns than two years ago. The vote showed 58,523 for Gardiner and 43,990 for Moran.

The four congressional districts gave the Republican candidates commanding leads. The victorious congressmen were: Carroll L. Beedy of Portland, First District; Donald B. Partridge, Norway, Second District; John E. Nelson, Augusta, Third District, and Donald F. Snow, Bangor, Fourth District.

PINCHOT RAPS UTILITY BOARD

MONTROSE, Pa., Sept. 9—(AP)—This little borough, the home of the chairman of the Public Service Commission, today was marked as the scene of Gifford Pinchot's most daring attack against the commission he plans to abolish.

Pointing out that he was not quarreling with Chairman W. D. B. Ainey as an individual, the former governor, at a mass meeting last night, served notice that he intended giving no quarter in carrying out the chief issue of his campaign for election to the governorship.

Pinchot's denial of a personal quarrel with Chairman Ainey followed remarks made by Representative E. P. Brown, Republican nominee for re-election to Legislature, in preceding the gubernatorial candidate. Brown said he subscribed to all of Pinchot's platform except the public utility plank upon which he desired to hold out a reservation, inasmuch as Montrose is the home of Mr. Ainey.

'3-GUN' WILSON BIDS FAREWELL

W. W. Woodcock comes here on an inspection trip the last of this month.

In his address, Wilson said:

"I should like to talk to you gentlemen, not as a prohibitionist or a prohibition official, although I am both, but as a man possibly better acquainted with crime conditions than most of you.

"It is time to face the facts, not as you and I want to see them, but as they actually exist. On leaving college I spent four years investigating big and little business for Bradstreet, the financial mercantile agency. Cold and unadulterated facts were considered, absolutely nothing else. Banks loan money on facts, not on sentiment. You gentlemen deal with facts every day in your business lives, yet in politics and prohibition you are too often ruled by impulses and sentiment.

GIVES LOCAL 'FACTS'

"What are the facts regarding prohibition? I mean right here in Pittsburgh, not in Kalamazoo or some other remote section. Are conditions as bad as some of you would like to believe? Inasmuch as I am apparently slated to leave this district, perhaps I can talk with less prejudice than if permanently assigned here.

"I do not propose to enter into any controversy as to the merits of the 'noble experiment.' Although I believe in it, possibly some of you do not. I wish simply to advance three irrefutable reasons why prohibition is prohibiting much better than generally credited. This is true in spite of the fact that many officials blush from shame when they think of their picayune, apologetic gestures at enforcement.

"First, the price of liquor is much higher than in pre-prohibition days. Second, the quality is terrible, and third, the sales facilities are much poorer. No common-sense business man will maintain that you can raise the price, lower the quality, and do away with all the advantages of location, advertising and other legitimate sales facilities and yet increase the volume of sales.

"In closing, gentlemen, I wish to impress upon you that I am an advocate of defensive enforcement, that is, enforcement that stops the violation before it occurs, rather than the apprehension of the crook after the horse has been stolen and perhaps poisoned.

AMEN RAID

"In the Amen Corner raid, I reversed this procedure in that I deprived many thirsty politicians of their beer after they had sampled it and apparently liked it, but even a prohibition agent must establish a reputation for hitting the higher-ups if he is to maintain impartial enforcement.

"Since this raid numerous requests have been made to me from officials in charge of large gatherings to see that no raid was staged. Just last week the Shriners called for assistance. The potentate, a mighty fine chap, by the way, called me on the phone and said:

" 'We want no raid. We will have no liquor.' "

I said:

"There will be no raid as there will be no liquor. I will have men at your gathering to see that you are properly protected."

Wilson later in the day was scheduled to address the County W. C. T. U. in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street.

A Coffee Phantasmagoria*

OR

Throwing Dust in the Eyes of the Public

"Good coffee costs so little a cup", so say the dust throwers. Nationally advertised coffees, selling around a half dollar a pound, proudly call attention to the low cost of their coffees a cup—a trifle more than one cent a cup; others, now selling their coffee at three pounds for a dollar, call attention to the fact that their coffee costs only about nine-tenths of a cent a cup—but even if their coffee now does cost so little a cup—Why Pay More Than It's Worth?

Woman Called Crazy Sues Policeman for $55,300

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Retrial of a suit for $55,300 damages, brought by Mrs. Christine Collins, against Police Capt. J. J. Jones because he had her incarcerated for psychopathic observation when she refused to recognize an imposter as her young son began here yesterday.

Mrs. Collins is the mother of Walter Collins, allegedly slain by Gordon Steward Northcott. Northcott is in San Quentin prison awaiting execution for the murder of three boys. His mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, pleaded guilty to the murder of young Collins and is serving a life sentence.

Some time after Mrs. Collins reported her son missing, Capt. Jones appeared with a boy who said he was Walter Collins. Mrs. Collins took the youth to her home, but later returned him to the police, saying he was not her son.

In her suit, Mrs. Collins asserted Capt. Jones accused her of shirking her responsibility as a mother and of being "crazy." The boy later admitted he was not Walter Collins and said his real name was Arthur Hutchins, of Illinois. Young Hutchins said he had perpetrated the hoax in order to get to California. He was returned to the middlewestern state.

In the first trial of Mrs. Collins' suit, the jury disagreed.

STAR DIVORCES VIOLINIST

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Nanette Guilford, sometimes referred to as the baby prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has obtained a Mexican divorce from Max Rosen, violinist. The grounds were incompatibility and non-support. The suit, brought in Sonora, was uncontested, her attorney said.

Rosen said he had not received notice of the decree but hoped the divorce would be a good thing for all concerned. Rosen and Miss Guilford were married two years ago after the most casual of proposals. She said at the time:

"I think I am the first bride ever yawned into matrimony. We'd just finished luncheon and were walking in Seventh avenue. Max yawned as though he were bored to death.

"'Ho, hum,' he said. 'What do you say to getting married this afternoon?'"

RACE BET RAIDS TRAP 175 MEN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Delaware County detectives raided two alleged bookmaking establishments in the Upper Darby business section and arrested 175 men. At both places elaborate sets of betting paraphernalia, such as racing forms, blackboards, adding machines and receipt slips were confiscated.

In the first raid about 100 persons were arrested, among them Harry Wagner and William Crawford, who were charged with operating a gambling establishment.

Seventy-five prisoners were taken a few minutes later in a pool room. They included David Mulligan and George Carver, of Philadelphia, and Cyril Daniels, Camden, N. J., alleged proprietors.

Each of the bettors was fined $4.50, and the alleged proprietors were held in $2,500 bail each for a further hearing.

RUNAWAY HORSE INJURES 25

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Twenty-five persons were hurt, one seriously, last night when a mounted policeman's runaway horse spread panic among thousands of amusement seekers lining the streets during Coney Island's biggest celebration, the Mardi Gras parade.

Frightened by a float, the horse reared, threw its rider, and plunged wildly into the packed throng, knocking over dozens of persons and trampling on others. The crowd, containing many women and children, scrambled for safety.

The horse ran for three blocks and was finally stopped by several policemen. Two dozen persons were taken to hospitals and treated for cuts and bruises. Police said an undetermined number of others were treated at drug stores and by ambulance surgeons.

What Length Coat Will Your Suit Have?

Your purpose is the sole arbitrator of the length of your new suit-ensemble's coat. If you wish a practical suit for business, shopping or campus wear, a full or seven-eighth length is chosen. (And the coat may be worn with other sports dresses). As the formality of the occasion increases, the length of the coat decreases—and we find hip-length or shorter coats with the most formal of afternoon ensembles.

The illustrated suit with three-quarter raccoon-trimmed coat is correct for semi-formal daytime wear. $79.50.

The unfurred tweed suit with long coat is typical of the suits worn for school or business. $39.50.

SCORE ROUTED BY SMOKE

Smoke spreading from a kitchen blaze in a rooming house at 528 Pressley street, today forced nearly a score of persons to flee from their apartments. Damage was estimated at $150, firemen said.

The house is conducted by Miss E. Horst and the flames swept the kitchen and spread into a hallway. Smoke penetrated to upstairs quarters and occupants were forced to leave. The first floor is occupied by Mrs. Lydia Reed, her four children and Mrs. Mary Curtis and her three children.

A canary bird, owned by Mrs. Sarah Kells, was rescued by firemen, none the worse for its experience.

Allen Awaiting Early Operation

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, who yesterday entered Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment, will be operated upon tomorrow or next day, it was said at the hospital. Senator Allen, who is a patient of Dr. Hugh H. Young, was reported to be in "fine condition" and that the operation was not regarded serious.

WOMAN FREED IN BOY'S DEATH

Daisy Lair, of 1601 Belasco avenue, was questioned by the coroner today in connection with the death of Jacob Schoepfer, 9, of 128 Pius street, who died of injuries received in an automobile accident.

She was freed of all blame in the fatality after a deputy coroner heard her statements and those of other witnesses.

Witnesses told police, they said, that the boy and his brother, Rudolph, 17, were riding on a bicycle at South Eighteenth and Monastery streets, when it crashed into an automobile.

The driver, a woman, assisted the boys, and when they went home, promised to call later and find out how they were, it was said. She failed to do so, but instead reported at South Side Police Station, after the boy died, officers say.

PRISONER FRAUD PLEAS STAND

The motion of the government to strike out the pleas of abatement entered by Attorney Samuel Y Rossiter of Erie Joseph Donovan and Lester Beals charged in an indictment with conspiring to substitute a federal prisoner was denied in a court order signed by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar.

In the indictment the defendants are charged with conspiring to substitute another man for Stanley Wells of Port Colborn Ontario reputed rum runner who never has been apprehended. James Patrone appeared in Federal Court on December 31 1929 and under the name of Wells pleaded guilty to the rum smuggling charge and was sentenced 60 days to the Erie County Jail.

Later the alleged deception was discovered by a member of the United States coast guard and subsequently an indictment was returned against Rossiter a well-known Erie lawyer Donovan an automobile dealer and Beals.

The courts denial of the motion to strike out the pleas of abatement will be followed by a hearing on the pleas involving points of law.

THE LOW COST OF FIRE INSURANCE

WHEN you buy fire insurance you pay for indemnity against loss. But each dollar buys so much more than mere indemnity that it easily ranks as one of the most effective you spend. You pay for reimbursement; you receive protection—before and after fire.

Stock Fire Insurance, even when considered as indemnity only, is one of the cheapest of present-day necessities. While the general price trend was upward, the average rate charged for fire insurance was downward. For more than twenty years the average cost in this country has consistently declined.

Notwithstanding this reduction in cost, the services rendered by the more than 250 stock companies constituting the National Board of Fire Underwriters have been increasing in number and scope.

For Good Measure:

For good measure, in addition to indemnity, these companies provide engineering and research that make life and property safer; great laboratories in which to test materials and devices; scientific measurement of fire hazards; building construction codes; arson detection and investigation; organized fire prevention—a multiplicity of activities designed to prevent the losses which no amount of insurance can ever repay.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

provides funds for rebuilding and replacement when calamity overtakes the policyholder. But far beyond that in value, to individual and to public, is the constant fight that is being waged to preserve the savings and investments of America's millions. A greater use of the facilities thus provided will add to the priceless results of true conservation.

BRITTEN LAUDS HEARST EXPOSE OF NAVY PACT

Publisher Aided Officials Balked by Diplomacy, Congressman Declares

By GEORGE HINMAN, Jr.
Universal Service.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Representative Fred W. Britten, Illinois, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, today was emphatic in his statement that William Randolph Hearst did a great service for the American people in exposing the secret naval pact between France and Great Britain.

In commenting on the recent action of France in expelling Mr. Hearst, Representative Britten said:

"Whatever may be the case in Europe, the people of America have not forgotten exactly what William Randolph Hearst did in giving them the text of the Anglo-French naval accord.

"At the very moment when Secretary of State Kellogg was in Paris to sign a treaty outlawing war, France was working with England to get the better of us on the seas, well knowing we had a strong pacifist sentiment at home.

WASHINGTON HELPLESS

"I believe President Coolidge and the State Department knew from a private source what France and England were planning to do, but for diplomatic reasons could not announce the fact to the people and so convince them of our continued need for a powerful Navy. They were helpless.

"Mr. Hearst came to their aid. He got hold of the actual treaty and published it. He let the American people read it and judge for themselves.

"He did his country, the American people and their government a very patriotic service.

"He has been expelled from France for having done it."

FRENCH "STUPIDITY" SCORED

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—(Universal.)—Commenting on the recent expulsion from France of William Randolph Hearst, the Portland Evening News says editorially:

"Nations and states can commit incredible stupidities. Sometimes they act as foolishly as the least wise of their citizens. And this is not surprising. For often the less intelligent rise to positions of power and determine national policy.

"So with the surprising expulsion from France of William Randolph Hearst.

"Out of this, Mr. Hearst seems to us to have come off with flying colors. His newspapers received excellent advertising. Their enterprise in 'scooping' the world with an important secret document is brought to the attention of millions. William Randolph Hearst, publicist, has been given the opportunity of recalling to public attention his firmly held views on the need of America's remaining isolated from European entanglements.

"As for the French government—its conduct is disappointingly childish. One would expect such petulance from Mussolini. It indicts Frenchmen of the same stupidity that our State Department committed in excluding the Count and Countess Karolyi, of Hungary, or the British Foreign Office when it barred Norman Thomas."

Trade Commission Fire Unexplained

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Failure to uncover any direct cause of the fire which destroyed the Federal Trade Commission Building on August 30 with a loss of about $200,000, was reported after an investigation by the park police.

Many important records of the commission's investigations were destroyed in the fire, but duplicates of most of these were found.

Three Get 5 Years For Car Tampering

WAYNE, W. Va., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Three men pleaded guilty before Judge Charles W. Ferguson to turning the angle cocks on a freight car to halt the train and permit them to alight, and were sentenced to five years' imprisonment each in the state penitentiary. They were Clifford Dillon, Pearl Waller and Amos Johnson, Negro.

Slayer of Cousin Quickly Convicted

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Lloyd Sine, 46, Goshen farmer, was tried, convicted and sentenced for second degree murder in Upshur County Court yesterday.

It took a jury 10 minutes to convict him for the slaying of his cousin, E. Cephus Sine, 45, and Judge H. G. Kump sentenced him to 16 years in state prison.

Pupils Extinguish Fire Near School

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The 25 pupils of the Grovania School dropped their studies long enough to extinguish a fire which was threatening their building. When a woodshed adjoining the school took fire the pupils formed a bucket brigade and extinguished the blaze before firement arrived.

KIN OF JAMES SUES MOVIES

LOS ANGELES Sept 9 (AP)—Descendants of Jesse James, early-day highwayman who settled his accounts with a gun, came into court to settle an alleged account with the movies.

Jesse E. James, son of the bandit, and Miss Jessie Estelle James, a granddaughter, are plaintiffs in a suit for $80,400 damages against Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky. They alleged an agreement was made to film the life of their famous forebear and then broken by the movie company. David R. Faries, executor of the estate of the late Fred Thompson, actor, is co-defendant.

Miss James complained that in January, 1929, she was induced by the film company to quit her stenographer's job in Kansas City, Mo., and come here to play the part of her great-grandmother, Mrs. Zerelda Samuels, in the Jesse James picture. She seeks $71,000 damages. The late bandit's son alleged he was engaged to write his father's life story, for which he was paid but $600. He claimed $10,000 was a reasonable fee for his services.

ACTOR SAVES PLAYGROUNDS

LOS ANGELES Sept 9 (AP)—Through efforts of Lewis Stone, motion picture actor, the City of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Playground and Recreation Commission were permanently enjoined from leasing publicly-owned tidelands in the Venice district for oil drilling.

Stone petitioned for the injunction when it was learned the city contemplated issuing leases on tidelands used almost entirely for recreational purposes. Superior Judge Harry W. Falk ruled an old state grant to tidelands for establishing and conducting a harbor did not include drilling for oil.

Largo" from Dvorak's "New World Symphony" and Schubert's Moment Musicale" have prominence in the Philco Symphony concert over WJAS at 9:30 tonight.

An old favorite of Billy Sunday revival meetings is on Sacred Songs at 7:30 over KDKA. "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow" is one of the better known hymns sung by Homer Rodeheaver.

"When Good Fellows Get Together"—part of Harvardiana—is on the Westinghouse Salute to Boston.

The Grogan organlogue at 9:30 is a picturesque visit to Austria.

THREATENING LETTER

Dear Editer,

I here youse are runnin a cletshun on yure paper. I am vaycashunin here from Chicago and I have my machine gun with me. Do you need eny help to keep the cletshun square? If not, tell any of the kandydates for offers I will help them win for a small some. My theme song is "Every Morn I Bring Thee Violence."

Yures for bigger and better cletshuns

P. S.—I am a union member M. G. Local 678.

We have referred the above e-pistol to the Thrasher-Myers Detective Agency: Walter Myers, chief; Allen Thrasher, bloodhound—and we expect to report the arrest of Ed Harvey any minute.

* * *

There's a clever boy, this Mr. Harvey. He did a Negro part in the Stub program last night as well as Phil Cook. An hour later he skilfully acted the very tough part of a city detective.

We ask for more features like Stubs. As "20 Stubby Fingers" how did you like George Preach and Marquis Chisholm at the pianos?

QUESTION A DAY:

Alfred Holmes, Kittanning—How much does it cost to broadcast the Eveready Hour?

A.—This program going over WCAE and the red network of NBC costs the sponsor $1,685 for 30 minutes, plus the cost of talent.

Strange isn't it? Billy Williams and Fred Rodgers, who participate in many band programs, were born in March.

RAGGIN' THE SCALE

Friend Darrell:

We tried over on our piano the few measures published in your column September 8, and find that it is not the same chimes you hear between programs. We herein submit the correct notation. Try this over on your zither, jewsharp, or any other instrument adapted to the rendition of chamber music, and I'm sure you will find it an improvement over yesterday's opus.

Sincerely yours,
ZOEL PARENTEAU.

Zoel's new composition, "White Flowers," is to be put on the air soon. Its theme is built around a poem sent Fred Rodgers.

SHORT STORY

Walter C. Evans, chief of Westinghouse radio operations, arrived in the city last night after four weeks' absence and picked the KDKA studios for his first stopover. Satchel in hand he inspected a few things and whispered something to Dwight Myer about something—no doubt a favorable comment on the inaugural program of the new Saxonburg station yesterday morning. The new plant was on the air again this morning with 50,000 watts and will be on again tomorrow morning at 7:45.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

Pope Next on Air — Why Not Kaiser? — Gibbons Leader — Gets High Salary — By LOUIS REID

Louis Reid.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The next world figure to reach the arm-chairs of the republic, if the plans of the radio rajahs do not fail, will be that of the Pope.

In less than two months the Pope, they say, will be able to open the Vatican city radio officially, using for his broadcasting purposes not the Italian language, as might be expected, but the more universal French and English. The station is the gift of Marconi, and its erection may account for the long stay of the inventor in the vicinity of Rome.

It was from Marconi that American ear-cuppers first heard an intimation of radio invading the Vatican. In an interview broadcast from his yacht early in the summer—that same interview in which his wife, called to the microphone, informed the gossip-hungry of the globe of a forthcoming heir—he told of plans of building the most modern radio station in the world for the express use of the Pope.

Only Few World Figures to Be Heard

With the Pope on the air, only a handful of outstanding world figures remains outside the radio ramparts. I can think of but a few—Mussolini, Shaw, Von Hindenburg, Papa Joffre and Wilhelm of Amerongen. With the passing of the years the interest of the ear-cuppers has decreased in Von Hindenburg and Joffre.

The greatest pant to the arm-chairs, or we have lost our usual skill at crystal-gazing, would follow the signal (LR) that Wilhelm was on the march to the microphone. Next to a non-stop flight around the world I can think of no more compelling lure to the listeners.

The rajahs of the radio are unquestionably alert to the vast appeal of a broadcast of the Kaiser. Nothing daunts them this side of Valhalla in their efforts to startle the world. And I'm not so sure they have not also given a thought to Valhalla. Giving the thought, they may already have assigned their wizards to evolving ways and waves of putting us in tune with the Infinite.

Certainly some such staggering idea—and I don't mean staggering in the usual sense—will have to be worked out if the radio men hope to progress in the broadcasting of the sensationally spectacular.

Though most of the large cities have equipped their gendarmes with radio no statistics are yet available concerning the success in tracking down criminals.

Church tenors, a spy reports, include the broadcasters every night in their prayers. Fifty per cent of the tenors heard on the air formerly sang in churches.

Most of the correspondents who have seen revolution in the making in various parts of the globe are now massed before the microphones.

Gibbons Still in Van Of Headline Hunters

Of those who have reported the ambushes of rebel generals for the breakfast tables of the land, Floyd Gibbons still has the front place on the springboard of the radio sea. It was his activity in the camps of rival armies, stretching from Mexico to Morocco, that was responsible for bringing him to the attention of the microphone's field marshals.

Writing a fictional glorification of a red Napoleon, he had sought the advice of Aylesworth upon the future possibility of radio reporting battles, shell-by-shell, direct to the peaceful parlors of the country. Aylesworth listened to adventures and straightway engaged him to relate them on the air under the snappy billing of "The Headline Hunter."

One of the best paid correspondents, Gibbons soon became one of that small but fabulous group of microphone stars whose greenbacks turn ever to yellow. At one time his salary was said in excess of $3,000 a week. His success was the result of a blend of astounding information of those places where life is lived in the raw and a knack of talking with the rat-a-tat speed of a machine gun. Over night he became one of the outstanding novelties of the air. Would he get through without missing a syllable? Without clearing his throat?

Soon he was handing out statistics upon prohibition with a reverberation that reach all the way from the Canadian border to the porch of Bishop Cannon.

His contract, originally made for a few weeks, was extended into months while the populace awaited the latest bulletins from Topeka. Vaudeville held up its golden finger and Gibbons responded, constructing a stage act about his microphonic manner.

Gales of Laughter Greet "Your Uncle Dudley" At Pitt Theater

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

IF YOUR BUTTONS are not sewed on tightly, this is a good week to stay away from the Pitt Theater and George Sharp's Players. Why? For the reason that "Your Uncle Dudley" is the funniest play that has been here in seasons. The audience last night laughed, and laughed some more, and roared, and roared till their sides ached. And the best thing about this display of hilarity was that it had a reason. "Your Uncle Dudley" is genuine humor, not cheap horseplay and wise-cracking, but comedy arising out of characters well drawn and well played.

George Seibel can't raise it.

Howard Lindsay and Bertrand Robinson, the authors, have woven their amusing plot around one of those lovable chaps who attend to everybody's business except their own. Uncle Dudley is the promoter who puts everything across for other people's benefit, but when he needs five thousand dollars himself he can't raise it.

That scene in the last act when Robert Fiske shows Hugh Banks how to say "No," after having had a course in the art himself during the morning is one of the rarest bits of humor in a play that is full of choice things. Fiske in fact plays the part with real unction, although it is intended for an older and more whimsical comedian. And he gets better as the play progresses, until toward the close when he calls up his office and finds he has forgotten his own telephone number, it would be difficult to imagine anybody else with that look of blank dismay.

LAURELS TO THE LADIES

The laurels of the evening however, go to the ladies—especially to Alice Ann Baker and Lulu May Hubbard. Miss Baker is a grandmother with a space of malice and more than a pinch of curiosity and Miss Hubbard is her daughter who dominates the family by all manner of tricks from sick headaches to pretending to drink Lysol.

These two character studies are so complete so rich in humorous detail, and so well portrayed by the two ladies that they could not be improved upon.

Jean May the new leading woman, has only a small part but she does this with exquisite comedy spirit. The little scene with Paul McGrath the new leading man, who also has very little to do—a little scene of calf love and awkward flashing for something to say—was done with a touch of girlish naturalness that reminded one of Maude Adams in her best days. George Sharp ought to revive "The Little Minister" for these new players—they could get the spirit of Barrie.

Mabel Kroman was fourth in the ladies quartet and as a kind-hearted Danish neighbor won the affections of the audience as easily as those of Uncle Dudley.

HUMOR THAT'S HUMAN

The only character that is not strongly individualized is the banker played by John Winthrop in true Fourth Avenue style—all the rest are bubbling over with humor that's human. The mother who is bound to force her daughter into a musical career, the grandmother who has become emancipated enough to be in for any deviltment, these keep the comedy moving fast and furious at all times.

Lindsay and Robinson have ideas—and not the old shopworn ideas of play carpenters—but merry bubbles from the depths of human nature.

What is more there isn't an off-color line or situation in the whole thing. It is as clean as it is funny. The audience laughed until it cried. "Your Uncle Dudley" is truly the best comedy that has come to Pittsburgh in years, and it's played to the queen's taste.

Millvale Citizens Learn How to Act

Doctors, teachers, bankers and business people of Millvale will assume military roles tonight and tomorrow when "Corp Eagen" a war-time farce is produced in Millvale High School under auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. There also will be a minstrel show.

WHISKERS, VILLAINY ARE TWINS ABOARD GOLDEN ROD

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

To know the audience spirit that put Hoboken, N. J., on the dramatic map some months back and kept an obsolete melodrama, "After Dark," as a rival of metropolitan theaters of New York for more than a year it is only necessary to visit the Golden Rod, floating theater of the kind that inspired Edna Ferber to write "Show Boat," which last night offered "Sweetest Girl in Dixie" in the first performance of the week's bill. It is the spirit that enables a group of people to amuse themselves. Just the old spirit of whoopee generated under stimulus of gregarious spontaneity.

PLAY EXCUSE FOR FUN

"Sweetest Girl in Dixie" merely is an excuse for rather than an exciter of this bubbling fun which the audience both makes and enjoys. What its all about is of no particular moment. Where it takes place is what is important. The audience knows it is an unusual place of entertainment, a place of humble pretentions but nevertheless a place the very shabbiness of which has romantic appeal. One is carried back to the old rep days of the drama and the inclination is to become gallery gods, hiss the villain and have a thoroughly good time.

WHISKERED VILLANY

That is what the audience did last night. That's what it does every night. It was just convenient that the villain was so old-fashioned as to wear side whiskers and that the hero had rolling eyes, that caused titters when he made love, and a manly smile, that caused cheers when he appeared in the last act to save the old homestead, and its Southern colonel owner and his beeyutiful daughter from the wicked rich gent of the lace curtain variety of whiskers.

But the wicked gent was rewarded by applause as well as being derided in sibilants. For lo, he appeared as an entertainer in the between-acts "vaudeville," and sang a comedy song or two—with gestures and trick effects, if you please. This good villain is George Clark. Vic Faust, looking mighty silly, played the cornet and did a few tunes on bells, too. George Carr incited the audience to lusty vocalizing using his sax to add to the noise. Be assured everybody had a good time.

DENIES DODGING PADLOCK CASES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—District Attorney John Monaghan has answered a criticism directed against himself and City Solicitor Augustus T. Ashton by Judge Harry S. McDevitt, in which the court asked why the two officials "ran away from" padlock proceedings.

Judge McDevitt, in Common Pleas Court, hearing padlock liquor cases, asked why the action had been brought by the state attorney general's office instead of the county authorities.

The judge asked Wilhelm F. Knauer, deputy attorney general, who prosecuted the cases, if there was not a local prosecutor who should bring the actions. Knauer replied that the cases had been handled on request made to the attorney general's office by Director Schofield, of the Department of Public Safety.

District Attorney Monaghan denied that his office had "run away" from padlock proceedings, saying:

"We have always been ready to co-operate, but some time ago it was agreed at a conference attended by the city solicitor that the padlock actions should be handled through Director Schofield and Mr. Knauer, who has specialized in these cases in the state."

PURSE THIEF, 19, ADMITS KILLING

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Described by authorities as "the most vicious criminal apprehended here in months," 19-year-old Rudolph Hegovic is held in jail, the confessed slayer of one woman, suspected killer of another and the accused assailant of two women shot in robberies.

Hegovic was arrested Thursday for stealing the purse of a woman and after a grilling confessed the murder May 22 in suburban Berwyn of Mrs. May Pelletier who, it previously had been established, was slain by a purse snatcher.

Hegovic also confessed, police said, that he had shot another Berwyn woman, whose name he did not know, "because she made the mistake of trying to hang on to her pocketbook."

Two women shot and wounded when they resisted a purse snatcher pointed out Hegovic as their assailant and another woman, crippled for life by a bullet, is to be given a chance to view the youth.

State Police Seek School Fire Cause

MERCER, Sept. 9.—State police are investigating the fire which destroyed the Piney school house in New Vernon Township. For several years two factions have contested in the township over the contract for hauling pupils to the school and over the hiring of teachers.

Kidnaper of Girl Gets Year and Half

FRANKLIN, Sept. 9.—Tom Clark, alias Tom Sweeney, convicted of kidnaping a 15-year-old Rocky Grove school girl and keeping her prisoner in the woods for three days, drew a term of a year and six months in the Allegheny County workhouse.

PICKERING'S TENTH AND PENN

Luscious Italian

PRUNE PLUMS

Perfectly matured fruit of uniform size and tart flavor. Thin skinned, heavily meated, with small freestone pits. Ideal quality for making delicious preserves or canning.

16 POUND CARRIER 89¢

RECIPE for CANNING

COLD PACK

Make syrup of 1 part sugar to 2 parts water, boiling for 3 or 4 minutes. Pack sterilized jars with fruit and fill with boiling syrup to within 1/4 inch of top. Put rubber on jars and partly seal; place jars in a steamer or in boiling water to cover tops to depth of about 1 inch. When water again boils keep it boiling from 20 to 30 minutes, remove jars, tighten, seal and invert to cool. If a kettle is used, place something in the bottom so that jars will not touch bottom of kettle.

OPEN KETTLE METHOD

6 pounds of fruit, 2 pounds sugar, 4 cups water. Make a syrup of sugar and water, boil 3 or 4 minutes, add plums which have been stemmed and rinsed, boil until skins crack, then can.

8 CARLOADS « « 12,000 BOXES

The first of the better grade fruits to arrive in sufficient quantities for "putting up." The growers are taking a big loss on these plums as the freight alone, on each box, is around 50c, so you can see that the price of 89c is an exceptionally low figure. While each A&P store has a goodly supply of these plums, it is advisable to get your order in early, as they won't last long at this price.

Bartlett Pears

Finely flavored, sweet, white-meated pears from the famous orchard section of New York State. Now is the time to put up a sufficient supply for winter use. The price is exceptionally low.

ASK 10 MILLION FROM ESTATE

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Claims aggregating more than $10,000,000 stood today against the estate of Elbert R. Robinson, Negro, who died on December 25, 1924, after fighting for years to win royalties from railways and street car companies on his claim that he invented the electric trolley.

Although Robinson left virtually no estate, approximately $3,000,000 in claims was filed after his death, based on notes signed by Robinson. Monday 187 new claims were filed in Probate Court, bringing the total to more than $10,000,000.

ELKINS ESTATE FIGHT SETTLED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins withdrew her objection before the District of Columbia Supreme Court to probating the will of her son, Stephen B. Elkins.

Attorneys for Mrs. Elkins said a compromise on the terms of the will had been reached, but would not be made public.

Elkins died in New York last October. His estate was valued at more than $140,000, and the will provided a life annuity of $1,000 monthly for Mrs. Evelyn I. Martin, of Hollis, L. I., gave her an apartment in New York and 4,000 acres of land in Virginia.

The mother charged Elkins was incapable of making a will, due to illness, and that Mrs. Martin had used undue influence. Former United States Senator Davis Elkins, of West Virginia, a brother, was named executor.

Given Life Term, Tells Judge He Prefers Chair

WAYNESBURG, Sept. 9.—Robert Fabi, sentenced to life imprisonment, told Judge A. H. Sayres he would rather have gone to the electric chair. Fabi, a Mather miner, was convicted of first degree murder for shooting his boarding house keeper, Mrs. Cecelia Guill, at Mather, July 7. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

INDICT OFFICER IN BABY DEATH

HAZARD, Ky., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—B. E. Hill, traffic policeman, was indicted for murder as a result of the killing of a baby when he fired shots in an attempt to halt a passing automobile. He was brought before Circuit Judge R. B. Roberts, and trial was set for next Monday.

The child was Norma Lee Maggard, 21-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maggard. Hill, arrested after the shooting Saturday night, told officers he fired at the tires of a speeding machine when it failed to halt at command and that the bullet must have glanced from the pavement.

And Buy a Pen.

Pick a school child's pen carefully—it's important to start him right

Good handwriting is a business and social asset. Start your child right. Talk to his writing teacher. Learn how important it is that every school child should have a good pen with just the right type of pen point.

Waterman's make their own pen points themselves. Buy the gold from the United States Mint, melt it in their own plant, and carry out every step of casting, rolling, stamping, tempering, tipping with everlasting metal for long wear, and grinding to more than ball-bearing smoothness.

They've been doing so for 47 years. Perhaps this is one reason why many people say "Waterman's write better."

There's a Waterman's to suit every purse. The pens illustrated are $4 and $5—many others higher or lower in price. All are fine writing instruments—and all will write even better if you use Waterman's Ink. For school use Waterman's new Blue Ink is particularly good—a clear, bright blue, easy to read and easy on the eyes.

Every Waterman's is guaranteed forever against defects. Service Stations are maintained at the addresses below for the purpose of making good our guarantee and for servicing our pens as required.

TIDEWATER COAL RATES HELD UNFAIR

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Court reporters, those ladies and gentlemen who take down in shorthand almost every word uttered in the courtroom, must have nimble fingers and quick minds. One, J. J. Bailey, who is in County Court, has had to take as many as 200 words a minute. Medical testimony, because physicians use technical terms, is hardest to copy. And lawyers who speak indistinctly are harder to take than lawyers who speak fast. The shorthand reporters prefer civil suits to criminal suits because civil suits are less noisy, more formal. Lawyers interrupt each other with little regard in Criminal Court, but in Common Pleas Court the proceedings are more polite. During political campaigns many court reporters are hired to take the speeches of the opposition, and these are extremely difficult because your average political speaker is fast, long-winded and indistinct at the same time. The reporters are paid a flat salary by the court. They make money on the side by selling copies of the testimony to lawyers.

At virtually no cost we have obtained exclusively the lost-articles report of the Pittsburgh Railways for 1929, this being 1930. You can imagine the difficulty attending such a feat.

We said to Joe Donley, the lost-articles reporter of the Railways, "Let me have that for the paper."

"Sure," said Joe.

By donning our pince-nez and glancing sharply at the figures on the extreme right of the report, we discover that 12,897 articles were lost. A second critical glance discloses to the amazement of all who are easily amazed that while 1,933 articles were being lost on the Greater North Side (this includes Emsworth, Keating, Millvale and Manchester) only 1,167 articles were lost in the Greater East End (including Rankin, McKeesport and Glenwood.) The better showing of the East Enders might be explained by the fact that they do not use the street cars very much for their summer picnics.

As for the lost articles themselves, umbrellas are far in the lead. Exactly 4,861 umbrellas were lost in street cars in 1929. Of these more were lost in May—770—than in any other month. We feel this is explained by the greater rainfall in May.

Money lost amounted to $2,779.27 and $2,064.08 was claimed by the owners, or somebody. In October, when the stock market crashed, the losses dwindled to $217.25. On the whole, the report is encouraging.

There's a prominent East Liberty undertaker who, several years ago, built himself a new mortuary. On the front wall he had erected an electric sign, filled with 100-watt lamps. Becoming conservative recently, he ordered the 100-watt lamps out and had 75's substituted. Watching the bill for two months, he failed to notice any reduction. Successively he had 60-watt, then 40, then 15-watt bulbs placed in the sign. But each bill thereafter was the same—there was no reduction.

He called the light company. Its agents were apologetic, and would investigate. Eventually, they did. A young workman found that the electrician who made the original light connection had tapped in on the company side of the meter, and that for all these years the undertaker had enjoyed light in his sign free. And now, they want him to pay up, which burns him up.

Estate of $10,000 Willed to Family

The will of Mrs. Laura Lemmert Day, 1145 Pemberton street, North Side, filed for probate this morning, apportions an estate valued at $10,000.

Her daughter, Miss Lois L. Day, gets the personal property and a half-interest in the home. The husband, H. B. Day, is to receive the residue. He is named as executor.

$75,000 Estate Bequeathed Family

The will of Albert Edward Evans, of 816 Grandview avenue, filed for probate this morning, disposes of an estate of $75,000.

To his wife, Mrs. Beatrice A. Evans, is given a life estate. The residue going to two daughters, Mrs. Bessie Lloyd Coveney and Mrs. Alice May Heslop.

DRAVO LEADS NATION IN BARGES

Ohio River Improvement Speeds Construction at Many Plants; Ways Filled

With 147 vessels contracted for or under construction, the Dravo Contracting Company here, builders of river craft, stands out as the leader of its field in the nation, joint figures issued today by the company and the Department of Commerce disclose.

Other companies operating here under favorable conditions, it was said, is an indication of returning prosperity and wider application of the Ohio River to industrial usage.

2,000 MEN EMPLOYED

Aside from this, the combined staff personnel of the various boat builders scattered on the three rivers gives employment to nearly 2,000. Of this number approximately 600 are employed by the Dravo Company.

Vessels under construction at Dravo plants include motor boats, coal and iron barges, sand barges and smaller industrial craft. Tonnage of the Dravo boats in construction or under contract totals 57,261.

OTHERS BUILDING

Among other boat building concerns, number of vessels and tonnage, listed in construction here, are:

American Bridge Company, 15 vessels, mostly barges, 6,404 gross tons; Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, two vessels, 640 gross tons; McClintic-Marshall Company, 17 vessels, 4,675 gross tons, and the Midland Barge Company, one vessel, 109 gross tons.

Most of the boats are of steel construction, using products that keep certain departments of steel mills busy when ordinarily they would be on only part time.

River craft captains and industrial plant heads say activity on the three rivers in the Greater Pittsburgh district has increased materially since the Ohio canalization project was carried through last autumn.

HAND CLASPERS SHAKE ON

Joe Cue and "Chuck" Mathews, West End's team of hand shakers were today still parading the streets of Elliott, after more than 156 hours of continuous shaking. Said Joe:

"We've covered about one-third of the 500-hour journey now. The way we be feel, if nothing unexpected happens, we'll keep it up for a long time yet."

The young men are permitted 10-minute relief periods every hour, in which intervals they take shower baths, have their arms massaged, or simply relax and do nothing. To date their hands and arms have shown no ill effects other than a slight swelling.

First Diving Suit Patented in 1693

The diving suit is not so new as one might think. A patent was granted to John Stapleton on March 17, 1693, for "a new engine so by him contrived as to permit a person inclosed in it to walk under water, and to a new invented way to force air into any depth of water to supply the person in the said engine therewith and for continuing a lamp burning under water; also a way to make the same serviceable for respiration."

DELAY CONCERT FOR PUPILS

The Rotary Club committee having charge of the Marine Band concerts at Syria Mosque Thursday afternoon and night, yesterday announced that the afternoon program will be given at 4 o'clock instead of 3, as originally intended. The change is in response to a request of the Board of Education, which pointed out that the early hour would interfere with the afternoon school study period.

Special tickets for the school pupils will be distributed in class rooms today and tomorrow. These will be exchangeable on the payment of 25 cents for any seat in the mosque for the afternoon program, the exchange being made at the mosque box office.

Proceeds of the two concerts will go to the relief of crippled children in the Boys' Club.

LUCKY GIRL

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Cathie Becomes a Victim Of Loneliness

CHAPTER XIV.

"Three generations, one no better than the other."

Cathie thought about it oftener than she meant to. It was absurd, of course, and the woman, Marguerite, was assuredly not quite right in the head.

"Is Marguerite responsible?" she asked Mr. Farnsworth one evening when she felt she just had to talk about it to someone.

"Responsible? Just what do you mean by that?" he asked mildly, laying down the evening paper.

"Responsible. You know—mentally?"

He smiled. "I doubt it. Why, has she been up to any queer tricks?"

"N—no."

"Well, you can get rid of her any time you want to. I've only kept her this long for sentimental reasons . . . um . . . Preferred Commodities is up again, that's good!" He had returned to the paper again.

Unless she pressed it, the matter would be dropped.

Disturbed
Remarks About Maid Stir Alfred

"What do you mean by sentimental reasons, Alfred?"

"Oh—because Alice, Chester's mother, you know, took her in. Her mother, a Mrs. Spinney, was housekeeper here in my father's time. The girl was supposed to be dying of tuberculosis when Alice found her. Put her into a home, gave her every care, and grateful? Never! Why we even paid her way through business college, but she couldn't or wouldn't learn. Just settled down to being maid to Alice and after Alice's death she stayed on as second girl. Perfectly useless," he grunted, "trying to help that class of people."

"Funny she stayed all these years," Cathie mused, thinking of that waving dark red hair that must have been so beautiful once, and the sullen eyes and bitter, sprawling mouth that was red and voluptuous still.

"Um. She did leave once, but she came back. The bad penny. Now! No more about her. I'm distressed that I didn't get rid of her before I brought you home. Deuced unpleasant character, Marguerite!"

He looked so genuinely disturbed, his smooth pink face flushed, and his mild eyes apologetic, that Cathie laughed, and laid her cheek next to his.

No Work
Cathie Finds Idleness Is Difficult

"Foolish! I've enjoyed her. It has given me something to think about. I . . . I haven't much to do here, you know."

If there was a note of wistfulness in her voice he didn't notice it. "That's good," he said, returning to the paper again. "Rest! That's what you need. You've done your share of work, dear. Rest and play, no more work!"

Rest and play. And no more work.

It sounded very nice, but Cathie was finding it more than a little difficult. Perhaps if she could have gone into a new home, one that she had planned and furnished herself, it would have been different. "Buy anything you want for the house. Have it all refurnished if you want it," Mr. Farnsworth told her, generously. But there wouldn't be any sense in doing that. The house was beautifully and completely furnished. She explored it slowly and carefully, room by room. There wasn't a thing left to buy. It was complete, from the silver paper knife on the library table to the orchid enameled hangers in the guest room closet, and the six dozen linen sheets monogrammed A. D. F. There wasn't anything that she could conscientiously throw away.

Servants
Told to Call All by Same Name

Farnsworth had had her room decorated in the modern style. It was a symphony in cool silver and gray, with unexpected, rather startling touches of dagenta and turquoise. A luxurious and beautiful room, but one that had no relationship or sympathy with the rest of the house. "Like me," she thought rather sadly, "all right, but not belonging very much."

The work of the house was done, as if by clockwork. Slim young boys, very American in spite of their slant eyes and yellow skin, stepped softly through the rooms, dusting or

CAMP RICHARDSON, Cal., Sept. 9.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Other nation's troubles are not gloated over by us, but it does seem good to be able to read of the revolutions in Argentine, Peru and Brazil and not read that "American Marines have landed and have the situation well in hand." If Mr. Hoover does nothing else but keep our Army and Navy at home, we can forgive him for not giving us rain, lower taxes and an inflated stock market. Won't it be wonderful if we ever live to see the day when any country can have its own revolution, and even a private and congenial war with a neighboring nation without uninvited guests.

FIGHTING FISH ON EXHIBITION

The Pittsburgh public is learning this week that there is more to the fish business than catching, selling and eating.

Rare fish, on exhibition at the Phipps Conservatory, North Side, according to Mrs. J. C. Schirm, manager of the Pittsburgh Aquarium Society, sell for as high as $75 a pair.

Spectators at the fifteenth annual exhibition of rare tropical fish, imported from Germany and bred in Pittsburgh by fish fanciers, yesterday viewed some of the rarest underwater specimens ever captured. The fish were put on exhibition by 15 Pittsburgh collectors.

Among some of the unique creatures on exhibition are the Siamese fighting fish that take the place of boxers in some countries, the Chinese walking fish and the Angel fish, that never has been bred in captivity.

Thousands of school children are expected to attend the exhibition during the week.

TRAFFIC TEST FOR TEACHERS

Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education division of the Better Traffic Committee, announced today that a teachers' traffic lesson contest will be held in public and parochial schools from October 1 to November 15. It will be the first contest of its kind to be sponsored by the committee.

The 4,500 teachers in the city will be permitted to write on "A Traffic Safety Lesson." They are to describe a traffic safety lesson they have used in one of their classes successfully.

The contest has been indorsed by Dr. Benjamin G. Graham, acting superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, and the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, head of the parochial schools.

New Judge Scores Jury's Slot Machine Verdict

Judge William H. McNaugher commented ironically on the outcome of the first case tried before him in Criminal Court today, when the jury acquitted Rudolph Weber and Arthur Gilbert, of Bloomfield, charged with operating slot machines.

Turning to Attorney M. M. Berger, who represented the defendants, the court said:

"I congratulate you, Mr. Berger. Mr. Weber was guilty and admitted his guilt. I hardly understand the verdict, but I am not the jury."

Judge McNaugher refused a plea to give the defendants six months to pay the costs, but allowed them 60 days.

In cross-examination, Weber had admitted a slot machine in the Silver Slipper restaurant, in the U. S. arsenal terminal, Thirty-ninth street, but denied that he had ever profited by it. Daniel McCaffrey, who installed the machine, recently ended his life by leaping from the Bloomfield Bridge, it was brought out.

PITTSBURGH MEN JOIN PROTEST

Complain That Charges Are Favorable to Southern Producers; Hearing Held

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The bituminous coal industry of Pennsylvania sought to convince the Interstate Commerce Commission that freight rates on coal shipped from northern and southern fields to tidewater were disproportionate and of advantage to the southern operators.

The complaint, which necessitated the current hearings, was filed by the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association and the Somerset-Meyersdale Coal Traffic Bureau. The Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, of Pittsburgh, joined the Central operators as a complaining body.

The complainants asserted in their petition that the base track delivery rates on bituminous coal shipped from Central Pennsylvania to Atlantic ports are excessive and should be remedied.

They pointed out that, due to a lack of natural facilities, they were obliged to make all rail shipments, whereas their Southern competitors may ship by rail to Virginia ports and thence to New Jersey, New York and New England markets by water. The rail-water routes, the complainants said, were disadvantageous to them.

The Central Pennsylvania operators were represented by Walter A. Jones, of Altoona; the Somerset-Meyersdale operators by Arthur B. Stewart, of Baltimore; the Western Pennsylvania operators by A. B. McElvaney, of Pittsburgh, and August O. Gutheim, of Washington.

ANTHRACITE NEW LOW

The Anthracite Institute filed an intervening petition. Any adjustment of rates would vitally affect the anthracite industry, the petition said, inasmuch as it participates in the same markets affected by the bituminous operators.

Other interveners included: The Chamber of Commerce of Delaware; The Broad Top Coal Operation Association of Pennsylvania; The Chambersburg Chamber of Commerce; Landis Tool Company; Universal Atlas Cement Company and the Pennsylvania Public Service Comission.

Charles O'Neill, former secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association, the first witness, testified from voluminous charts which, disclosed, he said, the increasing annual tonnage enjoyed by Southern shippers in the seaboard market. His testimony covered a seven-year survey of shipments from the two fields. In 1924, he said, 2,016,739 tons of coal from Virginia and West Virginia mines were trans-shipped at Hampton Roads, Va. These shipments, he added, increased annually to 1929 when 3,968,526 tons were shipped from that port.

CHARGES EXCESSIVE

Carriers serving the Pennsylvania mines, O'Neill said, made excessive charges for trans-shipped coal to the extent of six cents a ton at New York; four cents for outside and 16 cents for inside delivery at Philadelphia, and seven cents for outside and 17 cents for inside delivery at Baltimore.

In a summary, based on the rates he alleged to be excessive, the witness said a total overcharge since September 1, 1920, amounting to $6,768,777 had been made by the carriers on trans-shipped coal; and $21,466,667 on track coal.

The question of shipments within and without the capes came into the discussion engaged in by the witness, Examiner Peck and counsel for both sides. The carriers, the Northern operators contended, performed "a like service" for delivery in the domestic trade which embraced Atlantic coast markets, as was performed on shipments entering the export market.

Arrested When Raid Bares Still in Home

Joseph Rosere, 33, of 7113 Lemington avenue, was arrested early today when East End police, in a raid on his home, said they found a 50-gallon still, 10 barrels of mash and about five gallons of moonshine whisky. He will be arraigned today for keeping a disorderly house.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question:—Is it the duty of the back-seat driver to warn the driver of the car of danger or to keep quiet lest he make him nervous?

S. R. Todd.

S. R. TODD, tire shop manager, Oakland—It's the duty of all passengers to keep quiet about anything connected with the driving of the car. Most drivers can get along without assistance.

Miss Root.

MISS MILDRED ROOT, bookkeeper, Wilkinsburg—Back-seat drivers should keep quiet especially when there is any danger on the road. The driver who isn't annoyed can usually think in a much more efficient manner.

G. M. Mach.

G. M. MACH, Assistant shop manager, North Side—People not driving cars should keep quiet when others are driving. There is nothing more annoying than being bothered by people who insist on offering advice.

Nathan Saul.

NATHAN SAUL, Salesman, Squirrel Hill—Persons who are capable of driving cars should be able to do so without any aid from their various passengers. In the case of a sudden danger it sometimes helps to give a timely warning.

Miss Hartman.

MISS MARY HARTMAN, Stenographer, Pitcairn—Back-seat drivers should keep quiet for the sake of their own safety as well as for the sanity of the driver, who, nine times out of ten could get along very well without their help.

Howard Kerr.

HOWARD KERR, Salesman, East Liberty—More accidents are caused by back-seat drivers than are prevented by them. They are about the greatest nuisances there are to drivers.

How would you like to go to Bermuda and spend a week on those glorious, historic islands out in the Atlantic as a guest of the Sun-Telegraph?

These marvelous opportunities are now offered to girl readers of the Sun-Telegraph. There will be one de luxe trip to Paris and five de luxe trips to Bermuda, all expenses paid, from Pittsburgh and return.

The girl who gets the Paris trip will have a brief stay in New York as the guest of Gloria Swanson, who has completed her latest picture, "What a Widow," with a background that includes Paris and the wonderful trans-Atlantic liner Paris. The girl who gets this trip will have a week in Paris as the guest of Miss Swanson, will be allowed $200 to spend after cost of hotel accommodations are deducted. Inasmuch as the hotel accommodations are contracted for in advance at a special rate, there will be plenty of spending money left.

FIVE FOR BERMUDA

And now for Bermuda! There will be five tours given away for this glorious trip. Bermuda, you know, is one of the wonder spots of the world in historic interest, beautiful scenery, fine climate, coral reefs, and flaming flowers. The girls who get these trips will be given first-class accommodations on one of the Munson line steamers — probably the new American Legion, a palatial 21,000-ton boat. These girls will get everything that's first-class all the way from Pittsburgh to Bermuda and home again, including a week at one of the finest hotels on the islands. And they will be given additional money to spend.

That there is an enthusiastic interest in the Paris Bermuda contest was evidenced by the fact that scores of nomination blanks are already in covering all occupations open to girls—students, stenographers, cashiers, telephone operators, office girls, department store sales girls, teachers, home girls and others. Nominations will be open for, at least, another week but the earlier you get your nomination blank in the earlier you will get started. Send your blank in today.

For the purpose of a fair distribution in the award of these free de luxe trips, the classes of workers to whom the awards will eventually be made have been divided into five groups. There is to be one girl more fortunate than all the others in these five groups. She will get the Gloria Swanson trip to Paris. The trips to Bermuda, however, will be awarded so that one trip, all expenses paid, will be awarded to each group. This means that when the winning candidate for the Paris trip is announced, another girl in the same group wil also be given a trip to Bermuda.

ALLEGED SWINDLER OF WAR VET'S WIDOW TO RETURN HERE

FRAUD SUSPECT VISITS CONVICT PAL, CAUGHT

Man Accused of Taking $24,000 After Marriage Faces U. S. Mails Charge

Postal authorities here started proceedings today for the removal to Pittsburgh of John W. Wesley, 30, from Jackson, Mich., to face a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud Mrs. Jean C. Kennedy Holleran, of 2127 Oriole street, McKeesport, widow of a World War veteran, of $24,000.

John W. Wesley

Wesley, traced to various parts of the country by Postoffice Inspector George V. Craighead, was apprehended when about to enter the state penitentiary at Jackson, to visit John W. Orton, who is serving a 15-year term for bigamously marrying six women from whom, he admitted in court, he collected $18,900. Wesley and Orton were described as "pals" in cheating women out of their savings.

DESCRIBED "MANSION"

Wesley, while he is alleged to have been posing as the son of a wealthy real estate operator of Los Angeles, met Mrs. Holleran at a dance three years ago in Philadelphia. The meeting culminated in their wedding last December at Greensburg. Wesley, according to federal authorities, often described to Mrs. Holleran a beautiful home awaiting them in California, as soon as she could dispose of her property here.

In support of his description of the California home, he was said to have shown Mrs. Holleran a letter written by his "father," anxious for him to return home with his bride. Orton was said to have been the author of the letter.

Mrs. Holleran, who has a son, Billy, 4 years, made plans to go to California. She sold her home and furniture for $5,600 and withdrew from a safety deposit vault $17,500 in bonds, and disposed of other belongings, including jewelry. Early in March all preparations had been made for the trip to the West by automobile.

BUTTOR VANISHES

For the purported purpose of safe-keeping, Wesley is said to have taken charge of the bonds and other valuables. In the midst of the preparations, he disappeared. After waiting many weeks and hearing nothing of Wesley, Mrs. Holleran reported her blighted romance to the federal authorities, and described the letters that figured in it.

This resulted in Inspector Craighead preferring a charge of fraud against Wesley before the United States commissioner. In his investigation the postal inspector was said to have learned of another "marriage" of Wesley and of another alleged affair with a North Side woman. It was also learned that Orton, sentenced two weeks ago, was an associate of Wesley.

The postal inspector's suspicion that Wesley might try to visit the incarcerated swindler was correct and Wesley walked into a trap awaiting him.

LUCKY GIRL

polishing floors. Fat, middle-aged Chinese wearing thick-soled slippers and the inevitable white coats, leisurely washed, ironed and smoked in the basement regions. Cathie despaired of ever learning their names, there were so many of them. When she asked Cheong, the dictator who directed all this, he just laughed and said: "Him? Oh, you call him Charlie!"

"But surely they're not all named Charlie!"

Old Cheong laughed until his fat sides shook. "Chinese names are strange and difficult. Charlie serves as well as any, and is simple for an American lady to say."

"All right," Cathie said doubtfully. What else could she say? But it made her feel more like a stranger than ever. To think that she wasn't even to be told the servants' names!

Each morning he came with great ceremony to ask her preference in the matter of menus. "Would you care for artichoke cocktail this evening?" or "Would you like frozen custard for dessert?"

Monotony
Cathie Decides to Become Active

"Yes, that would be very nice," she always answered hurriedly, and Cheong's slant eyebrows would twitch ever so slightly at the corners. He knew, and Cathie knew that he knew, that she would have said yes, if he had suggested fried mush.

"Well, this can't go on," she decided after a few more days had gone by, and she had not found anything to fill the hours. "I'll have to join women's clubs, or take up some kind of study or I'll go crazy . . . I wish I knew more people . . . it's funny Mr. Farnsworth's friends don't call on me. Maybe they're going to snub me because I was a stenographer. Well, I don't care, I'll make friends of my own, or look up my old ones . . ."

She had thought that being married would make everything different. She had thought of being wafted into a world of fashionable women, interesting men. She had had little pictures of herself receiving in the afternoons, pouring tea, meeting new people. Going out, rushing busily from one engagement to another, telling people like Edna Grover and Addie White, "Of COURSE I want to see you! I'm just as fond of you as ever, only I never get a minute—"

And here she was with hours and hours, and nothing to do with them. She had called on Edna and Addie, and made them promise to come and see her, and they had come and sat stiffly in their best clothes, hardly finding anything to say, giggling nervously when Mr. Farnsworth's name was mentioned and they thought of Cathie, a wife. She had telephoned to Patricia O'Connell and Bess Green and all the girls she used to know and had sat in the drawing room beside the tea table for long, miserable, never-ending afternoons, waiting for callers who never came. She had begged Ma with tears in her eyes to come and have luncheon—tea — dinner, anything! "Later," Ma always said, "Later, Cathie, when the honeymoon's over!"

Later! How long did people think honeymoons last, anyway? Cathie wondered. Wondered, too, what a real honeymoon would be like . . . with a man like Gordon Moore—not Gordon Moore, especially, of course . . . just anybody young . . .

No, this couldn't go on. She'd have to do something . . . make friends . . . Miss Darrow! Marsha Darrow in the office. Why hadn't she thought of her before? They had been good friends toward the last. Why this very minute Miss Darrow might be accusing her of snobbishness thinking she didn't want to see any body in the office now that she was married to the boss . . .

Cathie reached for the telephone.

"Miss Darrow . . . I want to talk to Miss Darrow. Who's calling? Why, Miss Paige—I mean Mrs. Farnsworth . . . yes, I'll wait!"

HOLDUP FOILED, TRIO CAPTURED

Three men, described by police as "would be bandits," were being held in Clairton jail today for hearings, after having been captured by McKeesport police while fleeing from a Clairton gasoline station attendant who fired on them when they attempted to rob him, police said.

The men, Oscar Robertson, Negro, of Toledo, O., and Huey Cunningham and Carl Payne, Negroes, of Canonsburg, attempted to rob Joseph Dessing, attendant at the service station, police said.

Driving into the station, they ordered gasoline and handed Dessing a $10 in payment. Robertson followed Dessing into the station for his change, it was said, and when Dessing reached for his wallet, started to draw a revolver.

Dessing snatched his own gun from a desk drawer, and Robertson backed from the station, jumped in the car and was driven away, as Dessing opened fire. Later, while Dessing was talking with Patrolman William Hughes in front of the station, the automobile returned and the driver tried to run the two men down, police charge.

They again made their getaway, but were later captured in McKeesport after Clairton police broadcast a description of the machine and its license number.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Garden Scene Of Nicola Wedding

Everybody in the social world who's back in town was at the first of the fashionable autumnal weddings which took place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock when Josephine Nicola, daughter of the Oliver P. Nicolas of the Schenley Apartments became the bride of David Meade Gilmore, son of the Edward Gilmores, of Sewickley.

The setting for the wedding one of the most notable socially in the season, was the beautiful formal English garden of the Lewis A. Parks, Sewickley Heights place. Hillside bordered by evergreens and colorful with petunias and asters. An orchestra in a vine-covered summer house played the wedding music.

The wedding procession came down the winding stone steps from the house and down an aisle marked off by white satin ribbons. A fountain on either side of which were placed stone standards holding pink Japanese lilies, formed the background for the ceremony performed by the Rev. Dr. Allerton C. Howell of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of Sewickley.

Quaint Gowns

Very slender and graceful was the bride who was given in marriage by her father and she wore an exquisitely simple gown of shell pink satin having a suggestion of the graceful gowns of the poetic medieval days. Perhaps the view of the towers and gables of the home of which one has a glimpse from the garden heightened the impression. The gown was made with long tight sleeves and a full circular flare appliqued at the hipline in a spray of points ending in a long train in the back. Her interesting veil of tulle was arranged at the back of the head with two crossing bands of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids arranged in colonial effect.

Mrs. Lewis A. Park who was the matron of honor wore a gown of turquoise blue chiffon and net fashioned with quaint puff sleeves and a yoke of net with godets of net giving the skirt interesting below-the-knee fullness. Her hat was of leghorn straw in charming poke effect, trimmed with bows of blue ribbons at one side of the wide brim. She carried a Colonial bouquet of pink roses and orchids, bordered with delphinium and a ruffle of pink tulle.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Oliver P. Nicola, Jr., Genevieve Bell, Elizabeth Scott, Helen Murdoch, Virginia Goldsbury and Edith Wills, of Greenwich, Conn., wore gowns fashioned like Mrs. Park's, but made of orchid crepe de chine, and leghorn hats, and carried Colonial bouquets.

The two little flower girls, Leila D. Jones, daughter of the junior William Larimer Joneses, and Margaret Singer, daughter of the Harton Singers, wore similar handmade French frocks of blue batiste with capes of the same material trimmed with insertions of cream lace. Their hats were of leghorn, too, and they carried diminutive Colonial bouquets.

The mother of the bride wore pie crust satin with a hat of red-brown velvet, and Mrs. Gilmore, mother of the bridegroom, appeared in Alice blue crepe with hat to match. Harvey Childs, III, was the best man.

The ushers were Stewart McClintic, Oliver P. Nicola, Jr., Walton Scully, Clarance Stanley, John S. Laughlin, Lewis A. Park, Stanley Quay, William L. Standish, III, and Dudley Young.

Many Ushers

Also serving as ushers were William H. Harkness, Meade Keller, F. M. Gould, Alexander Neave, George Bowdoin and Staunton Williams, all of New York, K. A. Wood of Buffalo, N. Y., and Newell A. Augur, of St. Louis, Mo.

Following the wedding was a reception for 325 guests at the Allegheny Country Club. The bride and bridegroom received in the lounge of the clubhouse before a fireplace banked with ferns and palms. The bridal table, placed on the new terrace of the clubhouse, represented a Dresden garden, having a fountain, surrounded by primroses, playing in the center.

Tropical plants, white tapers in white candelabra, and tiny china Dresden figures completed the garden, surrounded by a diminutive hedge of delphinium, baby's breath, snapdragons, pink and white asters, budlia and larkspur. The smaller tables placed in the dining room had centerpieces of delphinium and asters, lighted by orchid and white tapers.

And before I tell you about some of the many guests at the event I want to mention that the Gilmores have gone to New York, from where they'll sail today for the continent. On their return they'll be at home in Sewickley.

I can't remember all the smartly gowned folks I saw, but I want to tell you about a few of the guests. Mrs. Alexander L. Robinson, who entertained for the bridal party, I noticed watching the ceremony. She wore blue and white chiffon and a leghorn hat.

Attend Event

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, back from Watch Hill, wore an ensemble of blue and white with a hat to match, and Margaret Stewart was in yellow crepe with a blue hat.

One of the new, popular wool lace gowns in an Edith blue shade, was chosen by Mrs. William Larimer Jones, Jr., with a blue felt hat to complete her costume. And I noticed Marjorie Gethoefer, who chose a rose chiffon printed dress and a black felt hat.

Among the younger set at the wedding was Jane Allderdice, in blue and white chiffon and a blue horsehair hat, and Virginia Wright in a smart midnight blue crepe dress, dotted in white, and made with a cape collar. Her small hat was of blue felt.

Mrs. James Verner Scaife I caught a glimpse of, and Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., who wore brown crepe with a novel yellow scarf and belt and brown velvet hat.

The H. N. Van Voorhises were there, of course, with Mrs. Van Voorhis wearing a brown chiffon printed in green, and a green horsehair hat.

Mrs. T. A. McGinley looked charming in a black lace dress and black hat, and her daughter, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, chose a simple flowered chiffon gown in orchid.

Smart Frocks

Mrs. Herbert A. May's gown was of dust pink crepe with a hat to harmonize, and Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock was striking in a gown of grey chiffon and a blue hat. Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., her daughter, wore blue and white chiffon with a hat to match. Standing near them was Mrs. John O. Bergwin in green chiffon with a hat to match.

Mrs. Charles L. Doyle was in blue and yellow and green printed chiffon with a blue hat, and her daughter, Rebecca, chose a turquoise blue crepe ensemble with a cape jacket and a blue hat to match.

Another guest was Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, in a white chiffon, pin-tucked dress and a white horsehair hat.

A blue crepe ensemble was chosen by Elinor Munroe, who wore an eggshell straw hat, and I believe I saw Elinor's mother, Mrs. James D. Munroe. Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., wore a black crepe suit, and Peggy Milligan chose a frock of white wool lace. Mary Oliver looked smart in yellow crepe, and Mrs. George H. Love wore a Kelly green crepe suit with a fluted green crepe collar, a peplum, and with godets of the same material inserted at the hem-line.

Miss Gertrude Mabel Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles King Jones, of Glenmore avenue, Dormont, has named Saturday, September 27, as the date for her marriage to Joseph Herbert Hershberger, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Herbert Hershberger, of Crafton, which will take place in the home of the bride, with the Rev. Dr. John S. Plumer officiating.

To Wed In Home

Miss Jones has chosen her twin sister, Miss Grace B. Jones, to be her maid of honor, and another sister, Miss Marjorie M. Jones, as bridesmaid. Wallace A. Coulter, of Crafton, will be the best man, and the ushers will include Charles K. Jones, Jr., and Thomas V. Hershberger.

TWEED FROCK FAVORED FOR ALL DAYTIME ACTIVITIES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—As long as we continue to go out in tweed, that material will show no signs of going out. It was exceedingly popular last autumn, but this year, it really seems to have come into its own and gone into every wardrobe. Tweed makes the bond that unites the sartorial plans of the society woman and the chic little business girl, for women everywhere are wearing tweed frocks for all daytime activities, save of course, absolutely formal functions. The little tweed frocks are trig and trim but none too severe. Neat but not too tailored, seems to adequately describe these frocks that have become the darlings of Parisiennes. And who can deny that we are living in sensible times, when women prefer plain tweeds to silken fabrics for general daytime wear. Nowadays, fashions are made principally for those women who like simple but effective clothes during the day, reserving their richest plumage for after dark.

AND HERE YOU SEE the little tweed frock in all its glory as interpreted by one of the best couturiers. Chantal makes this model in a brown, beige and white tweed mixture. An amusing plastron effect is used at the front on both bodice and skirt. In the latter case, the double plastron falls in two loose panels, overlapping at the knee. There is a brown leather belt, and at the neckline, the little tie which crosses the decolletage is of tweed with brown leather.

MOLYNEUX IS RESPONSIBLE for the very alluring dinner frock, which is one of the distinguished dresses of his new collection. It is of heavy black georgette crepe. The odd little tunic is evidently of Grecian inspiration, if we know our sartorial classics. It falls straight in back but at front is belted. The skirt has a deep flounce set-on in points at the top and pressed in loosely hanging pleats which stop about ten inches above the hemline which actually permits the ankles to be seen.

noon Monday, in the Round Hill Community Church in Greenwich.

The Rev. Sherwood Southerland Day, of Catskill, N. Y., officiated, assisted by the Rev. Alan R. Chalmers, rector of St. James Church, in Scarsdale, N. Y.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white satin with long, tight-fitting sleeves, having a double train attached to the long, full skirt. Her tulle veil was held by a cap made of lace worn by her mother, the former Helen W. Beaman at her wedding, and held by orange blossoms. And she carried lilies of the valley.

Mary Stacy Lakin was her sister's maid of honor and wore a sleeveless yellow chiffon frock, having a short cape and a long, bouffant skirt, trimmed with apple green velvet. She wore a picture hat of yellow straw and green velvet and carried yellow roses, larkspur and African daisies. Besides Mrs. Guest, the bridesmaids included Helen Elizabeth Shumway, Mrs. Charles H. Walker, of Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Archer Ewing Sinclair, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Frederick C. Shrady, of Greenwich, and Janet Williams, of New York. They all wore dresses of apple green, fashioned similar to that of the maid of honor, trimmed with yellow velvet, and hats of green straw with yellow velvet trimming. Their slippers were of green crepe with yellow bows, while those of the maid of honor were of yellow crepe with green bows. They all carried roses, lavender stock and African daisies. Small Helen Guest, the bride's niece, was the flower girl, and wore yellow crepe with a bow of apple green in her hair and carried a diminutive basket of yellow roses, lilies of the valley and corn flowers.

LANCASTER

GRAND PIANOS

A truly exquisite little grand at a price which we firmly believe makes it the most outstanding piano value available anywhere.

A similar sale last June resulted in an almost immediate disposal of the then available supply of these same Lancaster Grands. People bought them for their country homes, for their summer cottages, or as an extra piano for their town house. Many apartment dwellers and people with small homes from far and wide—bought them.

Now comes the opportunity for those who were unable to procure one then. This store has purchased the entire summer over-production of the Lancaster factory at a price concession that makes the phenomenal June sale price again possible.

CAPT BLAKE—"WHOS BILLY TREAT?"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Zelma [illegible] found in [illegible] by [illegible] Welling [illegible] parents [illegible] death [illegible] and both [illegible] window [illegible]

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER II

"Sounds [illegible] Capt Blake [illegible] of his head [illegible] and supposition [illegible] barred door.

"What [illegible] Dale set [illegible] different track.

"Someone [illegible] hours. [illegible] man. He ought to be here soon."

"Let's look [illegible] dows.

A careful examination of every window [illegible] showed [illegible] latched. [illegible] there was an [illegible] grill outside each of the windows. The [illegible] was searched. He was [illegible] and excited at it was with difficulty that Blake obtained [illegible] standable [illegible]

The [illegible] testimony were these. No one except himself had gone into the apartment prior to the arrival of the police at 8 o'clock. Zelma Shaw's chauffeur had come in and asked the boy to announce that the car was waiting outside as she had ordered the evening before. The chauffeur had gone back to the car while he had tried to connect with her apartment. After ringing for some time and getting no answer the boy had gone to the door and knocked. After pounding the door for some time he became alarmed, especially as he knew that two people had been in the apartment all night. Finally he had forced the door and saw Oscar Welling stretched out on the floor and had run to the street calling for a policeman, knowing there was one on traffic duty at the next corner.

"What time did you come on duty?"

"Seben o'clock, boss. Ah allus comes at seben."

"The night man was still here?"

"Abraham never leaves foh Ah come, he was dere, sho 'nuff. Who done this killin', boss—who done it?"

"We're not sure yet, Jackson."

"That woman sho' had plenty men—plenty men. Mebbe she got coupla dem men mixed up."

"That's not a bad idea, Jackson—not bad at all," Dale said thoughtfully.

After Jackson went back to his station, Robin Dale sauntered about the room. Something on the table behind the lounge attracted his attention. He picked up a slip of paper and read a few words written on it and called Sergt. Jardin as Capt. Blake was in the boudoir with Phelps.

"What do you make of this, Sarge?"

Jardin read the few words. They were written in pen and were rather cryptic.

"You win—I pay. M. W."

"W—that might mean Welling," Dale said. "What's his wife's name?"

"Myrtle. Myrtle Welling."

"M. W.—an interesting coincidence."

"Where was this?"

"Stuck in that box of chocolates and there's one missing."

"I'll have Doc give these the once over."

Jardin wrapped up the chocolates and pocketed the card for a later report to Capt. Blake. Just then a policeman came in with Abraham Wilson, the colored janitor.

"I suppose you know there was an accident here last night," were Capt. Blake's first words to Abraham.

"Jackson done tol' me ah. Is confoundered. You doan think it was me, sah?" Abraham suddenly became frightened.

"No. I just want you to tell me what happened last night."

"All 'bout Miss Shaw you wants to know?"

"Yes, everything that went on and who called on her."

"Le me see. 'Bout 9 o'clock the first visitor came. I neber seed her befo'. I knows it was 9 o'clock 'cause Emiline, Miss Shaw's maid, goes home then and she let the lady in and then went away. I didn't hear no sound fo' long time an' then the lady leave. Pretty soon Billy Treat come an' go in to see Miss Shaw."

"Who's Billy Treat?"

"He's good frien' ob Miss Shaw, calls reg'lar."

"What time was that?"

"That was 'bout, le me see, 'bout 10 o'clock. He was still in there when Mister Brandies walks in. He am Miss Shaw's lawyer-feller. That makes two in dere. Pretty soon Billy Treat comes out an' says good night an' leaves. Soon there was loud talkin' but I couldn't understan' notsuh. 'Bout ten-thirty mah board buzzes an' it's Mister Shaw tellin' me to call Mister Welling. I knows his number an' Mister Welling is dere waitin'."

"What did they say to each other?"

"I doan' know—I doan' know that 'cause I neber lissuns to no telephone calls. Fifteen minutes late Mister Brandeis comes out and rushes pas' me an' I seed he was terrible mad an' 'cited. In a little while 'jus' at 'leben o'clock, Mister Welling comes in, unlocks the doah with his key an' goes in."

"You're sure that was eleven?"

"I knows it was 'leven 'cause I was jus' goin' close the side doah. I allus locks the servants' doah at 'leben and Jackson opens it at seben in the morning."

"You never left the board during the evening?"

"I neber lef' that no time at all, suh—no time."

Suppose we have a look at that servants' entrance, captain," suggested Robin Dale.

NEW RCA RADIOLA SUPER-HETERODYNE

"a great advance in radio reception" says MARCONI

Senator Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of radio, testing one of the first of the new models of the new Radiola Super-Heterodyne at his home in Rome, Italy.

Sensational new instrument ... thrilling new performance ... at a remarkably low price!

The greatest compliment a radio ever received ... Marconi calls the new RCA Radiola Super-Heterodyne "a great advance in radio reception .. a splendid contribution to the art!"

As the inventor of radio ... as the courageous pioneer who first made it practical ... as the brilliant leader of the science for 36 years, Marconi's judgment must indeed be respected.

After seven years of scientific development ... after seven years of RCA sponsorship of the Super-Heterodyne principle ... after an investment of millions of dollars in research ... the world's most brilliant radio engineers now bring out the new RCA Radiola Super-Heterodyne!

A radio so far advanced ... so skilfully engineered ... so highly perfected that even Marconi, himself, was moved to praise it!

This new Radiola is not merely twice, not merely three times, but four times more sensitive than any recent model ... three times more selective in getting the one station you want ... without interference from others ... without hum!

It reproduces the broadcast superbly ... voice for voice ... instrument for instrument ... tone for tone ... note for note!

The greatest value in Radiola history! In 1926, the Radiola Super-Heterodyne cost $570. Today, this highly perfected Radiola comes to you for the unheard of low price of $142.50, less Radiotrons.

Hear its thrilling tone ... see its exquisitely designed, well-built cabinets ... you'll agree that only the world's greatest manufacturer of radio could offer so much for so little ... Since the best now costs no more, why not own the best?

A nominal down payment secures immediate delivery from most dealers. Ask your dealer about easy terms and liberal trade-in allowance on your present set.

NEW RADIOLA SUPER-HETERODYNE model 80 illustrated—with screen-grid, nine tuned circuits, latest electro-dynamic speaker, illuminated precision dial, push-pull amplification, improved "local-distance" switch, no A. C. hum, and beautiful new cabinets by famous designers.

LONG'S MILITIA GUARDS POLLS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9. (AP)—Louisiana voters were involved today in perhaps the bitterest battle since reconstruction days—the Democratic senatorial contest between Huey P. Long, 37-year-old governor, and Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, who has spent 31 of his 72 years in Congress.

A battery of militia was ordered out last night for "overnight drill." For some time it had been freely predicted that the National Guardsmen might be called upon for election day duty, but the adjutant general denied the Guardsmen had been "mobilized," saying the drill was not unusual.

Opposition workers charged that Samuel Irby, former state highway employe, and James Terrell, divorced husband of the governor's private secretary, taken by state officers from a Shreveport hotel Thursday and missing since were being secreted by Gov. Long. Irby had announced his intention of suing Long for slander.

One Killed, Two Hurt In Smethport Crash

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 9.—(AP)—A man was killed and two men were injured in an automobile collision near Smethport last night.

Mark Caldwell, of Elmira, N. Y., was killed. Harry Tanner, of Pine Creek, N. Y., and Robert Halstead, a student at the Indiana Teachers' School, were injured. Paul J. Bowen, of Kane, Pa., driver of the car which collided with the Caldwell machine, was charged with manslaughter after the preliminary investigation. He was driving while intoxicated, the authorities here allege.

Kurd Rebels Routed By Turk Offensive

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The government today announced that the Angora offensive against Kurdish rebels in the Mount Ararat region had developed successfully and that the back of the resistance had been broken.

According to the report the Kurds are retiring in a southeasterly direction followed by Turkish forces which have occupied strategic positions.

Operations in the zone adjoining the Irak frontiers will be commenced soon.

Politician Granted Plea in Rum Graft

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Judge James Gay Gordon, Jr., has granted permission for the filing of an appeal for parole in behalf of Matthew Patterson, former state legislator and Republican ward leader, of Philadelphia, who is serving a five-year prison sentence for collecting graft from saloonkeepers.

Patterson, with Charles W. Schoenleber, former commander of a police district, was convicted in October, 1928.

MONEY TO BE MADE BY HOME CANNING AROUSES HOUSEWIVES

Higher Prices Loom for Canned Goods Bought Next Winter

All over the country women are realizing that if they put up fruit now they will have extra money in their purses next winter. Even the newlywed is being attracted by the unusually low price of pure cane sugar and choice fruit and is pleasantly surprised at the ease in putting up a nice variety of preserves, jellies and jams.

For the woman who takes pride in her menus, there is real satisfaction in putting a quivering colorful mold of her own home-made jelly on the table. And if she appreciates the value of fruit in the balanced diet, she will be happy in the fact that her shelves are well stocked with preserved pears, plums, peaches or other fruits.

Sweet pickles and relishes made of cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage or watermelon rind are also inexpensive and easy to preserve. Their spicy tart-sweet goodness encourages the consumption of essential foods such as meat, fish and vegetables. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

Latest Clue Fails In Mexico Slaying

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—(AP)—With the release of Harry Harmon, 23, Wichita (Kan.) oil worker, police today were without a tangible clue pointing to the slayer of Miss Lois Kentle, Los Angeles sorority leader and her fiance, Francis Conlon, stabbed to death at Ensenada, Mexico.

Harmon was arrested by police who noticed a bullet hole in the windshield of his automobile. Later he convinced officers he was not in Mexico on the day of the murder.

Adams Strikes Prince Who Annoys Raquel

CHAPTER XLVIII

"Tony" Johnson's night club was no different from the others Raquel had visited in Montmartre, except that it was more so. Things zoomed along at a faster tempo. It was more feverish.

The small dance floor had been encroached on by the service department until only a tiny square remained free of tables. In this square men and women from all strata of life in every clime danced without seeming to move out of their tracks.

Darting in and out among them was Tony, helped by the back and shoulders a gleaming sheen of copper under the dim lights. Her bodice if so slight an attempt at the conventions could be dignified that term was of gold sequins. Her flaring tulle skirt of a ballet dancer was the exact bronze shade of her skin. Her black hair was parted, plastered to her head and brought out over her cheeks in long "hooks after the style of a bold Carmen.

"In a minute she'll hop up on a chandelier and begin tossing cocoanuts," Greta predicted.

Another table was wisked out from somewhere and placed on the already cramped floor. Bertie and Ginger were known in Tony's.

They tried to dance. It was impossible. Raquel gave it up. The close pressure of other dancers sickened her. Greedy eyes. Stale tobacco. Strong drink.

They watched the fun. Now "Tony" was darting among the tables, greeting patrons, passing out handfuls of small spheres that looked like snowballs from a great basket. A waiter followed with miniature papier mache tennis rackets.

Guests began batting the "snowballs" back and forth in the crowd.

Bertie Hits Man

Soon Raquel noticed that a man at a table directly to her left had singled her out as a mark and was hitting her with unfailing regularity. She saw, too, that the woman with him was no admirer of his skill. The woman sought to divert him. Failing, she showed pique. Then temper. He ignored both.

The man, Raquel could tell, was French. So was the woman. She frowned, turned her shoulder with a gesture of displeasure. The unerring aim was now directed at the point of her shoulder.

She hoped Bertie and Ginger would not notice the man's persistence. The "snowballs" were playing a steady tattoo. She turned, gave the man the full benefit of her stormy black eyes. He smiled at her, twirled the ends of his tiny black mustache.

"Le Lis Noir—superbe," he said in a voice that could be heard plainly by the others at her table.

"He called you 'The Black Lily—beautiful,'" Gretta giggled. "There's a name for you!"

The next moment her amusement changed to concern. Bertie had risen, thrown back his chair with a force that sent it hurtling across the dance floor, temporarily deserted. For a moment Bertie towered above the man with the black mustache, whose smirk was frozen on his face. Then there was a sharp report as Bertie's open hand slapped the other full in the face.

A Prince

Raquel saw the woman reach for her glass half-filled with wine. She was going to hurl the glass at Bertie. Raquel leaped forward. Her hand darted for the woman's wrist. She could feel the soft flesh where her nails dug into it. A cry of pain. The woman dropped the glass.

"Quick," she heard Ginger saying close to her ear. "This way." Greta had her hand, was dragging her through the clamor that followed the first hush following the blow.

She was in a taxi-bab, in a dark street with Greta. The taxi was standing still.

"We'll wait here," Greta said.

"What for?" Raquel's voice was low, even.

"For Bertie and Ginger. You didn't think we were going to leave them flat in that howling mob, did you?"

"Will anything happen to them?" coolly.

"Will anything happen? It's already happened! Do you know who that bimbo is? The one Bertie opened fire on? Nobody but the Prince de Rochelle. The biggest gun in Paris."

"I don't care if he is the [illegible] Raquel said. "And that dame with him! She was probably the Duchess of Kazan [illegible] You gave her [illegible] treatment, dearie."

"I should have given worse [illegible] who says so. The little old lady at Number Broadcasting Master. You're right, but we haven't heard the half of it. If this doesn't get into the papers, I'm no judge of hot news."

"It can't be helped," Raquel's voice was matter of fact.

Time Worries Raquel

"Gosh," said Greta, shaking a puzzled head. "I don't get you, dearie. One'd think you'd just won a hand at bridge instead of a battle in Montmartre."

"What can no longer be cured, must be endured," said Raquel. "The thing has been done. We must make the best of it. It is useless to waste strength on vain regret. I wish Bertie would come. It must be nearly morning."

Bertie did come just when Greta and Raquel were on the point of giving him up with Ginger puffing in his wake.

Both men belittled the encounter. They were pleased to treat the affair jocularly, aside from an apology that it had occurred at all.

Yet Raquel felt sure that Ginger's good humor was forced. That underneath it was a current of anxiety.

"Listen, dearie," Greta said when they were nearing Raquel's hotel. "I've got an idea. You stay with me. Unless they've set a guard at every door of the Ritz, they'll never know what time we checked in."

"But what will Alphonse think?" asked Raquel. "He'll surely learn from Lola, that nosey maid, that I was away all night. However, if you think it's best——"

"Sure. It's best. We might as well give Nosey a night of it. I'll bet she's fit to be tied right now. What a total loss she is as a detective. With a nose like hers, she ought to be an inspector."

"Raquel," Bertie said, as he left her with Greta, "if you'll let me take you to the opera, I'll promise not to pick on a single prince." His voice was pleading.

"Oh, but you must," Raquel said gravely, "if he's a boor."

Bertie Challenged

Her hand lingered in his, returned a warm pressure. His free hand rumpled his fair hair where it swept back from his clear brow. He had not stopped to retrieve his hat in the night-club of "Tony" Johnson.

For an hour after they were in her room Greta gabbled. Then she fell into a deep, if troubled, slumber.

Raquel did not sleep. When the faint flush of reluctant dawn turned into the thin gold light of day, she rang a bell and sent for the morning papers.

"All that are printed in English," she ordered.

The first paper she opened proved her prescience. She had known all along it would carry an account of the affair in Montmartre. But she had not foreseen this:

"PRINCE TO CHALLENGE POLO STAR"

"Following brawl in Montmartre, young French noble declares he will avenge blow on field of honor.

"Prince Pierre de Rochelle soundly slapped by Robert (Bertie) Adams for alleged affront to woman companion.

"'Tony' Johnson's night club scene of trouble.

"Woman said to be beautiful young Spanish visitor in Paris, escapes without identity being learned.

"Prince de Rochelle, with long dueling record, France's most sensational swordsman.

"Adams is expert polo player and horseman.

"Authorities will take steps to prevent meeting."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pittings and scars left by acne can be corrected, but only by means of plastic surgery. Whether or not this treatment should be given depends upon how much tissue has been destroyed. Only the expert medical man should do the work.

The thin girl who yearns and hankers for curves should spread much butter on her bread. She should begin the day with a cereal, rich with cream and sprinkled over with sugar. She should top off each meal with a glass of cream and milk—half and half. And sleep nine hours every night.

The marcel iron does no harm to a permanent wave. If it picks up the pattern carefully it will make the design stronger and better. The iron must not be hot, and if the hair is slightly moist so much the better. Ringlet ends of a long bob can be formed into circles, fastened with an invisible hairpin and dried. A cluster of flat curls placed back of the ears, with the ears out in the open, is a mode that is chic and sassy.

Simplicity of Garb Is Essence of Being Well-Dressed, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Women think a great deal about clothes these days.

It is nice to see them all trying to look their best, but in dressing one must also consider one's background.

Slinky vampish lines are lost in tiny kitchennette apartments, and are as inappropriate as would be a crisp gingham housedress in an exclusive cafe.

One sometimes sees a girl in evening dress walking along with her boy friend in a business suit. This makes them both look out of place.

Simplicity in taste is always safe.

But husbands who wonder why their wives cannot look as well as some women they see in simple lines should remember that some of these simple things cost five times as much as more elaborate dresses.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Drama of Robert's Farewell Meeting With Lillian

I turned swiftly away from Robert Savarin's bedside as I saw the sick man's arms go out to Lillian and heard his hoarse little cry of "Lillian, my love." This last meeting of the dying artist and the woman he had loved so long and so hopelessly was too sacred for any eyes to witness. But before I could turn I had seen Lillian drop to her knees by the bed, his arms encircling her. And as I was going through the door I heard the sick man's voice in an ecstatic murmur.

"And you wore that dress for me—the dress I love so well. Oh, my dearest! I——"

The closing door put a period to his words, and the nurse, who was standing in the hall, turned to me.

"He is all right—so far!" She asked.

As far as I could determine," I answered. His voice was stronger than when I was here a minute ago and he seemed more animated."

"Then I am sure everything will be all right at any rate while Mrs. Underwood is here," she said with distinct relief in her tones. "It was the first moment of seeing her which I feared. That passed safely, her visit will do him more good than harm."

"You cannot mean a permanent good?" I asked incredulously.

"Oh, no," she returned gravely. "The end is inevitable shortly, of course. But this visit may make it a matter of two or three weeks, when we have been estimating it in terms of days or even hours. There is great stimulation in—— Will you be outside here within call while she is in there?"

I guessed the word "happiness" which she had left unuttered, and the reason for her request.

"Yes," I answered, making my voice cordial. "I shall stay right here."

"Then I will go downstairs, if you do not mind," she said. "But I shall be within hearing."

"I do not mind in the least," I assured her, "and I am sure I shall not need you."

She nodded and left me, and for the next quarter of an hour I stood motionless, with tautened nerves, while from the sick-room came the almost indistinguishable murmur of voices, alternating with brief silences. At last Lillian's voice rose clearly in a single summoning word, "Madge!" and I went into the room, to see Robert Savarian beckoning me. Patently he had changed his mind about not seeing me again. As I reached the bed he smiled up at me with a look so filled with eerie unearthful happiness that I involuntarily shivered, and gestured toward Lillian, who was standing now, with her right hand prisoned in both his.

"Take care of her," he whispered to me, as he lifted her hand and laid it in mine. "And remember!"

But he did not look at me as he spoke the words. His eyes were fixed steadfastly upon Lillian's face, although he spoke no word of adieu to her, and then he wrenched them away from her living face and rested them upon the portrait which he had painted from memory, and which stood, as he had written her, at the foot of his bed, where it was never out of the range of his vision.

Only one more word came from between his parched lips. It was uttered explosively:

"Hurry!" And a side glance at Lillian's pallid face showed me the reason for his mandate. There was a choking in my throat as I obeyed him, and led Lillian firmly from the room, my arm around her. For I had seen plainly that Robert Savarin had deliberately cut short these last few minutes of bliss accorded him because he had realized how the interview was ravaging the soul of the woman he loved.

That the realization had also penetrated Lillian's consciousness I knew when at the door her body stiffened and she tore herself away from my arm with a little cry and ran back to him.

"No, no, not yet, Robert, not this way," she said softly, and then I saw her bend her face to his and knew, though I hurried out of the room with averted eyes, that their lips had met in a long kiss of farewell.

It was five minutes more before she came out to me, with no backward glance and shut-

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, September 10

Generally adverse planetary forces may be said to bear rule in the events and circumstances of this day. Disturbing and disintegrating forces seem to be operative, unsettling affairs and wielding frustration and futility. New projects are unfavorably aspected, and there may be an abrupt change or travel, but with the financial status under hazardous away but little good fortune may be looked for. The tendency to strife, violence and litigation should be suppressed.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of disturbance and possibly tumultuous conditions, with little to be gained, although there may be sudden change or journey. But new undertakings and finances are critically aspected, and all affairs may be complicated by litigation, disputes and rash and tempestuous conduct. Deliberation and self-control may turn the year to success.

A child born on this day may be talented, resourceful, bold and adventurous, but inclined to be roving and restless and also to take long chances and to gamble or squander its funds. It should be given training and discipline in self-control and discretion.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Vice of Giving 'Advice'

Next to long gloves with a backless evening gown advice is about the most useless and uncomfortable thing in the world.

Everybody loves to GIVE advice—but nobody likes to listen to it. And, nobody ever TAKES it.

Most "advice" is merely criticism, artistically camouflaged with a pretense of solicitude, sympathy or love. Like cabbage salad all dressed up in lettuce leaves and mayonnaise and served under a French name, it disarms you until you try to swallow it. Then you recognize the flavor.

Giving advice is one way of insulting your best friend, and telling him just what you think of him and how little you respect his intelligence, without leaving him a chance for a come-back.

Advice usually begins with "Well, you know what a fool you made of yourself in that last affair."

Or, "How did you ever THINK of doing such an idiotic thing?"

* * *

Or with, "Don't be silly! He's only telling you what he tells 'em all."

* * *

It always begins with a slam at your vanity, your common sense or your amour propre—and ends with an "I-told-you-so!"

Your worst enemy is not the cheerful prevaricator, who fills you with applesauce, but the ever-ready little "adviser," who is constantly filling you with a fear-complex or an inferiority complex and cramping your style and your ability to think for yourself.

It's all right to tell a man that the road is bad or the bridge ahead is weak; but it's useless to advise him to turn back or to take the detour. Because, he'll do as he pleases, anyhow.

And it's all right to tell a woman that a man is weak—but it's a waste of breath to

"advise" her not to marry him. For how do YOU know that she wouldn't be happier with a charming weakling, whom she could mother, than with a masterful "sturdy oak" who would rule her or bully her?

How can you or I or anybody know that a man won't be happier with a pink-and-white dumb-bell who will jolly him and gold-dig him, than with an intelligent, efficient, worthy young woman, who would overshadow him or patronize him or try to "reform" him?

Until we all have second-sight and can visualize a cross-section of the human mind and heart or read the future in the stars, we are playing with dynamite, when we give "advice." For, no two human beings look at life or the world from the same angle, or see the same visions in the heavens. And no one human being, however wise or clever or altruistic can mold or plan another adult human being's life, without wrecking it.

* * *

If all the "good advice" that has been followed were placed end to end, it wouldn't be worth a Rockefeller nickel.

* * *

Never take "advice," if you can help it — and, above all, never GIVE it!

That's MY advice!

TELL IT TO SALLY

Just Around the Corner There May Be Sunshine for You

Remember Broken-Hearted Ann, whose Boy Friend had given her the Go By and who threw upon took to tantrums 'n' tears and a "nervous breakdown" which soared the family into fits 'n' nicked all their spare cash . . . and some not so spare . . . for doctor bills?

Callie has a word for her. Callie's heart has been busted, too . . . but with oh, what a difference. She too had a bitter hurt. But did she turn her face to the wall and moan "I want to die?" No, Eva. She did not. She——

But read it for yourself.

And while you read it, salute Grit! Salute Courage!

Dear Sally Martin—

This is the first letter I've ever written to any newspaper, but the article about Broken-Hearted Ann touched me so deeply that I felt I just had to speak up and tell her what happened to me and how I came out of it.

You see I went through the same heartache that is bowing her down so terribly just now.

I went through it, yes. But did I let it put me on the skids? Not by a jugful!

You see I knew Bill, and went with him pretty steady, for almost four years. Then we got engaged, and I was just about the happiest girl in the world. I was crazy about him.

Then he went to take a job in another city. We wrote to each other, often, and made a lot of happy plans about when we would be together. That went on for about six months. Then his letters began to come less and less often. I didn't think much of that at first. I knew he was anxious to succeed, and was willing to have less attention if he didn't have time for it. Well, finally I didn't hear from him for almost a month.

I wrote to him three times, asking what was the matter, before I got an answer. He didn't explain, except to say that he had been busy. After that, things went fine for a while. Then, out of a clear sky, he wrote me that he had fallen in love with a girl who lived in the city where he was working.

I let him go, with my blessing, although I was so heart-broken that I had to rewrite my letter telling him so twice, because it was so blotted with tears that I was ashamed to send it.

You can imagine that the absolute bottom had dropped out of my world. I felt like nothing was any use. But even so, I never sat at home and let myself brood. I went out with other friends. Danced. Went to shows.

I went because I was determined to not let myself go to pieces, and I knew that I would have to work not to. And I was sure that I would forget in time. So I forced myself to think of other things than my grief. And I really did begin to take a genuine interest in things again. Right then was when I got the second blow.

Bill came home. And almost went on his knees to me, asking me to take him back. He said he had found he didn't really love the other girl after all. That I was the one he cared for.

You can imagine how surprised I was by this. And how upset I felt. I did still love him, and that love all came back. But I was afraid I couldn't trust him after the way he had done. I finally asked him to give me a little time to think it over, and promised to write him what I had decided.

Two days later I wrote and told him that I would take him back. And oh, I was so happy! It seemed that everything had come right with the world again. I went around the house singing. Even the sun seemed brighter. And I waited for him to come to see me, as I had asked him to do. While I waited I planned again for the future. And he never came . . . , or even answered my letter! I have never heard a word from him from that day to this, and it has been six months.

You can just imagine how terribly hurt I was. But I wouldn't let myself go to pieces. In the last six months I've gone out everywhere. I haven't got much fun out of it, it is true. There still is a terrible ache in my heart. But I know that the only way to drive it out is to fill my mind with other things. I won't waste my time at home crying over anyone who would do a trick like that. I still intend to live, and I know that the only way to do it is to get out and start.

Snap out of the fog, Ann. Don't tell me that hurts can't be cured. They can. Mine are getting better every day. But they won't be cured if you refuse to think of anything else. Clean house. Give yourself a chance. Happiness is waiting for you, ahead. But you'll have to get out of that bed and get busy if you want to catch up with it.

Do you think I'm right, Sally? Or am I heartless? CALLIE.

Do I think you're heartless, my dear? Not in a thousand years! I think you're great. And with that fine sense and bravery of yours you're bound to find happiness some day. And here's hoping it's soon!

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Retaining the Form of the Invitation

Dear Miss Beeckman:

I am going to graduate from high school very soon. The graduation is to be held in the church, but I cannot obtain tickets for all my friends. I would like to entertain them at my home later. Could you suggest some kind of a note to write on the bottom of the graduation announcements?

A SUBSCRIBER.

Do not write the note on the bottom of the graduation invitation. This is mixing the formal with the informal, in invitations, which obviously is not correct. Write a separate note of invitation to the post-graduation party.

If the Hostess Wins the Prize

Dear Miss Beeckman:

When a hostess wins first prize at a bridge held in her own home, should she accept it, or is it correct to pass it on to next highest scorer?

C. M. C.

It is correct for her to keep the prize that she has won. Of course she may pass it on, if she wishes, but it is not necessary for her to do so.

Household Hints

When a cool, airy night comes along this summer leave the door of your clothes closet open and let the sweet air get into it. It will take away that stuffy, close smell the closet is so apt to get during the hot weather.

If your kitchen curtains blow against the screens and are constantly getting soiled, cover a couple of dress weights and slip them into each end of the hem. This will keep them in place and save continual laundering.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Daily Dozen' Will Help Baby, Too

Father is always talking about his "need of exercise." Have you ever thought about your baby's need of exercise?

Every baby should be encouraged to take exercise. It is just as necessary for it as it is for the grown-ups, and especially so if the baby is inclined to be fat.

DR COPELAND

The new baby moves about very little. It devotes itself to eating and sleeping. But before many weeks it begins to kick and toss its arms about. The clothing and coverings should be kept loose enough to permit free muscular action.

The young mother will never forget, of course, that a tiny baby is a delicate morsel of humanity. For this reason in taking it up, the child should not be grasped by the chest under the arms. This is a very crude method.

The best way is first to lift the lower part of the body by the clothing. Then slip the hands under the back and the head. In this way the body and head are supported, and accidents are guarded against.

The simpler the baby's dress the better. Have the clothes loose, as I have said, so that there can be freedom of movement.

When it is warm enough let the baby lie without clothing on a blanket spread on the grass or in the room. Then it will have a glorious time with its kicking and squirming. This is as good as a gymnasium for its physical training. Let the baby roll and kick and sprawl to its heart's content.

After the child is several months old it can be propped up with extra pillows supporting the back and sides. Little by little every muscle of the body will grow strong and it won't be long before baby is supporting its own body.

Don't treat the little baby as though it were made of wax and would break. Handle it with a combinaton of firmness and gentleness.

Have you ever studied the actons of young animals—puppies, kittens, birds or chickens? If you have you will find that they begin action very early. The parents even push the young birds out of the nest when they know the youngsters are ready to fly and take care of themselves.

Instinct and self-preservation are powerful influences. Even the small baby knows enough to kick and squirm if given the chance. It glories in its liberty, and will smile and gurgle and coo wth delight. The infant is grateful for the freedom given it.

As the baby grows older, care must be taken not to bounce or toss it about, as so many people are apt to do. To do this causes great strain on the little muscles.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

by CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 2

In a two-story frame dwelling situated in the center of East Brookfield, Mass., I was born on December 23, 1862, missing being a Christmas present by only two days.

My mother crooned Irish folk songs to me as she nursed me through childhood. My early childhood was spent as it always is with a tot living in a village where dollars are scarce with heads of families and there is little chance of his being spoiled with presents or over attention.

Mother Mack decided was anxious that I should get a good common school education, at least, so at the age of 5 I was sent to the town school. In those days the educational system in a Massachusetts village of 5,000 inhabitants was built on primitive lines.

I often look back and see that school room with its rows of desks scored by scholarly knives. All classes were held in one room and one school teacher, an elderly maiden woman, was all the taxpayers of the village could afford to pay. She would teach one grade perhaps consisting of only four or five pupils and then go on to the next until all were finished.

Leading off from the classroom was an anteroom windowless and pitch dark. For any dereliction of duty or infraction of rules a pupil was sent into this dungeon and compelled to stay there 10 or 15 minutes, a sentence that held many horrors for us.

I remember that I once offended this strict but lovable schoolmarm and I had to go into the dreaded hole for 10 minutes or so and it gave me the biggest scare that I ever had, up to that time, in my life. I took good care I didn't go back a second time.

IN COTTON MILL AT NINE

New England boys always were keen to make pocket money on the side so when I was 9 years old and school had closed I resolved to work during my vacation. I applied to Pay's Cotton Mill in East Brookfield and was put to work as a spare hand. I soon found that the role of spare hand in a cotton mill meant doing a little of everything.

I ran errands, carried stock from one part of the plant to another and even operated the elevator. This last was a slow, antiquated contrivance always a peril to anybody on it. When I look back and reflect over the risk I ran, I am startled and wonder how I ever escaped breaking bones.

In those days there were no such things as labor laws or safety-first ideas in a factory. It was everybody for himself, no matter what his age or size. Such a thing as a 9-year-old boy operating an elevator in a mill never would be tolerated today. Our hours were from 6:30 to 6:30, with an hour off for dinner, a term of long hours that does not prevail today.

When you consider the reasonable hours and the working conditions, comforts, conveniences and safety devices with personal compensation in case of injury, the working man of today lives in a paradise compared with those who bent their backs toiling in New England factories and mills 50 years or more ago.

PLAYED ROUND BALL

I lived only a short golf shot from the factory and contrived to finish my midday meal in 15 or 20 minutes. The rest of the hour was mine. The boys of the village would get together and play what we called round ball.

This was the first time I ever had a sphere or bat in my hand. We made a ring with two batsmen something on the order of a cricket field. The batsmen had to make the opposite side of the ring to be safe and keep at the bat. The other, who did not hit, also was compelled to make the station vacated by the batsman.

We used a flat bat and a soft, covered ball. The pitcher stood out of the ring to one side and threw the ball weakly to us. He wasn't there to fool the hitter, but make him hit it. If the ball was caught on the fly you were out or you could be tagged running between stations or a fielder could even retire you by throwing the ball and hitting you while you were running.

It was lots of fun and we played round ball religiously every fine day during the summer and its simple little game played during a lull in long working hours developed my first love for a sport in which the main implements were a ball and a bat.

That fall I quit the cotton mill and re-entered school and now was getting big enough to enjoy virtually all the sports played in our little village.

East Brookfield is located on Lake Lashaway, a beautiful sheet of water and a favorite meeting place of boys and girls when it froze. I bought ice skates and a sled with my mill earnings and took an active part in the sport after school hours.

There was not much change in my every day life for the next six years. I continued to work at the cotton mill in the summer and to attend school in the winter.

BASEBALL TEAM FORMED

But East Brookfield youths were developing in their baseball. We began to form small teams. We played a game, much nearer the modern sport than round ball with its suggestion of cricket.

We had a home plate and three bases and used a big bat and a leather-covered ball. Batsmen called for a low or high ball as they elected. First bounce was out.

Many of the rules prevailing then since have been done away with, but we now were playing a sport that very closely resembled modern baseball even if we lacked equipment and had to be content with a playing field in which rocks never were conspicuous by their absence. These were delightful years and I look back on them with pleasant memories.

SIR THOMAS SPENDS MILLIONS VAINLY

IT WILL BE the fourteenth defense of the America's Cup, emblematic of the world yachting championship, upon which Harold S. Vanderbilt's Enterprise enters next Saturday against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock V. Thirteen times since the trophy was won by a boat representing this country it has been challenged for by individual yacht owners or syndicates of England, Scotland, Ireland or Canada, and 13 times they have failed to lift the famous mug, which has remained an American possession continuously for 79 years.

Harold S. Vanderbilt

Starting in 1899, Sir Thomas has been the most persistent challenger. This year's races mark his fifth attempt to win the blue ribbon of the seas. Each of his boats has borne the name of Shamrock. The expense of defending or challenging for the trophy is enormous, the building alone of one of the big racing yachts, without the cost of the races, representing an outlay of about $750,000. It is estimated that in his five attempts to capture a silver mug costing originally only $500 and now appraised at only $25, Sir Thomas has expended from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

THE CUP GOT its name from the fact that the Yankee boat which originally won it was called America. That was in 1851 when the America defeated 14 English boats, chief of which was the Aurora, in a race around the Isle of Wight. The trophy has remained in this country ever since, in spite of the numerous challenges. The first of these was made by the British boat Cambria in 1870, after yacht-racing had lapsed during the Civil War.

The Cambria was defeated by the first defender, Magic. A year later, the defender Columbia was disabled in the third race against the challenger Livonia, after winning the first and second races, but Sappho, substituted for Columbia, kept the cup safe by taking the fourth and fifth races. Madeline defeated Countess of Dufferin in 1876; Mischief won over Atlanta in 1881; Puritan beat Genesta in 1885; Mayflower turned back Galatea in 1886, and Volunteer triumphed over Thistle in 1887.

IN 1893, VIGILANT defeated Valkyrie II, and in 1895 Defender defeated Valkyrie III. In the second race of the latter series, Defender, winner of the first number, was fouled by Valkyrie, and in the third race Valkyrie withdrew before the finish.

The only unpleasantness in the entire history of the competition resulted. Lord Dunraven, owner of Valkyrie III, made some serious charges, which later were disproved, to the effect that the lines of Defender had been altered after the official measuring of the rival craft.

Sir Thomas Lipton

AS A RESULT of the wrangle and the straining of relations, there was no more racing until 1899, when Sir Thomas Lipton, at the suggestion of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, made his initial challenge with Shamrock I. His boat was defeated by Columbia in three straight races, as was also his next challenger, Shamrock II, in 1901. In 1903 he came back with Shamrock III, but again he lost three in a row, this time to Reliance. His fourth challenge in 1914 was withdrawn on account of the outbreak of the World War and the contests were not held until 1920, when Shamrock IV won the first two races only to be defeated by Resolute in the next three. Now, after 10 years, the Irish baronet is back for his fifth attempt.*

THE COMING SERIES will be for best four out of seven races, starting next Saturday and, weather permitting, with other races following on each succeeding day, Sundays excepted, though the skipper of either yacht may request an extra day's wait after any race. Harold S. Vanderbilt will be skipper of his own boat, the Enterprise, and Ernest (Ted) Heard will serve as skipper of Shamrock V.

The distance of each race will be 30 miles. The course of the first event will be windward-leeward, 15 miles each way. The course of the second race will be triangular, 10 miles to each leg, the course then to be alternated for succeeding races. The starting point will be nine miles southeast of Brenton Reef Lightship, off Newport, R. I. The warning signal for the start of each race will be given at 11:30 a. m., Pittsburgh daylight saving time, with no race to start after 1:30 p. m. The time limit will be five and one-half hours. The winning yacht must complete the course in that time, or the race of the day will be declared no contest.

GABBY STREET will have to inspire his Cardinals to a far better showing on their final Eastern trip than they made on their first two tours of the same territory if they are to have a chance of overtaking the Cubs and putting in a bid for the National League pennant in the home stretch.

Gabby Street

The Eastern cruise now on for both clubs will decide the flag fight, and if any faith may be placed in past performances under similar tests the chances must be said to favor the Chicago outfit, in addition to the advantage it already holds in a lead of two and a half games.

FOR THE BRUINS have proved by far the better road club in the section now being invaded. On the year's first swing through the East, the Cardinals won only three games while losing nine, whereas the Cubs won eight and lost five. On the second seaboard tour the Redbirds again finished with a balance on the wrong side, suffering nine defeats against eight victories, while the Bruins made another successful drive, winning 11 games and losing only six. The complete records of the rival clubs for the first two Eastern trips show that while the Cards won only 11 games against 18 lost, the Cubs won 19 and lost 11. So there will have to be a big form reversal*

PIRATES RELEASE PITCHERS

HEENEY GIVEN CLOSE VERDICT OVER PANKA

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Throw out of consideration the glamor of Tom Heeney's international reputation and George Panka of Homestead, today would be hailed as the victor over the Hard Rock from New Zealand in their gory 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, last night. As it was, Heeney came off with the decision of Referee Al Grayber after the two judges had split, Freddie Lux voting for a draw and Frank Ferris for Panka.

The capacity crowd evidently thought Panka had won or at the very worst deserved a draw, for it voiced its disapproval of the verdict with a demonstration of booing.

DRAWS RECORD CROWD

At the popular prices of $1, $2 and $3, the show drew more than $9,000, a record for the Bowl, and probably another $2,000 was turned away when the gates were closed after the place was jammed to capacity. The show attracted the largest turnout of fans for any outdoor boxing show ever held in the Pittsburgh district. Others, at Forbes Field, have drawn larger gates, but at higher prices, and no one ever was turned away there.

The fight was one of the best heavyweight affairs ever staged around here and it was no wonder the officials were split three ways at the finish. Hard fought from bell to bell in every round, and with both contestants cut and bleeding, it was one of those close battles that will provoke arguments as to the winner for many seasons to come. If the outdoor season were not so near its end a rematch of the pair would jam the Bowl again.

HEENEY PRAISES FOE

Panka, pitting his youth against the experience of his seasoned foe, waged a great fight after getting off to a discouraging start in the first two rounds and earned many friends. At the finish, both Heeney and the latter's veteran manager, Charley Harvey, were loud in their praise of the erstwhile bricklayer and predicted a great future for him. So splendidly did Panka rally that he was breezing through at the finish, while the stocky Heeney was arm and leg-weary and at the mercy of the younger man's speed and power of endurance.

In addition to his many years of experience, Heeney carried into the ring an advantage of 12¾ pounds, scaling 205½ against 193¾ for Panka. Built like the Rock of Gibraltar, Heeney impressed as much the more powerful of the pair, and he started off

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE MUSICAL ROCKS—These unique rocks are located on a farm near Marblehead, Mass. They were arranged by the Indians long ago, and are still in the exact position the Indians arranged them. The rocks emit musical tones of several degrees variation when struck by a stone or other hard object. The varying tones are caused by the different shapes and sizes of the stones. THE PLURAL OF FOOT—Foots, the plural of foot, means residue, sediment, or dregs in refining processes. Any unabridged dictionary gives this definition.

LANG, CHAGNON LET OUT; TWO RECALLED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The Pirate management today exercised option rights on two rookie performers, and on two other it relinquished further claim by this procedure.

The recruits to be recalled for next season are Infielder Stuart Clarke, of Fort Worth, of the Texas League, and Outfielder John Stoneham, of the Columbia Club, of the South Atlantic League.

Option rights were released on Pitchers Leon Chagnon and Martin Lang, of the Wichita Club, of the Western League.

The action of the local team as regards Chagnon and Lang, both of whom spent some time with the Bucco this year, does not necessarily mean that the Pirates have entirely disassociated themselves from the young pitchers. The Pittsburgh officials are interested in the control of the Wichita Club, and in the event that either Chagnon or Lang hits a winning stride, the Bucos doubtless would have the inside track in bringing them back to the majors. Chagnon is a righthander of much promise and Lang, a southpaw, seems to have a lot of pitching cleverness.

CLARKE STARS IN WEST

Infielder Stewie Clarke played considerable ball for the Pirates before being farmed out to Fort Worth. The young man proved a big aid to the Cats as they blazed a trail to the second-half championship of the Texas League. The playoff with Wichita Falls is now on, and Clarke is expected to take a prominent part in it. He has starred at third base and shortstop, but recently has been playing the Wagnerian role.

Outfielder Stoneham is a left-hand batter of whom bright things are expected. He has played something like 100 games this season for the Columbia Club and has batted around .335. Neither Clarke nor Stoneham will be asked to report this fall.

PIRATES IN SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The Pirates are being entertained in this New York state city today; they come here this morning from Buffalo for the purpose of meeting a local semi-professional club in an exhibition game. The big leaguers are en route to Boston from Chicago, where Sunday they hung a defeat on the league-leaders as the two clubs staged their last contest of the season.

Manager Jewel Ens will lead his Pittsburgh athletes out of Syracuse tonight, they being slated to begin their last Eastern invasion tomorrow at the home of the Braves. The Freebooters still hold a hope of finishing in the money, they being five games removed from the fourth position.

The Buffalo Bisons clubbed a trio of Pirate hurlers for 15 hits

LOTT IS BEATEN BY WILLIAMS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—A prey to his own erratic temperament, George Lott, of Chicago, went down to surprising defeat at the hands of Richard N. Williams in the second round of the National tennis singles championship yesterday. The scores were 7-9, 7-5, 7-5, 6-1.

Big Bill Tilden, who was in the same half of the draw with Lott, pushed over Joseph J. Armstrong, of St. Paul, Minn., 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

Sidney B. Wood, Jr., New York, had a hard fight, however, before he won a five-set battle from Julius Seligson, 4-6, 2-6, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., needed five sets to turn back W. Barry Wood, of Boston, 6-2, 6-2, 5-7, 4-6, 6-3.

Clifford Sutter won from Emmett Pare, Dayton, O., 6-2, 6-0, 8-6, and Bryant Grant overcame

WORLD SERIES OPENS OCT. 1

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—(INS.)—The World Series this year will open on Wednesday, October 1, it has been decided. The opening game will be played at the home park of the American League pennant winner, probably the Philadelphia Athletics.

The 1930 World Series plans were made following a meeting of representatives from contending clubs at the office of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, in this city.

The two initial games will be played at the home grounds of the American League champions. The next three will be played on National League territory, and the sixth and seventh, if these additional games are necessary, will be contested at the American League park.

In the event that the Cubs or Cardinals, now occupying precarious positions in first and second BOSTON, Sept. 9.—I was up in Boston yesterday for the greatest game of the season, it's an Old Timers' contest for charity, and on one side were some great Red Sox veterans who would have thought they were in Siberia if they ever got below fourth place—guys like Speaker, Hooper, Carrigan, old Cy Young and Joe Wood. The other side was a crew of diamond Methuselahs like Honus Wagner, Ed Walsh, Rube Oldring, Johnny Evers, Eddie Collins and Frank Baker. The boys creaked a little around the ankles and an ordinary three-bagger was only good for a sacrifice bunt, but at last the score was up in the millions and did us storage guys have fun.

WESTMINSTER GRID STAR IN ASCENDANCY

TITANS BOAST HEFTY SQUAD, MANY VETS

(This is the third of an annual series of articles, written by Jess Carver, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph football writer, dealing with the prospects of tri-state district college football squads. The article on Duquesne University, with photos of the Dukes in training, will appear in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.)

By JESS CARVER.
Staff Correspondent.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 9.—Here in picturesque New Wilmington, where the stone spire of old Westminster rises majestically from a bank of green elms, the Titan gridiron warriors of the United Presbyterian institution, their hopes as bright as their new uniforms, are preparing themselves for yet another football campaign.

Like its Tri-State Conference rivals, Geneva, Thiel, Waynesburg and Bethany, and other of their district foes, Allegheny, Duquesne and Grove City, Westminster is rich in gridiron tradition. But for the past few years, the records compiled by Titan elevens have not been at all sensational, although they have held and shared the Conference championship for the past two years.

Coach Dike Beede, a former Carnegie Tech luminary, is beginning his fifth year as head coach here, and with a squad composed of 17 veterans and as many promising freshmen, anticipates a more successful outcome than attended his efforts last year and the season previous.

FEW STARS LOST

Unlike some of its less fortunate rivals, the Titans did not lose heavily by graduation. Campbell, a halfback; Sweet, a guard; Dombroski, a tackle, and Johnny Hall, a quarterback, were lost by graduation and Harry Brownlee, an end, has decided to confine his efforts to track and basketball and has forsaken the pigskin sport.

Coach Beede is working with a squad composed of 17 backs and 20 linemen. He will lack experienced men for his backfield, for only five of the 17 have had previous college experience and four of these are sophomores. For the line, he has available three four-year men and five who have played for three years, besides four sophomores.

This year's backfield will be constructed around Harry Michaels, a good punter and passer; Perrin, Deacle and Haldy, the latter outstanding as a ball carrier. Michaels played quarterback last year, did most of the passing and practically all of the kicking. Perrin, playing his first year of college ball, showed ability as a ball toter.

From the new stock of frosh, Paul Banks, a Youngstown boy; Harper, of Zelienople, and Krueger, a Sandusky hefty, are in line for first-string jobs. Other backs, Meider, Petot, Patterson, Pattison, Pasten, Leech, Blake, Sloan, Ketterer and Hamas, with a lot to learn and the will to do it, need experience.

BOONE CENTER FIXTURE

Russell Boone, captaining the squad for the second year, is almost a fixture at center. He was one of the best pivot men in the district last year. He's an accurate passer and alert and hard hitting on the defense. Joe Uram, who captained at Turtle Creek Union High last year, is being groomed as Boone's understudy and also fitted for duty at a guard.

Fuller, a four-year man, and Clelland, who has played for three years, are outstanding as guards. They'll receive opposition from Uram, Morrison, Myler and Baird, with Morrison, with a year's experience, holding a slight edge.

At the tackles, Homer Dishong, a big 210-pounder; Armour, a four-year man; Rehfuss, one of the best looking linemen on the squad, and Murray, a six-foot freshman, weighing better than 170 pounds, are engaged in a four-way fight for the starting position. Dishong and Rehfuss right now are first in line, but even though they draw the starting jobs, Armour and Murray, along with Beck and Oddi (a 200-pound freshman prospect) will be instantly available for relief duty, which ought to be pretty heavy duty. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link; an army travels on its stomach and a football team can't get along without good tackles and good reserves.

VETERAN WINGS

Two veterans, Tweedy and Cebula, are the most probable choices for the wings. Tweedy is a senior who has a good record behind him and knows his job. Cebula, fast and a good pass receiver, is an addition to the team's offensive.

Parkinson, a sophomore, and Herter and Speer, freshmen, are other wing candidates.

Starting Cebula and Tweedy at the ends; Rehfuss and Dishong at the tackles; Fuller and Clelland at the guards, and Boone at center, Coach Beede will boast a line averaging 177 pounds, with 400 of the total of 1,243 pounds at the tackles. A backfield consisting of Michaels, Perrin, Haldy and Deacle will average 172, which is above the average of district Class B backfield quartets. There is, of course, no assurance that such a combination will be used as a starting varsity, but the figures are merely used to give some indication as to the prospective weight of the team.

The Titans open the season against the Edinboro State Teachers at home on September 27. On October 4, Wash-Jeff will furnish the U. P.'s with their only major opposition at Washington, Pa. Allegheny will assist the Titans to celebrate Homecoming Day here on October 11. The following week, Grove City will be met at Grove City. October 25 will bring Slippery Rock here and on November 1, Juniata is to be played at Huntington, Pa. Geneva pays its biennial respects to local fans. Thiel shows here November 15 and the season closes November 22 with Bethany at Bethany.

Graduate Manager A. A. McDonald, who claims credit for remarking that one should not fall in love with the scenery when being taken for a ride, and Coach Beede went into a huddle over the uniforms and have tossed into the discard the old jerseys of blue with white stripes on the sleeves and have substituted white jerseys with blue shoulders and three narrow blue bands on the arms. Rosin stripes are of blue. The combination makes a doggy appearance and must be credited to the designing sense of Jack Shea.

For the first time, Coach Beede is working without an assistant, rivaling Cam Henderson, of Davis Elkins, who also labors alone. Jack Huline is the trainer and Reuben Kennedy student manager.

HEENEY IS VICTOR OVER PANKA

RECORD CROWD PACKS BOWL FOR BOUT

as if he meant to annihilate Panka in a few rounds. Crowding George about the ring from the first bell, he hammered the body and jaw as he swept his foe before him and also battered him at will on the inside and on the breaks. George was breaking ground rapidly and appeared to be hurt.

SURVIVES BAD START

Heeney continued the assault in the second round and drew a free flow of blood from Panka's nose. Late in the round Panka began to move about more and to counter, and he scored often, but it was another big round for Heeney.

Heeney slowed down in the third round and Panka began to carry the fight to him. He outscored the Hard Rock from the outside. Both were bleeding as the bell ended the round. Heeney from a cut on his head above the left ear and Panka from his mouth as well as his nose.

The fourth round also went to Panka by a slight margin as he kept on the move and leading and keeping Heeney off balance. Tom rallied desperately toward the finish and landed heavy blows inside, but he couldn't overcome Panka's lead for the session.

Heeney came into his own again in the fifth round, which he carried by a wide margin, stalking Panka throughout and loading up his punches with the full weight of his body behind them. He outmaneuvered Panka and managed to get him out of position often and to land with telling effect.

PANKA FINISHES STRONG

The Anzac continued his good work in the sixth round, when he again punched Panka about seemingly at will. George broke ground before the rugged rushes of Tom and seemed to be tiring fast, the while blood drooled thickly from his badly cut lower lip.

However, just when matters appeared to be hopeless for Panka, he put on the finishing rally that wiped out Heeney's lead and, in the opinion of this writer, one judge and seemingly most of the fans, gave him a slight but perceptible edge at the end. With Heeney tiring from the fast pace, Panka suddenly changed his tactics in the seventh round and began a swift-moving attack from the outside that he continued to the finish. It caught Heeney flat-footed and unable to get set to score. A series of snappy lefts and straight rights in the seventh brought a thick stream of blood from Heeney's nose and Panka took the play away from the visitor so completely that Tom, irked, made a swing at George after the bell that drew a boo from the crowd.

MORAL WIN FOR GEORGE

The last three rounds were but a repetition of the seventh only more so as each passed into history. Panka was moving too speedily and constantly beating Heeney to the punch. In the final round Heeney was so tired he scarcely laid a glove on George, while the latter blazed away with both fists and scored at will. The finish found Panka comparatively fresh, while Heeney was badly spent.

A summary of the rounds showed four big ones, the first two and the fifth and sixth, in Heeney's favor, while Panka carried six, the third and fourth by slight margins and the last four going away. George's best round was the last, and the manner in which he drew away from his opponent in the home stretch spoke volumes for his gameness after the tough baptism of fire he had gone through at the start. Although he lost the official decision, he came through with what amounted to a moral victory in the eyes of the spectators and must be rated a better fighter in defeat than he ever was in victory before.

WILLIAMS, WRIGHT COP

Harry Williams, of the North Side, 174½, won the referee's decision over Jimmy Cunningham, of Cleveland, another Negro, 189, in the eight-round semi-final with a fast finish in the last round. The fight was a funny one, with Williams pulling his punches after flooring Cunningham, an eleventh-hour substitute, and having him on the verge of a knockout in the first round and then being in serious trouble himself for several rounds. One of the judges gave Cunningham a draw. Williams deserved the tough going for trying to kid the fans by carrying Cunningham when he had him going at the start.

Snowflakes Wright, Negro, of Cleveland, 161¾, won by a technical knockout over Chuck Zelnack, of Glassport, 155, when Referee Al Grayber stopped the fight after eight seconds of the second round, after Zelnack had been punched dizzy by the first two punches of the round following a tough first round in which he was floored for a nine count and was groggy until the bell.

McVEY BEATS POLIS

Sunny Jim McVey, of Rankin, 167, drubbed Nick Polis, of Aliquippa, 165¼, in the six-round opener.

Al Grayber and Jack Henderson alternated as referees, with Lux and Ferris judging all of the bouts. Tommy Grant and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers and Ray Eberle did the announcing.

Announcement was made that Baby Joe Gans will box Harry (Kid) Brown and Black Bill will oppose Marty Gold in two 10-round bouts making up a double windup card in the Bowl's next to last show, next Monday night.

Between Rounds

Al Becker, the Sheraden middleweight, has broken away from the management of Jack London and Jack Aiello and will try to arrange his own matches in the future here.

Johnny Dattz, of Cleveland, arrived in town today for his 10-round whirlup with Joey Thomas, of Chicago, at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night. The Filipino says he is in great shape and will surprise the fans with his improvement in boxing form in addition to his punch.

Following is the card for the amateur boxing show under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, Wave at the Twenty-seventy, Ward A. C. Novels, Bobby Wright, Slim Kovach vs. Mike Mallon; Bill Coffey vs. Bernie Rosko; Frank Knudson vs. Howard Turner; Cecil Mullaly vs. Butch Jacobs; Max Elling vs. Eddie Roberts; Tubs Burns vs. Al Van Gut; Johnny Bilek vs. Bernie Powers; Mike Sabbaty vs. Cherry Young; Mike Porcaro vs. Young Zeno and Bucks Harris vs. Young Pete.

Promoter Jim McGirr will introduce a new scale of reduced prices with his opening show of the indoor season at McKeesport Thursday night, ranging from 75 cents in the balcony to $1.25 and $2 for the first floor. The $1.25 tickets will be sold at the boxoffice on the bridge. Tom Maloy, of Duke, and Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, are the main boxfighters.

The American Legion, of Greensburg, also is staging amateur bouts tonight, at the Greensburg Coliseum.

O'LOUGHLINS ADVANCE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

John and Billy O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh Athletic Association aces; Frank Smith, Edgewood captain, and Johnny Hecker, Geneva luminary, who last Saturday annexed the Beaver County title, yesterday set the pace into the quarter-final round of the Allegheny County net championships by dint of impressive triumphs on the Carnegie Library Club courts, Duquesne, Pa. The men's singles field was reduced to 13.

John O'Loughlin, having drawn a first round bye, advanced into bracket three by default of Early, a local performer. At this stage he encountered Bill Servick, top man of the home club, and a very torrid tussle ensued. Both sets were nip and tuck, with Servick constantly threatening, but always unable to assume command of the going, till O'Loughlin eventually ran out at 7-5, 6-4.

Billy O'Loughlin, pitted against Ronald Harner, Monongah Valley contender, forehanded his way to 6-1, 6-1 victory. Smith, matching steadiness with husky Gerald Maloney, of Mt. Lebanon, was forced to battle for the better part of two hours ere grabbing a 6-3, 6-2 verdict. O'Loughlin attained the bracket of eight as Alan Jack, of Freedom, defaulted.

Hecker, clipping 'em in his usual artistic form, moved on at the expense of Sullivan, of the P. A. A., 6-0, 6-3. Hecker had earlier downed Regis Bullion, Duke varsity, 6-3, 6-1. The summary:

MEN'S SINGLES.

Third round—Dr. John L. O'Loughlin won from Early by default; John B. Brown won from Ben Bloom by default; Sam Keller defeated Edgar Davis, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1; Richard Snodgrass won from William McCabe by default; William O'Loughlin defeated Ronald Harner, 6-1, 6-1; Don Wilson won from Jack Lauler by default; John Hecker defeated Regis Bullion, 6-3, 6-1; Paul Sullivan won from Irvin Goodman by default.

Four round—Dr. John L. O'Loughlin defeated William Servick, 7-5, 6-4; Frank S. Smith defeated Gerald Maloney, 6-3, 6-3; William O'Loughlin won from Alan Jack by default; John Hecker defeated Paul Sullivan, 6-0, 6-3.

GEORGE PANKA — TOM HEENEY

A bit of close-range fighting midway in the heavyweight bout at the Meyers Bowl last night, in which Tom Heeney, Australian veteran, won the referee's decision over George Panka, young Homestead prospect, at the end of 10 close and gory rounds of fighting before a capacity crowd.

PANTHERS GET STIFF DRILLS TODAY

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 9.—With yesterday's scrimmage showing the need of much work, Jock Sutherland made preparations to push his team through two hard scrimmages today. Two long workouts are carded and in each one the linemen particularly the guards and the tackles, will be given plenty of work.

Right now it looks as though the usual order of things was to be reversed and that Pitt, instead of having a good line and a fair backfield, would have just the opposite. Sutherland is still bothered about his guards. He tried five of them yesterday without being exactly satisfied with any one pair.

The same was true of the tackles. Tully and Quatse both seemed to have an off day and are due for long drills today.

Scrimmage was scheduled for this afternoon with long drills in the fundamentals under the watchful eyes of Sutherland and his assistants on the books for this morning.

Yesterday's workouts found the boys somewhat off in their work, after their short vacation. The varsity found the going plenty tough, and, had it not been for individual work of some of the backs, would never have crossed the line.

Jim MacMurdo was given a new job today. He will have to substitute at center this year as well as play end. With the lack of capable subs at the pivot post becoming more and more apparent, Big Jim was pushed into the breach yesterday and played half of the time at end and half at center.

TECHITES SCRIMMAGE

Several new figures thrust themselves into the midst of the fight for varsity jobs at Carnegie Tech when they were more or less sensationally prominent in the long, hard scrimmage that was held yesterday afternoon.

Tony Ostrosky, stocky former New Castle High School boy, served notice by some splendid defensive play that he will not be counted out of the race for an end job. He was a member of the 1929 freshman club. Howard Stauffer, burly 220-pound tackle, who was on the varsity squad last year, also messed up plays rather consistently on the defense, and swung into the offense with an agility surprising in a man of his bulk.

Charley Ewing, Coraopolis lad, got a workout as interfering back in the McCurdy, Karcis, Graveno aggregation, and did some effective blocking as his team was scorning the first touchdown of the afternoon.

CHISOX BUY GRUBE

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The White Sox have purchased Catcher Frank Grube from Buffalo, of the International League, for 1931 delivery. Grube, who is 24 years old, has batted above .300 this season and is rated as the outstanding catcher in the International League.

NATS GET HARGRAVE

DETROIT, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—William Hargrave, veteran catcher of the Detroit Tigers, was released to Washington yesterday for the waiver price of $7,500. He will join the Washington club within the next two days.

Long's Sport Comment

on the part of both clubs if St. Louis is to be anything more than an early September threat. Still it's a topsy turvy season of slumps, spurts and general inconsistencies in which anything may happen.

MAURICE (MICKEY) KELLIHER, whose death in Washington was at first reported to have resulted from an automobile accident, but in connection with which murder charges have now been filed against three men, was a candidate for the first-base position on the Pittsburgh baseball club 19 years ago.

Kelliher was obtained by the Pirates in September, 1911, from the Petersburg Club, of the Virginia League, but was released after he had been tried in only two games at first base. The Pirates experimented with half a dozen players at the gateway that year. Fred Hunter, now a coach for the Phils, started the season at the post, but was released to Indianapolis in August. Jack Flynn, Honus Wagner, Bill McKechnie, Brown Keene and Kelliher appeared on the job during the remainder of the season before Jack Miller was made the regular first baseman in 1912.

THE MANNER IN which some of the so-called champions are getting by in the fight game these days, the false-pretense stuff resorted to in order to protect titles which they are not capable of defending against worthy opponents, is almost enough to make the real class kings of the old days turn over in their graves.

The most flagrant offender in that respect, and in the opinion of many fans the poorest imitation of a champion in the present crop, is Battling Battalino, holder of the world title in the featherweight division.

Battling Battalino

ONLY BY INSISTING on trick contracts in all of his bouts with foemen possessing any ability has Battalino succeeded in hanging on to the championship that passed to him when he was given a 15-round decision over Andre Routis in Hartford, Conn., on September 23, 1929. Battalino has held the title less than a year, but in that time has been defeated no fewer than five times. He has lost two decisions to Cecil Payne, of Louisville; one to Lew Massey, of Philadelphia; one to Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, and one to Roger Bernard, of Flint. The Bernard bout took place only last Friday night in Detroit, and the title holder won only three of the ten rounds. In spite of his five defeats, Battalino still has his championship, all because in each case he made the other party to the match agree to come in above the featherweight limit of 126 pounds, so that in event of the decision going against Battalino the title would not go along with it. Some of the other so-called champions have worked the same dodge to protect their crowns, but none of them has proved so lacking in ability as to lose five fights in a single year. A hot champion is Battalino. Shades of George Dixon and Terry McGovern.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 8.

Michigan punts to Ohio State and Larkins is in a position to catch the ball when Morrison, of Michigan, who has raced down the field to tackle the receiver, is struck by the ball before it strikes the ground. Larkins falls on the ball.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee rules that Michigan has interfered with the opportunity for a fair catch and penalizes Michigan 15 yards in addition to awarding the ball to Ohio State with all the privileges of a fair catch.

WOMEN'S GOLF MEDALIST

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Will the jinx that usually hovers over the medalist stalk the trail of Emilie Roseburgh, of Oakmont, defending champion and medalist, in the Western Pennsylvania women's golf championship, the first round of match play of which began this morning over the links of the Westmoreland Country Club? Miss Roseburgh yesterday held a stroke lead over her nearest competitor in the 18-hole qualifying round, the first champion of the district, Mrs. J. Raymond Price, also of Oakmont, who scored 89.

This morning Miss Roseburgh is playing the youthful star from the Pittsburgh Field Club, Barbara Warmcastle. Other qualifiers and their scores were:

Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth, Oakmont, 91; Mrs. J. A. Ellis, Field Club, 90; Betty Abercrombie, Oakmont, 91; Mrs. F. E. Campbell Stanton Heights, 92; Antoinette Hunter, Oakmont, former champion, 92; Barbara Warmcastle, 92; Mrs. Orville Carter, 92; Mrs. Chesley B. Lehman, Westmoreland, 93; Mrs. Beverly Shriver, St. Mary's, McCleave Country Club, 93; Mrs. A. R. Budd, 95; Mrs. A. C. Sunstein, Westmoreland, 95; Mrs. L. G. Riley, Edgewood, 95; Mrs. H. J. Baughart, 97; Gertrude Daily, 97; Frances Goff, Chartiers Heights, 97; Mrs. W. H. Phillips, 97, and Mrs. H. W. Christie, 97.

The 97's are playing off a tie for the sixteenth place this morning.

A. K. Oliver and Joseph W. Oliver, of Fox Chapel, won the playoff for the fathers and sons championship of the district yesterday by defeating W. C. Fownes, Jr., and H. C. Fownes, II., in a best-ball match. The Olivers had a card of 82 and the Fownes a 90.

Ross Gammon, restaurant man, won the low net with a 76, and Herman Koch, flour merchant, copped the low gross in the first division with an 87, while Ray Mink, of Chartiers Heights, won the second flight laurels, net 75, in the tourney of the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Men at the Shannopin Country Club yesterday. The leading scores:

First division—Ross Gammon, 88-12—76; Herman Koch, 87-10—77; William Tavano, 91-13—78; Al Averita, 87-4—83; John J. Dillon, 93-6—87; Otto Oberle, 93-6—87.

Forbes

To Buyers; Stop, Look and Listen! Don't Get Left!

By B. C. FORBES

AN OPEN LETTER to manufacturers, merchants and other buyers.

Gentlemen: Please do a little reflecting, a little analyzing, a little reasoning.

Economic history reveals clearly that always at a certain stage of depression and deflation, it became more risky not to buy than to buy.

Mr. Forbes

Consider carefully what has been occurring; then decide whether the time has arrived to follow a less timid course.

WHEN PROSPERITY began to boom, it naturally generated optimism. As the boom became more vigorous, enthusiasm rose.

This encouraged the laying in of stocks of raw materials by manufacturers, the purchasing of adequate stocks by merchants, the spending of money by people in general. Prices either held firm or tended to advance.

While the almost universal assumption was that inventories throughout the country were very light, subsequential events have proved that that was not universally true.

WHAT HAPPENED following the crash in Wall Street?

There was immediate curtailment of purchasing all along the line. Manufacturers decided to let their supplies of raw materials run down to the lowest feasible minimum before making fresh purchases. They likewise curtailed production and let their inventory of finished goods decline drastically.

Wherever there was room to do so, wholesale and retail merchants followed a like policy.

For example, think what has happened in the automobile industry. If anyone had told motor car makers a year ago that their inventories were quite large, the statement would have been ridiculed. Why, every car built was being shipped the moment it rolled off the factory line. But when the prosperity tide turned, it was realized that dealers were, as a rule, too plentifully stocked with both new cars and old.

Since then, there have been produced fewer cars than have actually been sold. Inventories have been reduced very substantially below that they were 12 months ago.

NEXT CONSIDER what has happened to instalment buying. Prosperity has induced an unprecedented number of families all over the land to go into debt for a wide variety of goods. Until the boom burst, merchandise sold on the installment plan was not regarded in any sense as inventory.

But we now know that, in a very real sense, it was. In addition to the fact that sellers had to take repossession of a considerable amount of goods, business dullness was intensified by the cessation of new instalment buying. Many families decided that they would not—could not—go further into debt by buying on credit, but would confine their comforts, conveniences, luxuries to what they had already indulged in. Many other families not equally harassed by instalment burdens were impressed by what was happening to their less conservative neighbors, and they felt less disposed than ever before to go into debt.

NOW, JUST as optimism, enthusiasm, prosperity fostered over-buying in all directions, pessimism and depression have operated to bring about under-buying.

That industrial operations, building operations, forward buying have been cut down drastically, not merely because of actualities, but because of acute fear concerning the future, needs no emphasizing. The facts speak for themselves.

ALL THIS HAS been going on for nearly a year.

The net result is that we have used up practically all reserve inventories, that replenishing alike by manufacturers, merchants and consumers has been rigidly restricted, and that prices have fallen, in many instances, to the lowest levels since before the war.

TAKING ALL these facts into consideration, remembering also that the American people temperamentally are optimists and that the real wealth of the nation as well as its superabundant volume of money has not been seriously impaired, may it not be farsighted to take advantage of the opportunities now existing to make contracts at low prices—in important commodties even below cost of production?

The risk that is involved in buying cannot conceivably be great. The risk involved in NOT buying may easily prove great, since even moderate stocking-up might suddenly change the whole complexion and land the timid at a serious disadvantage when pitted against competitors who had the courage and the foresight to buy cheap.

THINK IT OVER.

STOCK MARKET FORCED UP BY BULLS

Shift From Group to Group To Keep List Headed Upward—Trading Falls

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.) Bulls gained a new leverage and continued the laborious elevation of stock prices, unaided by public buying, in today's market.

The wave of profit taking late yesterday appeared to have encouraged further short selling, thus improving the market's technical position and giving speculators room for a fresh advance. Trading was less active than that of the previous session, however, after bulls were forced to shift their activity from group to group to keep the list pointed upward.

The operations of bullish interests were most effective in tobacco, utility and natural gas merchandising and food shares. Rails and several of the important industrials made little progress. Oils were inclined to sag. The American Tobacco shares were strong spots, the old B stock gaining more than 5 points. Case and Duplan Silk sold up about 4 and shares advancing 2 to 3 included DuPont, Macy, Woolworth, Congress Cigar, Liggett & Myers B, Air Reduction and Best & Co. Such issues as National Biscuit, Loose Wiles, Columbian Carbon, Houston Oil, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works, National Power and Light and Stone and Webster went up moderately. Kreuger and Toll was active and firm.

BULLS HAMPERED

Business reports still failed to show any emphatic change although further signs of a turn for the better were indicated. The bull campaign has been hampered by the very limited autumn business upturn thus far. Since the market crash of a year ago there has been considerable perplexity in the minds of speculators as to whether the stock market forecasts, or merely reflects business recovery; whether it stimulates business, or merely responds to business.

Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, in an address today, did not encourage the theory that the market forecasts business recovery. The speed with which the market will respond to business improvement, he added later, will depend upon the rapidity with which accurate business statistics are made available to the public.

The belief that business actually has turned the corner appears to be gaining headway in important banking and industrial circles, but it is pointed out that it would be easy at this time to mistake a temporary seasonal upturn for a definite change of trend.

INGOT OUTPUT GAINS

In any case, the American Iron and Steel Institute's estimate of total ingot production for August showed a gain over the previous month for the first time since February. Electrical World reported that telegraphic inquiry of public utility heads through the country resulted in almost unanimous opinion that the business trend had definitely turned upward.

On the other hand, unfavorable dividend actions and earnings statements still impair speculative confidence, although bulls point out that these represent water under the mill, and are not indicative of the future.

Call money held at 2½ per cent, with little available at that level, but demand slight. The weekly condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve members banks showed a gain of $30,000,000 in "other" loans, perhaps indicating more active demand from industry, while loans against securities gained only $6,000,000.

Utility Executives See Trade Revival

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The Electrical World reports that telegraphic query of public utility executives in all parts of the country has brought replies showing an almost unanimous opinion that the worst of the business depression is over, and that most factors point to a slow but "rather painful" upward trend. The reports show that most companies have increased their domestic sales, some as much as 25 per cent, and appliance sales by making no curtailments in sales.

Trade Circles Anticipate But Little Change in Steel's Backlog

On Wednesday at noon the Steel Corporation will make public the total of unfilled orders on its books as of the end of August. This is the usual unofficial preliminary forecasts have not been forthcoming but in New York trade circles only a small change is being anticipated. The corporation reported an increase of 58,991 tons for July in face of predictions of a small decrease previous to the appearance of the figures and in view of the low operating ratio maintained during August it would not surprise most observers if another gain is shown for August. The latter month is one of great irregularity it appears, so far as the steel business is concerned. During the six years ended with 1929 tonnage has increased in three instances, namely in 1924, 1927 and 1928 and has decreased in 1925, 1926 and 1929.

Stocks of the leading can manufacturing corporations were prominent by reason of their strength and activity during yesterday. Both American Can and Continental Can pushed ahead briskly to new high levels for the movement and McKeesport Tin Plate, which is a factor in the business through its interest in the Metal Package Company, was well bought. An official of Continental Can was quoted as finding business of the company very satisfactory, while reports came to hand indicating that American Can was specifying heavily against its tinplate orders indicating considerable confidence in the outlook for the balance of the year despite such effect as the drought may have had on crops which go into the pack.

Report had it that negotiations looking toward something of a working agreement between the two companies are in progress between Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Shubert Theaters. The nature of the prospective agreement could not be learned, but according to those claiming to be informed, an early announcement, probably before the end of the week, will be forthcoming. Considerable activity developed yesterday in Radio-Keith, but the street understood that a good part of the buying in that stock during the day represented covering operations by a prominent operator who was reputedly a heavy seller of the issue for short account last week.

Another moderate increase in surplus stocks of copper is expected to be revealed when the monthly statistics on the position of the industry come to hand later in the week along about Friday or Saturday. Despite this, close observers contend that important buying is continuing in the red metal shares for the account of those identified with the industry who are of the opinion that the expected increase in surplus stocks of the metal to be reported shortly will mark the extreme end of bad news. The Phelps Dodge and Nichols copper merger is accepted as a constructive development which will strengthen the situation in the actual copper market and which some look upon as foreshadowing additional consolidations.

The situation in the market for steel common excited no little comment in speculative quarters during the early part of yesterday. Prior to noon it was reported that brokers usually regarded as acting for the Morgan interests were sellers of the stock on the bulges. One of the leading specialists in the stock also was reported on the selling side. Traders sought to follow this selling when it appeared but were moved to cover such sales rapidly when the stock showed little or no disposition to react. At the same time traders who would rather be bullish on steel at these levels than bearish are prone to hesitate about becoming aggressive in face of the indicated character of the aforementioned selling in the stock.

It has been impossible to distribute stocks recently. Logically, it is likely that pools which had been working in the market were planning to get rid of part of their position when outsiders turned to the buying side. Public participation has been small and the fact that distribution must have been negligible thus far is seen in the small total of brokerage loans, the reduced volume of trading and the limited amount of business which has been transacted through the various commission and wire houses.

Differ On St. Paul Interest Payment

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Directors of St. Paul Railroad will decide next Thursday whether to pay the October 1 coupon on the adjustment mortgage bonds. A considerable difference of opinion exists among members of the board, some favoring payment of the full 2½ per cent which is due, and others feeling that no payment should be made in view of the reduced earnings reported so far this year.

A factor in determining whether the payment should be made will be business outlook in the northwest for the next six months.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The curb market was of a hesitant mood today. Opening irregularly lower, prices recovered as efforts were made to swing the list back into the Monday advance that had been checked by profit-taking but the gains were small and traders seemed disposed to realize quickly. There was also a renewal of short selling.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in; 000 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list.

CHEAP MONEY END NEAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Psychology rather than economics explains the present paradox of cheap money and low stock prices suggested Lord Melchett, British industrialist, in an address to the Bond Club of New York. He said:

"The only explanation is purely a psychological one, a warrant of confidence, a feeling of uncertainty that makes people leave their money in the banks. As soon as that psychology begins to change—and it is bound to change—you will probably see a very great change in values throughout the world."

Lord Melchett, formerly Sir Alfred Mond, added that cheap money and business depression could not long continue because commodities could not indefinitely be produced below cost and because the world cannot afford to have its funds unused.

Canada Dominant Factor In Wheat Market

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP)—With North American wheat already forming the bulk of the export trade, recent political and economic disturbances in Argentina, threatening to withdraw that country from competition in the world market, has strengthened food grains in this country.

Unofficial reports of an industrial revolution in Argentina and the closing of the Buenos Aires Exchange had a bolstering effect on wheat at Chicago at the close of trade last week. The effect is expected to be only temporary, however, since supplies in the southern hemisphere are about depleted.

The South American republic long ago shipped through export channels more wheat than the native government estimated the entire 1929 crop to total. While there still is wheat for export in Argentina, the supply has run very low. Combined, Australia and the Argentine exported only 973,000 bushels last week, compared with almost 10,000,000 bushels from North America—more than one third of which was wheat from the United States.

Early Harvest in Canada

DEVELOPMENTS IN Canada have been, and are expected to continue to be, the dominant factor in the wheat market. The harvest in that country is unusually early with the Manitoba crop reported practically all cut and harvesting in Alberta and Saskatchewan 80 to 95 per cent completed. Threshing is well underway and marketings already are unusually large. The effect has been to send domestic markets to a new low point for the season.

Deterioration in the corn crop continued during August in many sections, and private trade estimates at the first of September indicated an outturn of around 2 billion bushels or about 600,000,000 bushels below the 1929 crop. Market stocks remain unusually small and current offerings are of only moderate volume. Industries and feeders are taking most of the daily arrivals at the principal markets but feeders are turning more to other feed grains and feed wheat which are selling at relatively low prices.

Europe's Crop Smaller

PROSPECTS FOR THE new wheat crop in the Southern hemisphere continue favorable and tend to offset the influence of present small shipments. Harvesting and threshing is progressing in Europe with present indications that the 1930 crop will be around 150,000,000 bushels smaller than a year ago.

With Russia and India offering rather freely, demand for North American wheat continues of only moderate volume.

Russian wheat still is underselling American grain in Europe.

Liverpool has been paying 99½, cost including freight, for Australian wheat whereas Argentine futures are quoted at 87 compared with $1.05 last year.

Spring Wheat Movement

DOMESTIC SPRING WHEAT markets have been independently firm and premiums over futures were increased. The peak of the movement appears to be over and current receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth were only of moderate volume. Mill demand was active, and elevators also bought freely in an effort to obtain wheat to fill remaining storage space estimated at around 13,000,000 bushels at Minneapolis, Duluth and Superior. Cash premiums were advanced sufficiently to offset the decline in futures.

Domestic winter wheat markets have followed the slow decline in futures as result of a slow export inquiry and only moderate takings by domestic mills.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Story Tells Itself

Old Tom Fincher dragged his feet slowly along up the trail toward his cabin, on an eminence at the head of the Laurel branch ravine. Tom realized that his 80 years were telling upon his physical forces.

It was a little past noon, and, although cool days had come, the old man's exertion brought a moisture to his brow. He carried a shotgun over his shoulder. He had been shooting snipe along the valley creek below. His eyesight had failed so much in the past five years, he no longer could shoot a rifle with any degree of accuracy, and he had had to turn to the shotgun.

Something of old Tom's pride had gone when he laid his rifle for the last time upon the buck's antlers which served as a gun rack over the cabin door.

The trail led around a boulder a little above the cabin, enabling the traveler to look down upon the yard before reaching it. As Tom rounded the boulder he stopped. In the yard lay Mary [illegible], his granddaughter, with her face buried against her arm. For a moment Tom's heart stood still. But when he could see that the girl's body was moving, that perhaps she was sobbing, he continued on down to the spot where she lay huddled on the ground.

Mary was Fincher's only living descendant. The old man's wife had been dead for more than 10 years and the girl had been his only solace and companion until about three months before when Mary had married "Slim" Taylor, a sort of adventurer who had come into the mountains to work at Bascom's shingle mill.

Fincher had agreed to take Taylor to board, and Slim's oily tongue soon had won the love of Mary, who was little more than half his age, and she had consented to a stolen marriage. This had hurt old Tom deeply, but he had made the best of it, though soon he had come to regard Taylor as an undesirable citizen. Fincher now stood almost over Mary.

Cruel Husband

"What's happened, Sis?" he asked.

Mary rolled over and looked up into her grandfather's face.

"It's what Slim done," she said.

"What's Slim done, honey?" Fincher's arms clutched her tightly.

"He took my gold money—them two pieces that May left me. He said it was foolish to let money like that lie around the house for two or three generations, doin' nobody no good. I fought for 'em, Grandy, but he slapped me down an' kicked me in the ribs. He most stove me in!" Mary pressed her hand to her side.

Fincher's teeth went together hard. "Where is Slim now?"

"He's went over to Baddlebark, to the store, to the gamblin'."

"Well, Honey, when a gal has a man like thet it's mighty hard to know what to do about it."

"Hullo, Fincher!" called a voice from the trail above.

Fincher looked back over his shoulder. The caller was Joe Rampey.

Second Marriage

"Come up here, Tim."

Fincher turned and dragged his way back over the boulder.

"We've found out somethin' about Slim Taylor as we thought yuh ought to know, Fincher," began Joe.

Fincher was silent a moment. "What's thet?" he asked finally.

"The derned skunk he's got a wife an' six brats over in Transylvania."

Old Tim sank to the rock beneath him and stared blankly.

"Don't know what yuh want to do about it, Fincher," continued Joe. "I jest wanted to let yuh know thet me an' the rest o' the boys is ready, ef yuh want us for anything."

"I'll let yuh know, Joe, an' thank yuh!" Fincher replied weakly. "I got to think a little."

About the middle of the afternoon Fincher again shouldered his shotgun, and set off down the trail. Half a mile from the house he climbed into a laurel thicket, and sank behind a log.

But there was an end of the waiting. Presently the "boom" of Fincher's shotgun broke the stillness of the woods. It was followed by a scream of pain as Slim Taylor went down under the charge of small shot which had driven bits of clothing into a shattered leg just above his hips, and Tom Fincher went down to his victim, and stood over him.

"Ye derned varmint," he exclaimed, "I don't know whether I'll finish ye off or not—them's jest shinge shot in yuh. But I'm leavin' yuh here—maybe the buzzards will get yuh to night."

During the night Taylor dragged himself down the ravine and found someone to take him to a surgeon. His recovery was slow and he had plenty of time in which to plan his revenge.

Fincher Arrested

It was with feelings more or less of indifference that old Tom Fincher submitted to arrest under a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill which Taylor had preferred against [illegible]. ... all of his 80 years he never appeared before a bar of justice, and there was something novel about his surroundings when he stood in the courtroom awaiting the process of the trial.

Fincher's gaze roved over the walls and ceiling, along the tiers of seats occupied by the audience, and from one object to another in the inclosure where he sat, a prisoner.

As the trial proceeded, Fincher sat listening to the testimony of the state's witnesses with but a vague understanding of what it was all about. Taylor told the story of his being bushwhacked, a plain statement of being attacked from ambush, without a chance to defend himself, and without provocation.

Takes Stand

His surgeon explained the nature of the wound he had received, and the possibility that it might have caused death.

When Fincher came to the stand, there was a change in the attitude of the audience. Closer attention was observed; and no word of Fincher's story was lost. He told of having learned of Taylor's perfidy, and of his decision to shoot him because such varmints should not be allowed to live and maybe impose on some other community. There were smiles of amusement here and there along the sea of faces. The fact that Taylor had left a family in Transylvania was proven by witnesses from that county.

Old Tim Fincher listened to the argument of the prosecuting attorney with but a faint understanding of his position. The jury was told that no matter what knavery Taylor had been guilty of, it was criminal for a fellow citizen to take the matter of punishment into his own hands, and that when Fincher waylaid and shot this prosecutor he was guilty of assault and battery with intent to kill. He also said that the judge would so charge the jury. Virtually, the judge did so charge the jury. Fincher watched after the jury as it filed into the room assigned for its deliberations. He wondered what they were going to do about it in there.

Before the preliminary technicalities for the opening of the next case were completed, the constable announced that the jury was ready to present its verdict in the Fincher case. Once more the 12 men sat in the box. The foreman arose and, contrary to usage, began reading aloud the verdict from the back of the indictment:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Tim Fincher, NOT GUILTY, with the recommendation that the next time he shoots Taylor he uses buckshot."

Dear Sir or Madame—

It's high time something was done about prize fighting before it becomes any more subtle. The main trouble is that professional pugilists, who have already had their names in the paper, are too cautious and conservative, with none of that ferocious abandon and reckless disregard of consequences that makes an interesting contest. It seems to me a great deal of this devil-may-care quality might be returned to the game by having the fighters' press-agents do the fighting.

Mayor Kline's Plan to Retire From Politics

Mayor Charles H. Kline, back from a vacation in Europe, complains of being tired. He says he is pretty old (Old at 59!) and that when he finishes his term he expects to retire from everything. After he has recovered from the fatigue of his trip he may change his mind. Men of his vigor and ambition do not retire.

If he should adhere to his determination to withdraw from politics, what a glorious opportunity he has to do something worth while for Pittsburgh during the remainder of his term! No longer needing because of political aspirations the support of ward chairmen and other Republican organization workers, Kline could feel free to manage the affairs of the city as they should be managed, without regard to the exigencies of practical politics.

One of the first things he could do to improve his administration would be to abandon the spoils system—the practice of discharging city employes for political reasons and filling their places with men who have no better claim to consideration than that they are vote-getters or friends of vote-getters.

He could also make it plain that he would no longer tolerate racketeering—that on receipt of evidence that the police were winking at lottery operations, gambling, slot machines, bootlegging and commercial vice, he would discharge the officers responsible, whether they were patrolmen or the superintendent of police and director of public safety.

Were Kline to change his policy in respect to these two matters, his administration would compare favorably with the best that the city has had. For while the corruption and inefficiency of the police bureau are glaring, the other bureaus are, for the most part, functioning satisfactorily.

Everyone can recall, to be sure, criticisms that have been leveled from time to time at various departments of the city administration. There was the delay of the Public Works Department in preparing the plan for rail-river terminals, for example, and the slowness of the Law Department (until its attention was called to the matter by the Sun-Telegraph) to act on the taxicab companies' proposal to raise their rates. But, aside from the Public Safety Department, the various branches of the municipal government are on the whole well managed, while the Health and Welfare Departments are doing exceptionally good work.

County Commissioners To Provide More Work

The County Commissioners show a gratifying disposition to proceed at once with various minor projects, long held in abeyance, with a view to providing work for Allegheny County's unemployed. These are to be in addition to the public works authorized in the 1928 bond issue.

Thus Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong proposes to do something to better the condition of 69 miles of unimproved county roads. They are not to be paved with concrete, but bad spots will be repaired by scraping them, filling mudholes with "red dog," and the like. Armstrong says that $250,000 is available for this work, and that about $150,000 will be disbursed as wages for laborers.

The project is commendable in itself and could be undertaken at no better time. If all the cities, boroughs and townships in the county were to go ahead now with improvements that have long been contemplated, and for which funds are available, there would be an appreciable reduction in unemployment. The Bureau of the Census found that 3.2 per cent of Pittsburgh's population was out of work last April, and the percentage probably is about the same for the rest of the county. The figures show there is genuine need for relief measures.

Time to Get Vaccinated Again, Dr. Maits Hints

Dr. Charles B. Maits, director of public health, brings up a disagreeable subject—of the kind that should not be ignored, but faced bravely—when he calls our attention to the fact that smallpox has been visiting Pittsburgh in six-year cycles, and if it follows its schedule is due this year.

In 1912 we had 119 cases, with 33 deaths; in 1918 we had 56 cases, with no deaths, and in 1924 we had 117 cases, resulting in 24 deaths.

Half a million people were vaccinated in Pittsburgh during the 1924 smallpox scare, with the result that only seven cases of the disease have developed in the city since then, two of which were in persons not residing here.

But Dr. Maits tells us that while vaccination confers immunity from smallpox for five years, there is no assurance that its protective effect will continue for a longer period. He suggests, therefore, that it is time for most of us to be vaccinated again.

Most of us, of course, will ignore the suggestion. The law requires us to have our children vaccinated. But the chances are that we will do nothing for our own protection until, as was the case in 1924, panic sweeps the city. Let us hope the negligence will cost us no deaths.

Classes for Parents A Commendable Plan

The Allegheny County Parent-Teachers Association has hit upon a praiseworthy idea in its plan to organize study classes for mothers and fathers who desire to keep up with their children in respect to education. The plan is for members of the association to meet in small groups under the tutelage of a school teacher to brush up the things they learned years ago and learn of the developments in these subjects since they grew up.

There is hardly any adult who would not learn something from such a proceeding. Let a school child be questioned as to what he is being taught in history, geography and the sciences, such as physics and chemistry, and he will mention things that were not dreamed of when children were in school a generation ago. Even the pronunciation of some of the proper names found in geography lessons is different from what it was.

The purpose behind the Parent-Teachers plan for adult study classes is primarily to enable parents to discuss their children's lessons with them intelligently. But adults without children should also find such study profitable.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

My Boy Cal!

We read Cal Coolidge's editorials, hoping he will say something.

He writes them hoping he won't.

Being so conservative that he wears spiked shoes in his bath tub, there isn't much chance of Cal making any statement that you haven't read before on a doormat.

"Bugs" Baer

At twilight Cal will not even predict darkness. At dawn he will not proclaim the day.

He just plugs along, changing the date on yesterday's article and runs it all over again in the same old glucose form.

What we would like to know is whether he is dipping that pen in the ink or the sap bucket.

We might raid Cal's arsenal and steal that rubber stamp. We admit that gentle folk like the Coolidges would make delightful neighbors. But once in a while you like to get into an argument and slap a friend in the face with a furnished apartment.

Whenever Cal starts out to do something he seems to grab the eternal brass ring that keeps him forever revolving in the same merry circle.

We admit that he was a good President. The country was prosperous during his dynasty. He kept us out of war because all the rest of the world was too tired to fight.

Under the present conditions we rather long for the good old Coolidge days of peace and prosperity. Everybody had money, including the rightful owners.

Harvests were big. The treasury surplus overflowed the banks of the grand old Mellon and even the farmhands spent the evening sorting their bonds and jewels.

We wish that Cal would discontinue his presidential policy when writing and pen something that would bring back the good old days of personal journalism and hoss-whipping of the editor.

We would like to see Cal get off those doorknobs and mother some eggs.

He has a good opportunity to swing the juvenile opinion of the nation and to make good citizens out of miniature golfers.

Here is one golden opportunity that should not be plated.

We would like to ghost-write his article just one day and we would guarantee that he would be wearing cross-over whiskers and sneaking out the back door for the next six months.

PLANET 'X'

By Archibald Henderson

"X" is a most suitable title for the new trans-Neptunian planet. This not merely because it yet lacks a name. But chiefly because "X" is a mathematical symbol of mystery, the unknown quantity. Thus far comparatively little is known about this new celestial object, beyond its position in the heavens, its approximate size and distance from the Sun.

As it is the ninth planet it would be logical to call it, not planet X, but planet IX.

In the first flush of excitement over the discovery of the new planet, at Lowell's own observatory, it has been hastily assumed that Lowell was the only astronomer who suspected the existence of this mysterious celestial object.

Half a century ago astronomers busied themselves greatly over the possibilities of the existence of such a planet. Dr. Forbes even thought he had located such a trans-Neptunian world; and not content with this, hazarded the belief that there was another, still deeper in the inter-stellar spaces.

The brilliant French astronomer, Camille Flammarion, in his fascinating book, "Astronomie Populaire" (1879), actually gave the location of the new planet, which he believed to exist, in the following words: "All the periodical comets have their aphelia near the orbit of a planet. Now the third comet of 1862 and the swarm of shooting stars of August 10 follow an orbit of which the aphelion is of the distance of 48 (namely 48 times the distance from the earth to the sun). There should exist there (in that neighborhood) a large planet, sailing at 4,000 millions of miles from the sun, in a revolution of about 330 years."

In addition to giving other details regarding the probable size and mean diurnal motion of the planet, he actually reproduces a diagram of the solar system, on which is traced the conjectured orbit of the trans-Neptunian planet!

Thirty years ago Prof. Lau, from a study of the perturbations of Uranus, concluded that there must exist, not one, but two trans-Neptunian bodies. Both the late Prof. E. C. Pickering, of Harvard, and Prof. William H. Pickering, now engaged in astronomical work in Jamaica, devoted much thought and study to this subject. The latter actually foresaw the discovery of the existence, in which he believed from the results of cometary statistics, of four trans-Neptunian planets. These he believed he had actually located theoretically, although none of them had been sighted. Three of these supposed planets he believed to be extremely massive and remote.

Gaillot, to whom Lowell was deeply indebted for details of mathematical procedure, believed in the existence of two trans-Neptunian planets. One of these he suspected was located at a distance from the sun about one and one-half times the distance of Neptune. The other, a larger planet, he believed to be located more than twice as far from the sun as Neptune. As the distance of Neptune from the sun is 2,793,500,000 miles, the former planet would be distant from the sun about 4,190,250,000—or say 4,200,000,000—miles. This agrees quite closely with the new planet discovered at Flagstaff, Ariz., from Lowell's calculations, embodied in his classic memoir of 1915.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There are few things harder to bear than Being Misunderstood. You know how it is . . .

Life has put you up against some problem. Usually you can run away from your problems . . . or compromise . . . or manage to sit pretty somehow. But this time you feel you can't run away and keep your self respect. You MUST face it . . . you MUST make a stand. You've been cowardly too long . . .

You realize . . . how dismally well you realize . . . that the consequences of taking a stand won't be very jolly. A lot of people will probably get mad at you, or disgusted with you. People like to talk about courage or read about it, but they don't give it much of a hand if it happens to disturb THEM. And that's natural. Human beings are still savages, and they like to hide in snug caves of custom and convention. They dread anything that upsets their accustomed routine or reflects on their own laziness and timidity. And someone else's courage is apt to do just that. So naturally they get peeved at neighbors who act "different." . . .

So you know, mighty well, that if you act different you're in for a lot of grief. But things CAN'T go on as they've been going . . . you MUST do something . . .

So you do the thing you think is right. And . . . BAM! . . . everyone begins to knock and sneer—

Well, you expected it. You told yourself it would happen. But how it hurts! And how unfair it seems. If they'd only tried to understand . . . If they had been loyal and patient, even if they couldn't understand. But they've condemned you, without giving you a chance to explain.

You find yourself growing bitter.

DON'T!

Stand off and get a broader perspective of the situation. Suppose you'd been picked out to do some extraordinary brave feat . . . like following Byrd to the Pole or leading some great crusade. You'd know, before hand, that you would have to endure loneliness and danger and discomfort . . . but when these conditions came you wouldn't be bitter about them, would you? No, you would feel honored because you had been elected to take this risk . . . and you'd feel that the adventure itself justified the risk.

FEEL THAT WAY ABOUT THE BRAVE THING YOU HAVE DONE! FOR IT, TOO, WAS WORTH THE PRICE YOU'VE HAD TO PAY.

It is a great thing to journey into uncharted parts of the earth, but it is an infinitely nobler and braver thing to journey into the uncharted land of the spirit. Every fine and difficult act is such a journey . . . and exacts its certain penalty of sneers from those whose smugness is disturbed. BUT THE JOURNEY IS WORTH IT! For he who elects to travel the soul's hard trail, not only keeps faith with himself but blazes a path for those who follow after.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

In New York they're having a terrible time with their judges. Why, "judge" has got to be a fighting word in New York, and many a guy has been put on the spot for calling another one a judge.

So they tell of one magistrate meeting another on Broadway.

"Hello, judge," he says, "I ain't seen you for a year. What you been doing for the last year anyhow?"

"Doing, you ask? Why, I been doing a year, just like you've been doing yourself, you big stiff."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Noon in the Garden

Now the lilac and the lily
Languish, drooping low,
Longing for the twilight's coming
When the cool winds blow.

Blazing, straight above, the sun swings
In a brazen arc;
Floods of light surge through the garden,
Light unshadowed, stark.

Every fainting white rose sends her
Incense on the air,
Slowly from her gold heart drifting
Like a fragrant prayer.

Waves of heat engulf the larkspur,
Pink and daffodil,
Tides of light sweep through the garden,
Every breeze is still.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

SEC. 2—NATURAL SELECTION AS A CONSERVATIVE FORCE

We are apt to speak and write of the factors of the evolutionary process as though they were driving us on to incessant fresh developments, new things and strange things, but that is by no means the case.

The action of natural selection is probably on the whole conservative, except during periods of marked change in the meteorological or biological environment. It has no bias for wild-eyed novelty. It is just as effective in keeping things in their places.

H. G. Wells

We have compared it to a filter. But it is, we may say, a directive filter. And the direction in which variation is guided by selection is determined by the environment. While that remains stable, selection will be a stabilizing force, a conservative influence.

If a species is well adapted to its role in life, natural selection will be busy pruning the variants that depart too far in any direction from the temporary ideal. But the environment may change; and it may offer inducements to responsive change. This revolutionizes the selective policy; and natural selection in such a changing environment becomes a radical influence in the politics of life. It is now all for new ideas.

A good instance of natural selection as a conservative force is supplied by the common sparrow. The English sparrow, as proved by its rapid spread over the world, is a species excellently adapted for ordinary all-round activities. After a severe storm in the United States a number of sparrows were found in distress, beaten down to the ground.

They were taken indoors and tended; some revived, some died. Measurements showed that those which died comprised fewer specimens with wings of average length and more with wings unusually long or unusually short. Selection by storms was evidently preserving the central type.

We have further the remarkable fact that no measurable differences, whether in size, proportion or plumage, can be found between the sparrows of Britain and those of various localities of the United States, where the bird is an alien intruder, and this although many of the environments which it has colonized (such as parts of the American desert) are different from anything to be found in its original home.

This is indirect evidence of selection keeping a well-balanced type stable.

To jump from birds to molluscs, snails preserve a record of their growth in the inner whorls of their shell. When measurements of proportions were made on the inner whorls of a number of adult land-snails and compared with the proportions of young snails of size corresponding to their inner whorls, it was found that the young snails had a greater range of variation.

The old snails represented the shots on the central part of the target; the fringe of scattering shots had been eliminated. Natural selection was refusing the novelties.

And just as selection the radical seems capable of guiding variation along paths of far-reaching change, as in the stock of horse or elephant, so it appears that selection the tory may keep organisms in a state of evolutionary immobility over awe-inspiring periods of time.

The classic example is Lingula, a mud-burrowing lamp-shell. Examples of this identical genus, differing only in trival details from living species, flourished in the Cambrian (III A) seas five hundred million years ago. We do not know the length of a generation in Lingula: ten years is certainly well over the mark, but even this would give us sixty million generations of stability—sixty million generations during which all essential changes in the constitutions and habits of the creature have been prevented.

It is, of course, possible that the absence of change is here due to the failure of variations to occur rather than to the success of natural selection in keeping them pruned down. We can only say that mutations have been found in every organism in which they have been carefully looked for, and that their total absence in this or any other case is unlikely.

The pruning effect of selection is also exerted in another way. Whether change or stability is being encouraged, the organism must be kept up to the mark. Wherever mutations have been studied, many of them are found to be deleterious. Mutations are random changes, and random changes in such complex machinery as that of life will often inevitably be changes for the worse.

Natural selection will always be occupied in ousting these from the germ-plasm of the species.

Mutation and selection have less to do than was originally imagined, because of the way growth works. We saw how the male fiddler-crab's claw enlarges more rapidly than the rest of his anatomy, and how this is due to the presence of what we may call a growth-center near the tip of the claw, a region where growth is most intense, and from which it fades gradually down to the normal as we pass down the joints of the claw towards the body.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—No spot so successfully turns back the years for me as Coney Island. This past summer Coney did not fail to live up to its chirping anthem: "Bigger and Better."

There are three distinct classes in this whirling world of make-believe. Those who visit it lolling in the pontifical plush of limousines. Others who go to Coney for a lark. And the great, fat and waddling majority who refer to it as "Cooney."

The latter have the most fun. They live and play there from April 15 to the closing in September. Coney to them is a seaside resort where studied informality stamps the elect—the happy. Mothers and children wear only bathing suits during the entire hegira.

To be "smart" at Coney wins an elegant guffawing "horse laugh." The seasoned Coney Islanders come nearest to the supreme joy of beach combing, without its discomforts, that the world knows. The chief charm of Coney is that life is shucked of its monotonous conventions.

Thousands who swarm the beach from sunup until sundown are housed in mere huts, furnished only with such bare necessities as a bed, table, chair and cookstove. The glittering parabola of dips of death, papier mache what-nots is as unknown as Broadway to the real New Yorker.

This summer I visited a former chauffeur who, with his wife and three children, occupied a three-room lean-to on the lower end of the island. His expenses for the first six weeks were less than $15 weekly. He hadn't the creative comforts, but everything else of the expensive spa.

He saved $200 for a three-months outing and expected this sum to cover all expense. This is a side of the resort those who visit it merely to chase thrills, devour hot dogs and frozen custard, rarely see. Next season Coney's wax works are to include columnists—Migawd!

Wise cracking experts furnishing gags for comedians are "stooges," similar to the gag men of Hollywood. Their prices vary but top for a nifty was $1,000 paid by Al Jolson. He heard it across a cafe table—a spontaneous wheeze—and peeled off a "grand" for the amazed punster for sole rights.

Outstanding nifty tossers are Bugs Baer, Wilson Mizner, Grant Clarke, Arthur Caesar, Joe Frisco and Jack Benny. Some of their best lines were hurled in repartee which collected no royalties.

I think Bugs Baer's best was when after entertaining a large group in a night gyp joint he cried: "Waiter, my check and a fright wig!" It was Arthur Caesar who printed across his bank checks: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again!"

A doddering grayhead is entitled to a poetical moment now and then. This morning I passed the graceful and arresting Harriet Hoctor, the danseuse, along 49th street, and Wordsworth's lines have haunted me since:

"A dancing shape, an image gay,
To haunt, to startle and waylay!"

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are always those who are looking for favors you may extend.

And those who are most anxious to receive are often least willing to do anything for others.

There are those among your friends and even your acquaintances who make it a practice to borrow from you, money principally, sometimes other things.

You may think you are doing a kindness to accommodate them.

In certain instances it may be kind, but under many conditions it works out quite the reverse.

Often the borrower spends foolishly and extravagantly.

It is true of the frequent borrower and if he could not borrow he would be more careful in his expenditures.

Come easy—go easy, and as long as he knows you and others will lend him what he asks he will continue to ask and will not control his desire to spend more than he can afford.

When a friend has a run of hard luck and unexpected expenses pile up there may be some excuse for borrowing.

But those who spend money too freely and then borrow should not be encouraged by help from friends.
